(c) in the case of a payment or payments of the class described in subparagraph (1)(a)(ii) or paragraph (1)(b), other than a payment described in paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection, the lesser of

(i) the amount of the payment or the total amount of the payments, as the case may be, minus any amount subtracted therefrom pursuant to subsection (3), and

(ii) the amount by which

(A) the product obtained by multiplying $1,000 by the number of years during which the taxpayer was an employee of the employer who made the payment

Pre-RSC History: S. 41 repealed by 1985, c. 45, s. 140. S. 41 formerly read:

41. (1) Fiscal periods ending in same year — Where, by reason of a change made with the concurrence of the Minister in the fiscal period of a taxpayer who is an individual or the fiscal period of a partnership of which a taxpayer who is an individual is a member, there would otherwise be included in computing his income for any taxation year ending after 1971 and before 1974

(a) income from a business of which he is a proprietor for each of two or more fiscal periods, or

(b) income from the partnership for each of two or more fiscal periods, and the number of days in the fiscal periods is greater than the number of days in the taxation year, the following rules are, if the taxpayer so elects, applicable:

(c) the taxpayer's income from the business or partnership for the taxation year shall be deemed for the purpose of Part I of the amended Act to be that proportion of the aggregate of the incomes therefrom for the fiscal periods that the number of days in the taxation year is of the number of days in the fiscal periods; and

(d) the taxpayer shall pay, in addition to any other tax payable for the year, a tax on the amount by which the aggregate of the incomes from the business or partnership for the fiscal periods exceeds his income from the business or partnership for the year as determined under paragraph (c), equal to that proportion thereof that the tax computed under section 117 or 118, as the case may be, of the amended Act for the year on the assumption that his income from the business or partnership for the year is the amount determined under paragraph (c), is of his taxable income for the year computed on the same assumption, but where a taxpayer elects to have those rules applicable for a taxation year, no amount is deductible under section 111 of the amended Act in computing his taxable income for the year.

(2) "Earnings period" defined — In this section, "earnings period" means

(a) a fiscal period of a business of which a taxpayer was the proprietor during which he did not carry on and was not a partner in any other business and was not an employee,

(b) a fiscal period of a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member during which he was not a member of any other partnership, did not carry on any business of which he was the sole proprietor and was not an employee, and

(c) a period of employment of the taxpayer during which he did not carry on and was not a partner in any business, except any such period in respect of which a separate return of the taxpayer's income may be filed under subsection 150(4) of the amended Act.

(3) Earnings periods ending in same year — Where, in the case of a taxpayer who is an individual, there would otherwise be included in computing the income of the taxpayer for any taxation year ending after 1971 and before 1974 from one or more businesses, partnerships or employments referred to in subsection (2), income therefrom for each of two or more earnings periods ending in the year, and the aggregate of the number of days in the earnings periods is greater than the number of days in the taxation year, the following rules are, if the taxpayer so elects, applicable:

(a) the taxpayer's income from such one or more businesses, partnerships or employments for the taxation year shall be deemed, for the purposes of Part I of the amended Act, to be that proportion of the aggregate of the incomes therefrom that the number of days in the taxation year is of the aggregate of the number of days in the earnings periods, and

(b) the taxpayer shall pay, in addition to any other tax payable for the year, a tax on the amount by which the aggregate of the incomes from such one or more businesses, partnerships or employments for the taxation year exceeds his income therefrom determined under paragraph (a), equal to that proportion thereof that the tax under section 117 or 118, as the case may be, of that Act for the year, computed on the assumption that his income from such one or more businesses, partnerships or employments for the year is the amount determined under paragraph (a), is of his taxable income for the year computed on the same assumption;

but where a taxpayer elects to have those rules applicable for a taxation year, no amount is deductible under section 111 of that Act in computing his taxable income for the year.

(4) Election — An election by a taxpayer to have the rules referred to in subsection (1) applicable for a taxation year is not valid if the taxpayer may elect to have the rules referred to in subsection (3) applicable for the year.

Related Provisions: Reg. 205.1 — Electronic filing required if more than 500 returns.

Application: The December 13, 1995 draft regulations (foreign property), s. 1 of part (b), will amend s. 221 to read as above, applicable to taxation years beginning after 1995.

Technical Notes: Sections 221 and 222 require corporations and trusts to file an information return in respect of a taxation year, where the corporation or the trust claims that a share of its capital stock, or an interest of a beneficiary under it, is either a qualified investment or not foreign property.

Sections 221 and 222 are combined, for drafting convenience, into amended section 221.

Sections 221 and 222 are also amended so that the requirement for the information return is limited, consistent with existing Revenue Canada administrative practices, to listed types of corporations and trusts that are not registered investments. (Registered investments are not required to file the information return because they are already obliged to file a return under Part X.2 of the Act.)

The corporations and trusts listed for these purposes are mutual fund corporations, investment corporations, mutual fund trusts, pooled fund trusts (within the meaning assigned by subsection 5000(7)), resource property trusts (within the meaning assigned by subsection 5000(7)), trusts that would be mutual fund trusts if they had a sufficient number of unitholders, trusts described in paragraph 65(1)(c) of the Income Tax Application Rules, small business investment trusts (within the meaning assigned by subsection 5103(1)) or trusts described in paragraph 149(1)(o.4) of the Act.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 221(2)

(2) Where in any taxation year a reporting person (other than a registered investment) claims that a share of its capital stock issued by it, or an interest as a beneficiary under it, is a qualified investment under section 146, 146.1, 146.3 or 204 of the Act, the reporting person shall, in respect of the year and within 90 days after the end of the year, make an information return in prescribed form.

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, s. 1, will amend subsec. 221(2) to read as above, applicable to 1999 et seq.

Technical Notes: [These] proposed regulations reflect the introduction of new rules in section 146.1 of the Income Tax Act, which limit the types of investments that registered education savings plans (RESPs) are permitted to hold.

Subsection 221(2) of the Income Tax Regulations requires certain types of corporations and trusts to file an information return in respect of a taxation year, where the corporation or the trust claims that a share of its capital stock, or an interest of a beneficiary under it, is a qualified investment for an registered retirement savings plan (RRSP), registered retirement income fund (RRIF) or deferred profit sharing plan (DPSP). The requirement for the information return is limited to the types of corporations and trusts described in subsection 221(1) of the Regulations that are not registered investments.

Subsection 221(2) is amended to extend the requirement for filing an information return to a corporation or a trust that claims that a share of its capital stock, or an interest of a beneficiary under it, is a qualified investment for an RESP. This amendment is consequential on the introduction of qualified investment rules for RESPs.

(6) For the purposes of paragraph (b) of the definition "tax shelter" in subsection 237.1(1) of the Act, "prescribed benefit" in relation to a tax shelter means any amount that may reasonably be expected, having regard to statements or representations made in respect of the tax shelter, to be received by or made available to a person (in this subsection referred to as "the purchaser") who acquires an interest in the tax shelter, or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length, which receipt or availability would have the effect of reducing the impact of any loss that the purchaser may sustain by virtue of acquiring, holding or disposing of the interest in the tax shelter, and includes such an amount

(a) that is, either immediately or in the future, owed to any other person by the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length, to the extent that

(iv) payment of that amount is to be made in a foreign currency or is to be determined by reference to its value in a foreign currency and it may reasonably be considered, having regard to the history of the exchange rate between the foreign currency and Canadian currency, that the aggregate of all such payments, when converted to Canadian currency at the exchange rate expected to prevail at the date on which each such payment would be required to be made, will be substantially less than that aggregate would be if each such payment was converted to Canadian currency at the time that each such payment became owing,

(b) that the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length is entitled at any time to receive, directly or indirectly, or to have available

(i) as a form of assistance from a government, municipality or other public authority, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgiveable loan, deduction from tax or investment allowance, or as any other form of assistance, or

(ii) by reason of a revenue guarantee or other agreement in respect of which revenue may be earned by the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length, to the extent that the revenue guarantee or other agreement may reasonably be considered to ensure that the purchaser or person will receive a return of all or a portion of the purchaser's outlays in respect of the tax shelter,

(c) that is the proceeds of disposition to which the purchaser may be entitled by way of an agreement or other arrangement under which the purchaser has a right, either absolutely or contingently, to dispose of the interest in the tax shelter (otherwise than as a consequence of the purchaser's death), including the fair market value of any property that the agreement or arrangement provides for the acquisition of in exchange for all or any part of the interest in the tax shelter, and

(d) that is owed to a promoter, or a person with whom the promoter does not deal at arm's length, by the purchaser or a person with whom the purchaser does not deal at arm's length in respect of the acquisition of an interest in the tax shelter but, except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (b)(ii), does not include profits earned in respect of the tax shelter.

(b) of a partnership

(i) where

(A) the indebtedness is secured by and used to acquire tangible capital property located in Canada (other than rental property, within the meaning assigned by subsection 1100(14), leasing property, within the meaning assigned by subsection 1100(17), or specified energy property, within the meaning assigned by subsection 1100(25)) of the partnership, and

(B) the person to whom the indebtedness is repayable is a member of the Canadian Payments Association, and

(ii) throughout the period during which any amount is outstanding in respect of the indebtedness,

(A) at least 90% of the fair market value of the property of which is attributable to tangible capital property located in Canada of the partnership,

(C) the principal business of each such limited partner is related to the principal business of the partnership, except where it is reasonable to conclude that one of the main reasons for the acquisition of one or more properties by the partnership, or for the acquisition of one or more interests in the partnership by limited partners, is to avoid the application of this subsection.

Proposed Amendment — Reporting Payments in the Construction Industry

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 27, 1995: The budget proposes that a new information reporting system be introduced to require certain payments made after 1995 within the construction industry to be reported to Revenue Canada. The payments to be reported will be those made to or on behalf of a person for the provision of goods and services in the course of activities related to the construction, alteration, repair or removal of any structure by that person. Reporting will be required only where the payment is made by a person in a construction business.

Subcontracting in the construction industry has grown in response to business requirements for greater flexibility and control over projects. This has led to a move away from employer-employee relationships and contributed to increased tax compliance problems in the industry. Unlike payments to employees, there is no existing requirement to report to Revenue Canada payments made to subcontractors.

Revenue Canada's stepped up enforcement efforts in the construction sector and industry representations have indicated a relatively high level of non-compliance, particularly with respect to the reporting of income. As well, in consultations with construction industry associations over the past year, firms in the home building industry have expressed their frustration at the difficulties in competing with businesses that operate within the underground economy, often by contracting work out "under the table".

Revenue Canada will consult with the construction industry to develop a system of reporting which minimizes the compliance burden on payers while providing the information necessary to verify compliance with the tax laws. The Minister of National Revenue will announce details of these consultations shortly.

Revenue Canada news release, June 13, 1996: National Revenue Minister Jane Stewart, together with leading representatives of Canada's construction and home-building industry and building trade unions, today introduce a new reporting system to combat the underground economy in the construction and home-building sector.

"This initiative is a major step forward in Revenue Canada's efforts to fight the underground economy", said Minister Stewart. "It will help to ensure that everyone in the construction and home-building industry operates under the same set of rules. The new system is a win-win-win situation for the industry, its workers, and Canadian taxpayers".

The system combines voluntary compliance with new reporting guidelines on contractor payments and a program of targeted enforcement.

The new rules apply to all individuals, partnerships, and corporations whose principal business is construction and who make payments to contractors providing construction services. This includes individuals and businesses who are not required to register for the goods and services tax because they have reported sales of less than $30,000.

The system encourages individuals and businesses to voluntarily report all payments they make to contractors who provide construction services. Revenue Canada will focus increased attention on high-risk areas within the industry with low voluntary reporting rates.

"The Canadian Construction Association supports initiatives, like this new reporting system, which are intended to level the playing field for taxpayers — so long as they do not impose an onerous administrative burden on law-abiding businesses", said CCA Chairman Brian Scoggs.

"Revenue Canada is setting an example of how government should do business", stated Jerry Roehr, President of the Canadian Home Builders' Association. "The Department has listed to our concerns, and has made an honest effort to develop and introduce a new reporting system that will minimize the reporting burden on our members, and reduce opportunities for under-the-table contractors to undermine legitimate new home builders and renovator. It demonstrates how government and business can work together in partnership to achieve mutual objectives".

"The underground economy hurts us all", continued Guy Dumoulin, Executive Secretary of the building and construction Trades Department AFL-CIO. "This initiative is definitely a step in the right direction. It will help protect honest jobs and good wages in a critical employment sector of the Canadian economy".

Initially, the new reporting system will be voluntary, and retroactive to payments made to construction contractors since January 1, 1995. Revenue Canada will evaluate the system in the fall of 1996, in co-operation with business and labour representatives of the construction industry. Based on this review, Revenue Canada will consider making the new reporting system mandatory in 1997.

Finance Minister Paul Martin announced the new system in the 1996 budget. Revenue Canada developed it in consultation with representatives of the construction industry, including the Building and construction Trades Department AFL-CIO, the Canadian Construction Association, the Canadian Home Builders' Association, the Interior Systems Contractors Association, and the Multi-Employer Benefit Plan Council of Canada.

In addition to the construction industry, federal government departments and agencies will participate in the new reporting system. Revenue Canada is also working with provincial governments to ensure their participation.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 24, 1998: The Underground economy: reporting of federal and construction contracts

The federal government has a comprehensive strategy to fight the underground economy. The budget proposes further measures to improve tax compliance and the fairness of the tax system.

Experience has shown that the accuracy of income reporting for tax purposes is better for sources of income for which information slips are issued. For instance, virtually all wages and salaries are voluntarily reported for income tax purposes compared to approximately 85% of self-employment income. The higher tax compliance for wage and salary income is partly due to the mandatory requirement on employers to report to Revenue Canada the wage and salary payments made to each of their employees. To further improve tax compliance, the budget proposes enhanced reporting requirements for contract payments.

Federal government departments and agencies will begin issuing information slips for contract payments made after 1997, as will federal Crown corporations for contract payments made after 1998. [See Reg. 237 — ed.]

The construction contract reporting system introduced in the 1995 budget will become mandatory for payments made after 1998. Contract reporting was first introduced in the construction industry because Revenue Canada's compliance activities revealed an active underground economy and consultations with industry associations indicated that it was becoming difficult for complying businesses to remain competitive. The construction contract payment reporting system was introduced to help restore a level playing field in the industry by improving compliance in the reporting of income.

The reporting system was introduced on a voluntary basis in 1995 to allow the federal government to develop, with the construction industry, a system that would be simple for the industry to comply with and would deliver the information needed by Revenue Canada for enforcement. The industry's suggestions have resulted in numerous modifications to the original reporting system. Experience with the voluntary system also demonstrated that mandatory reporting is necessary to obtain the level of participation needed to achieve effective compliance.

Subject to further consultation with industry stakeholders, it is intended that:

- mandatory reporting be required of individuals, partnerships, trusts and corporations whose principal business is construction;
- reporting to Revenue Canada be required on an annual basis for payments made to contractors for construction services;
- construction services include activities such as erection, installation, alteration, modification, repair, improvement, demolition, dismantling and removal of a structure, surface or subsurface construction or any similar property; and
- reporting be required for service and mixed service and goods contracts, but not goods-only contracts.

Revenue Canada will consult with representatives of the construction industry on the specifics of the reporting system. It will also consult on how best to ensure that the intended purposes are achieved. The Minister of National Revenue will shortly issue a press release with details on the consultation process.

Finally, the federal government will continue discussing contract reporting with provincial governments and assessing the extent of underground activity in other sectors of the economy to determine if further action is warranted.

Revenue Canada news release, February 25, 1998: SUB-CONTRACT REPORTING TO BE FOCUS OF CONSULTATIONS

The Honourable Herb Dhaliwal, Minister of National Revenue and M.P. (Vancouver South-Burnaby), announced today that Revenue Canada will be consulting with construction industry associations and unions on the implementation of the sub-contracting reporting initiative announced by the Honourable Paul Martin in the Budget tabled yesterday in the House of Commons.

Mr. Dhaliwal highlighted the importance of addressing underground economic activity in the construction industry. "We need to ensure that there is a level playing field for business, but at the same time we recognize that there is a critical need to minimize compliance costs, especially for small and medium-sized businesses," the Minister said.

Revenue Canada will be working with industry and union representatives over the next few months to determine how best to implement sub-contractor reporting, including examining alternative ways in which the information can be provided.

"This consultation process is extremely important," said Mr. Dhaliwal. "We will make every effort to ensure that the concerns of small and medium-sized businesses are heard and addressed."

Mr. Dhaliwal also pointed out that the Government is resuming the reporting of payments to all federal government service contractors. Reporting begins in 1998 for federal departments and agencies, and in 1999 for federal Crown Corporations. This initiative complements measures taken by provinces such as New Brunswick and Newfoundland who report similar information.

"By working in partnership with our key stakeholders and doing our part to report payments to contractors, the Government is demonstrating its commitment to addressing the underground economy," the Minister said.

Mr. Dhaliwal said that the consultations with the construction industry on the most effective approach for sub-contractor reporting will be concluded by the end of the summer.

Revenue Canada news release, December 15, 1998: Revenue Minister announces structure of mandatory Contract Payment Reporting System

The Honourable Herb Dhaliwal, Minister of National Revenue and M.P. (Vancouver South-Burnaby), today announced the structure of the mandatory Contract Payment Reporting System for the construction industry.

As part of the federal government's efforts to promote compliance and to combat underground economic activity in the construction industry, a mandatory contract payment reporting system was announced in the February 24, 1998, budget by the Honourable Paul Martin, Minister of Finance. At that time, Revenue Canada made a commitment to consult with the industry to determine the most effective approach for reporting payments to subcontractors.

"The idea behind introducing the Contract Payment Reporting System is to increase compliance with Canada's tax laws and ensure a level playing field for business while minimizing any additional administrative costs to the industry," explained Mr. Dhaliwal. "We are particularly sensitive to the concerns of small- and medium-sized business and, I believe, have addressed key industry concerns through the consultation process." As a result of these discussions, provisions contained in the mandatory Contract Payment Reporting System will include:

- a calendar-year or fiscal-year reporting period;
- a simplified reporting system;
- a commitment to review the system in concert with key stakeholders at the end of two reporting cycles to ensure its effectiveness; and,

• no mandatory requirement to provide information slips to subcontractors.

Beginning January 1, 1999, businesses whose principal activity is construction must ensure they are keeping the name, address, amount paid, and goods and services tax (GST) registration number or Business Number of their subcontractors. This information will be reported by March 31, 2000.

Based on construction industry recommendations, the Department will look at expanding the reporting requirement to other sectors that provide home renovation services. Discussions will begin immediately.

The Contract Payment Reporting System complements Revenue Canada's existing compliance strategy and addresses a significant part of the underground economy. It offers an effective response to the industry's concerns over underground economic activity in the construction sector. "The underground economy hurts us all. Tax evasion compromises the ability of the federal and provincial " concluded Mr. Dhaliwal.

Revenue Canada Fact Sheet (December 1998): Contract Payment Reporting System

Revenue Canada is committed to maintaining public confidence in the fairness and integrity of Canada's revenue system. As part of its efforts to combat underground economic activity, the Department has actively worked with both the provinces and the private sector to encourage compliance with Canada's tax laws and to ensure that honest taxpayers are not disadvantaged by those who do not comply with the law. The Contract Payment Reporting System is a key element in these efforts to promote compliance in the construction industry.

The reporting system was originally introduced in 1996 on a voluntary participation basis. High levels of participation are critical to the effectiveness of any reporting system. Unfortunately, the levels of voluntary participation were too low to be effective. It became mandatory when it was announced in the February 24, 1998, federal budget. At that time, Revenue Canada made a commitment to consult with the industry to determine the most effective approach for reporting payments to subcontractors.

Consultations have concluded and the reporting system has been revised to reflect concerns that were originally raised about its implementation. Particular attention was paid to minimizing the administrative costs of compliance. Ongoing monitoring will ensure the system's effectiveness.

Beginning January 1, 1999, construction businesses have to record payments they make to subcontractors who provide construction services, and report these payments to the Department. The due date for the first reporting period is March 31, 2000.

In general terms, the reporting system will work as follows:

Who will have to report?

All individuals, partnerships, and corporations whose principal business activity is construction will have to report payments made to subcontractors. For these purposes, construction is defined as erecting, installing, altering, modifying, repairing, improving, demolishing, dismantling, or removing any structure or part, including but not limited to buildings, roads, and bridges. Based on construction industry recommendations, Revenue Canada will immediately begin discussions to extend the system to other sectors that provide home renovation services.

What type of payments have to be reported?

Payments to subcontractors for construction services have to be reported. Goods-only payments do not have to be reported. Mixed service and goods payments have to be reported if there is a service component of $500 or more. Wages paid to employees do not have to be included since they are reported on T4 slips.

Who is a subcontractor?

A subcontractor is an individual, partnership, or corporation that provides construction services.

Subcontractors include businesses that are below the $30,000 limit for goods and services tax (GST) registration purposes. Payments to contractors who provide other services, such as bookkeepers, janitors, and lawyers, do not have to be reported.

What information will be reported?

Subcontractor's name — The name or style under which the subcontractor carried on business (i.e., the subcontractor's business name as it appears on invoices, or the subcontractor's name as it appears on the cheques the payer made to the subcontractor).

Address — The business address of the subcontractor.

Subcontractor's identification number — One of Revenue Canada's identifiers-either the subcontractor's business number, which is the same as the GST registration number, or the social insurance number of those who do not have a business or a GST number.

Contract payments — The total amount paid, or credited, to the subcontractor for the reporting period including goods and service tax/harmonized sales tax (GST/HST) and provincial sales tax. If the total amount paid for the year is less than $500 to a particular subcontractor, the payer does not have to report payments made to this subcontractor.

Reporting period

Businesses can report payments on either a calendar or fiscal year basis. Payments made after December 31, 1998 have to be reported.

When is the information due?

Construction businesses have to record all necessary information beginning January 1, 1999, to prepare the Contract Payment Reporting information return. The first return is due March 31, 2000.

300. Capital element of annuity payments — (1) For the purposes of paragraphs 32.1(3)(b) and 60(a) of the Act, where an annuity is paid under a contract (other than an income-averaging annuity contract or an annuity contract purchased pursuant to a deferred profit sharing plan or pursuant to a plan referred to in subsection 147(15) of the Act as a "revoked plan") at a particular time, that part of the annuity payment determined in prescribed manner to be a return of capital is that proportion of a taxpayer's interest in the annuity payment that the adjusted purchase price of the taxpayer's interest in the contract at that particular time is of his interest, immediately before the commencement under the contract of payments to which paragraph 56(1)(d) of the Act applies, in the total of the payments

(a) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain; or

(b) expected to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

History: Subsec. 300(1) substituted by P.C. 1983-3530, subsec. 1(1), November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1982.

Subsec. 300(1) substituted by P.C. 1982-1421, subsec. 1(1), May 13, 1982, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 26, 1982, effective with respect to annuity contracts under which annuity payments commence after 1979 except that in its application to annuity contracts under which payments commence before 1982 it shall be read as follows:

300. (1) For the purposes of paragraphs 32.1(3)(b) and 60(a) of the Act, if an annuity is paid under a contract, the amount deemed to be a return of capital is that proportion of each annuity payment that the consideration for, or purchase price of, the contract is of the total of the payments

(a) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain; or

(b) expected to be made, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(1.1) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (2), "annuity payment" does not include any portion of a payment under a contract the amount of which cannot be reasonably determined immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract except where the payment of such portion cannot be so determined because the continuation of the annuity payments under the contract depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

History: Subsec. 300(1.1) added by P.C. 1982-1421, subsec. 1(1), May 13, 1982, Canada Gazette, Part II, May 26, 1982, effective with respect to annuity contracts under which annuity payments commence after 1981.

(2) For the purposes of this section and section 305,

(a) where the continuance of the annuity payments under any contract depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual, the total of the payments expected to be made under the contract

(i) shall, in the case of a contract that provides for equal payments and does not provide for a guaranteed period of payment, be equal to the product obtained by multiplying the aggregate of the annuity payments expected to be received throughout a year under the contract by the complete expectations of life using the table of mortality known as the 1971 Individual Annuity Mortality Table as published in Volume XXIII of the Transactions of the Society of Actuaries, or

(ii) shall, in any other case, be calculated in accordance with subparagraph (i) with such modifications as the circumstances may require;

(b) except as provided in subsections (3) and (4), "adjusted purchase price" of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract at a particular time means the amount that would be determined at that time in respect of that interest under paragraph 148(9)(a) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"] of the Act if that paragraph were read without reference to subparagraph (viii) [k] thereof;

(c) where the continuance of the annual payments under any contract depends on the survival of a person, the age of that person on any date as of which a calculation is being made shall be determined by subtracting the calendar year of his birth from the calendar year in which such date occurs; and

(d) where the continuance of the annual payments under any contract depends on the survival of a person, and where, in the event of the death of that person before the annual payments aggregate a stated sum, the contract provides that the unpaid balance of the stated sum shall be paid, either in a lump sum or instalments, then, for the purpose of determining the expected term of the contract, the contract shall be deemed to provide for the continuance of the payments thereunder for a minimum term certain equal to the nearest integral number of years required to complete the payment of the stated sum;

(e) [Revoked]

(a) an annuity contract purchased pursuant to a registered pension plan, a registered retirement savings plan, a deferred profit sharing plan or a plan referred to in subsection 147(15) of the Act as a revoked plan;

(b) an annuity contract described in paragraph 148(1)(c) or (e) of the Act; and

(c) an annuity contract

(i) under which annuity payments have commenced in the taxation year or a preceding taxation year,

(ii) issued by a corporation described in any of paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d) or clause 146(1)(j)(ii)(B) [146(1)"retirement savings plan"(b)(ii)] of the Act, a life insurance corporation, a registered charity or a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation or a mortgage investment corporation) the principal business of which is the making of loans (which corporation or charity is in this section referred to as an "issuer"),

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)(c)(ii)

(ii) issued by a life insurance corporation, a registered charity, a corporation referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition "specified financial institution" in subsection 248(1) of the Act or subparagraph (b)(ii) of the definition "retirement savings plan" in subsection 146(1) of the Act or a corporation (other than a mutual fund corporation or a mortgage investment corporation) the principal business of which is the making of loans (which corporation or charity is referred to in this section as the "issuer"),

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), s. 1, will amend subpara. 304(1)(c)(ii) to read as above, applicable after February 22, 1994.

Technical Notes: Section 304 prescribes certain annuity contracts for exclusion from the rules in the Income Tax Act that require income from insurance policies to be reported on an accrual basis. Paragraph 304(1)(c) provides an exclusion for an annuity under which payments have commenced if a number of other conditions are also satisfied. Subparagraph 304(1)(c)(ii) requires that the annuity have been issued by a person specified in that provision. Acceptable issuers include corporations described in any of paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d) of the Act — banks, trust companies and credit unions.

Subsection 39(5) of the Act is being amended to replace several of its paragraphs by a reference to "financial institutions" (as defined in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act). Consequently, subparagraph 304(1)(c)(ii) is amended to refer to corporations referred to in any of paragraphs (a) to (c) of the definition of "specified financial institution" in subsection 248(1) of the Act, which are the same corporations as were referred to in paragraphs 39(5)(b) to (d).

(iii) each holder of which

(A) is an individual, other than a trust that is neither a testamentary trust nor a trust described in paragraph 104(4)(a) of the Act (in this paragraph referred to as a "spouse trust"),

(B) is an annuitant under the contract, and

(C) throughout the taxation year, dealt at arm's length with the issuer,

(iv) the terms and conditions of which require that, from the time the contract meets the requirements of this paragraph,

(B) the annuity payments thereunder continue for a fixed term or

(I) where the holder is an individual (other than a trust), for the life of the first holder or until the later of the death of the first holder and the death of any one of the spouse, brothers and sisters (in this subparagraph referred to as "the survivor") of the first holder, or

(C) after 1986, in respect of which a holder thereof has notified the issuer in writing, before the end of the taxation year in which the annuity payments under the contract commenced, that the contract is not to be treated as a prescribed annuity contract and a holder thereof has rescinded the notification by so notifying the issuer in writing before the end of the taxation year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 304(1)

Department of Finance news release, December 19, 1996: An annuity contract issued as a RRIF will not be subject to the accrual rules under section 12.2 of the Act.

This amendment will be implemented by way of an amendment to subsection 304(1) of the Regulations. It is contemplated that it will apply to taxation years that begin after 1986, given that the original amendments to the Act that gave rise to the need for this amendment applied after 1986.

Department of Finance news release, October 23, 1997: [See under ITA 12.2(1) — ed.]

(2) Notwithstanding subsection (1), an annuity contract shall not fail to be a prescribed annuity contract by reason that

(a) where the contract provides for a joint and last survivor annuity or is held jointly, the terms and conditions thereof provide that there will be a decrease in the amount of the annuity payments to be made under the contract from the time of death of one of the annuitants thereunder;

(b) the terms and conditions thereof provide that where the holder thereof dies at or before the time he attains the age of 91 years, the contract will terminate and an amount will be paid out of the contract not exceeding the amount, if any, by which the total premiums paid under the contract exceeds the total annuity payments made under the contract;

(c) where the annuity payments are to be made over a term that is guaranteed or fixed, the terms and conditions thereof provide that as a consequence of the death of the holder thereof during the guaranteed or fixed term any payments that, but for the death of the holder, would be made during the term may be commuted into a single payment; or

(d) the terms and conditions thereof, as they read on December 1, 1982 and at all subsequent times, provide that the holder participates in the investment earnings of the issuer and that the amount of such participation is to be paid within 60 days after the end of the year in respect of which it is determined.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the annuitant under an annuity contract is deemed to be the holder of the contract where

(a) the contract is held by another person in trust for the annuitant; or

(b) the contract was acquired by the annuitant under a group term life insurance policy under which life insurance was effected on the life of another person in respect of, in the course of, or by virtue of the office or employment or former office or employment of that other person.

(4) In this section,

"annuitant" under an annuity contract, at any time, means a person who, at that time, is entitled to receive annuity payments under the contract;

"spouse" of a particular person means

(a) a person of the opposite sex who is married to the particular person or who is a party to a void or voidable marriage with the particular person, or

(b) a person of the opposite sex who is cohabiting with the particular person in a conjugal relationship and has so cohabited for a period of at least one year.

305. Unallocated income accrued before 1982 — (1) For the purposes of section 12.2 and paragraph 56(1)(d.1) of the Act, the amount at any time of "unallocated income accrued in respect of the interest before 1982, as determined in prescribed manner", in respect of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract (other than an interest last acquired after December 1, 1982) or in a life insurance policy referred to in subsection (3), means the amount, if any, by which

(a) the accumulating fund at December 31, 1981 in respect of the interest

exceeds the aggregate of

(b) his adjusted cost basis (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 148(9)(a) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"] of the Act) at December 31, 1981 in respect of the interest; and

(c) that proportion of the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under paragraph (a) exceeds the amount determined under paragraph (b) that

(i) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of an annuity payment received before that time in respect of the interest

is of

(ii) the taxpayer's interest, immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract, in the total of the annuity payments

(A) to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract for a term of years certain, or

(B) expected to be made under the contract, in the case of a contract under which the continuation of the payments depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(2) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c), "annuity payment" does not include any portion of a payment under a contract the amount of which cannot be reasonably determined immediately before the commencement of payments under the contract except where such portion cannot be so determined because the continuation of the annuity payments under the contract depends in whole or in part on the survival of an individual.

(3) For the purposes of this section, an interest in an annuity contract to which subsection 12.2(9) of the Act applies shall be deemed to be a continuation of the interest in the life insurance policy in respect of which it was issued.

306. Exempt policies — (1) For the purposes of this Part and subsection 12.2(11) of the Act, "exempt policy" at any time means a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) in respect of which the following conditions are met at that time:

(a) if that time is a policy anniversary of the policy, the accumulating fund of the policy at that time (determined without regard to any policy loan) does not exceed the total of the accumulating funds at that time of the exemption test policies issued at or before that time in respect of the policy;

(b) assuming that the terms and conditions of the policy do not change from those in effect on the last policy anniversary of the policy at or before that time and, where necessary, making reasonable assumptions about all other factors (including, in the case of a participating life insurance policy within the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12) of the Act, the assumption that the amounts of dividends paid will be as shown in the dividend scale), it is reasonable to expect that the condition in paragraph (a) will be met on each policy anniversary of the policy on which the policy could remain in force after that time and before the date determined under subparagraph (3)(d)(ii) with respect to the exemption test policies issued in respect of the policy;

(c) the condition in paragraph (a) was met on all policy anniversaries of the policy before that time; and

(d) the condition in paragraph (b) was met at all times on and after the first policy anniversary of the policy and before that time.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-87R2: Policyholders' income from life insurance policies.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), a life insurance policy that is an exempt policy on its first policy anniversary shall be deemed to have been an exempt policy from the time of its issue until that anniversary.

(3) For the purposes of this section and section 307, a separate exemption test policy shall be deemed to have been issued to a policyholder in respect of a life insurance policy

(a) on the date of issue of the life insurance policy, and

(b) on each policy anniversary of the life insurance policy where the amount of the benefit on death thereunder exceeds 108 per cent of the amount of the benefit on death thereunder on the later of the date of its issue and the date of its preceding anniversary, if any,

and, for the purpose of determining whether the accumulating fund of the life insurance policy on any particular policy anniversary meets the condition in paragraph (1)(a), each such exemption test policy shall be deemed

(c) to have a benefit on death that is uniform throughout the term of the exemption test policy and equal to

(i) where the exemption test policy is the first such policy issued in respect of the life insurance policy, the amount on that policy anniversary of the benefit on death of the life insurance policy less the total of all amounts each of which is the amount on that policy anniversary of the benefit on death of another exemption test policy issued on or before that policy anniversary in respect of the life insurance policy, and

(ii) in any other case, the amount by which the benefit on death of the life insurance policy on the date the exemption test policy was issued exceeds 108 per cent of the amount of the benefit on death of the life insurance policy on the later of the date of issue of the life insurance policy and the date of its preceding policy anniversary, if any;

(d) to pay the amount of its benefit on death on the earlier of

(i) the date of death of the person whose life is insured under the life insurance policy, and

(ii) the later of

(A) ten years after the date of issue of the life insurance policy, and

(B) the date that the person whose life is insured would, if he survived, attain the age of 85 years; and

(e) to be a life insurance policy in Canada issued by a life insurer that carried on its life insurance business in Canada.

(4) Notwithstanding subsections (1) to (3),

(a) where at any particular time the amount of the benefit on death of a life insurance policy is reduced, an amount equal to such reduction (such amount is in this paragraph referred to as "the reduction") shall be applied at that time to reduce the amount of the benefit on death of exemption test policies issued before that time in respect of the life insurance policy (other than the exemption test policy issued in respect thereof pursuant to paragraph (3)(a)), in the order in which the dates of their issuance are proximate to the particular time, by an amount equal to the lesser of

(i) the portion, if any, of the reduction not applied to reduce the benefit on death of one or more other such exemption test policies, and

(ii) the amount, immediately before that time, of the benefit on death of the relevant exemption test policy;

(b) where on the tenth or on any subsequent policy anniversary of a life insurance policy, the accumulating fund thereof (computed without regard to any policy loan then outstanding in respect of the policy) exceeds 250 per cent of the accumulating fund thereof on its third preceding policy anniversary (computed without regard to any policy loan then outstanding in respect of the policy), each exemption test policy deemed by subsection (3) to have been issued before that time in respect of the life insurance policy shall be deemed to have been issued on the later of the date of that third preceding policy anniversary and the date on which it was deemed by subsection (3) to have been issued; and

(c) where at one or more times after December 1, 1982

(i) a prescribed premium has been paid by a taxpayer in respect of an interest in a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) last acquired on or before that date, or

(ii) an interest in a life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract or a deposit administration fund policy) issued on or before that date has been acquired by a taxpayer from the person who held the interest continuously since that date, the policy shall be deemed to have been an exempt policy from the date of its issue until the earliest of those times that occurred after December 1, 1982; and

(d) a life insurance policy that ceases to be an exempt policy (other than by reason of its conversion into an annuity contract) on a policy anniversary shall be deemed to be an exempt policy on that anniversary

(i) if, had that anniversary occurred 60 days after the date on which it did in fact occur, the policy would have been an exempt policy on that later date, or

(ii) if the person whose life is insured under the policy dies on that anniversary or within 60 days thereafter.

(a) with respect to a life insurance policy issued after March 26, 1992, other than a policy for which written application was made on or before March 26, 1992; and

(b) with respect to a life insurance policy amended at any time after March 26, 1992 to increase the amount of the benefit on death.

S. 306 added by P.C. 1983-3530, s. 5, November 17, 1983, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 24, 1983, applicable to taxation years commencing after 1982.

307. Accumulating funds — (1) For the purposes of this Part and section 12.2, paragraph 56(1)(d.1) and section 148 of the Act, "accumulating fund" at any particular time means,

(a) in respect of a taxpayer's interest in an annuity contract (other than a contract issued by a life insurer), the amount that is the greater of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the cash surrender value of his interest at that time exceeds the amount payable, if any, in respect of a loan outstanding at that time made under the contract in respect of the interest, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the present value at that time of future payments to be made out of the contract in respect of his interest

exceeds the aggregate of

(B) the present value at that time of future premiums to be paid under the contract in respect of his interest, and

(C) the amount payable, if any, in respect of a loan outstanding at that time, made under the contract in respect of his interest;

(b) in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life insurance policy (other than an exemption test policy or an annuity contract to which paragraph (1)(a) applies), the product obtained when,

(i) where the policy is not a deposit administration fund policy and the particular time is immediately after the death of any person on whose life the life insurance policy is issued or effected, the aggregate of the maximum amounts that could be determined by the life insurer immediately before the death in respect of the policy under paragraph 1401(1)(c) and subparagraph 1401(1)(d)(i) if the mortality rates used were adjusted to reflect the assumption that the death would occur at the time and in the manner that it did occur, and

(ii) in any other case, the maximum amount that could be determined at that particular time by the life insurer under paragraph 1401(1)(a), computed as though there were only one deposit administration fund policy, or under paragraph 1401(1)(c), as the case may be, in respect of the policy

(iii) the taxpayer's proportionate interest in the policy, assuming for the purposes of this paragraph that the life insurer carried on its life insurance business in Canada, its taxation year ended at the particular time and the policy was a life insurance policy in Canada; and

(c) in respect of an exemption test policy,

(i) where the policy was issued at least 20 years before the particular time, the amount that would be determined at that particular time by the life insurer under clause 1401(1)(c)(ii)(A) in respect of the policy if the insurer's taxation year ended at that particular time, and

(ii) in any other case, the product obtained when the amount that would be determined under subparagraph (i) in respect of the policy on its twentieth policy anniversary is multiplied by the quotient obtained when the number of years since the policy was issued is divided by 20.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), when computing the accumulating fund of an interest described in

(a) paragraph (1)(a), the amounts determined under clauses (1)(a)(ii)(A) and (B) shall be computed using,

(i) where an interest rate for a period used by the issuer when the contract was issued in determining the terms of the contract was less than any rate so used for a subsequent period, the single rate that would, if it applied for each period, have produced the same terms, and

(ii) in any other case, the rates used by the issuer when the contract was issued in determining the terms of the contract;

(b) paragraph (1)(b), where an interest rate used for a period by a life insurer in computing the relevant amounts in paragraph 1403(1)(a) or (b) is determined under paragraph 1403(1)(c), (d) or (e), as the case may be, and that rate is less than an interest rate so determined for a subsequent period, the single rate that could, if it applied for each period, have been used in determining the premiums for the policy shall be used; and

(c) paragraph (1)(c)

(i) the rates of interest and mortality used and the age of the person whose life is insured shall be the same as those used in computing the amounts described in paragraph 1403(1)(a) or (b) in respect of the life insurance policy in respect of which the exemption test policy was issued except that

(A) where the life insurance policy is one to which paragraph 1403(1)(e) applies and the amount determined under subparagraph 1401(1)(c)(i) in respect of that policy is greater than the amount determined under subparagraph 1401(1)(c)(ii) in respect thereof, the rates of interest and mortality used may be those used in computing the cash surrender values of that policy, and

(B) where an interest rate for a period otherwise determined under this subparagraph in respect of that interest is less than an interest rate so determined for a subsequent period, the single rate that could, if it applied for each period, have been used in determining the premiums for the life insurance policy shall be used, and

(ii) notwithstanding subparagraph (i),

(A) where the rates referred to in subparagraph (i) do not exist, the minimum guaranteed rates of interest used under the life insurance policy to determine cash surrender values and the rates of mortality under the Commissioners 1958 Standard Ordinary Mortality Table, as published in Volume X of the Transactions of the Society of Actuaries, relevant to the person whose life is insured under the life insurance policy shall be used, or

(B) where, in respect of the life insurance policy in respect of which the exemption test policy was issued, the period over which the amount determined under clause 1401(1)(c)(ii)(A) does not extend to the date determined under subparagraph 306(3)(d)(ii), the weighted arithmetic mean of the interest rates used to determine such amount shall be used for the period that is after that period and before that date.

(3) Notwithstanding paragraph (2)(c),

(a) in the case of a life insurance policy issued after April 30, 1985, no rate of interest used for the purpose of determining the accumulating fund in respect of an exemption test policy issued in respect thereof shall be less than 4 per cent per annum; and

(b) in the case of a life insurance policy issued before May 1, 1985, no rate of interest used for the purpose of determining the accumulating fund in respect of an exemption test policy issued in respect thereof shall be less than 3 per cent per annum.

(4) For the purposes of paragraph (1)(c),

(a) where on the date of issue of an exemption test policy the person whose life is insured has attained the age of 75 years, the references in paragraph (1)(c) to "20" and "twentieth" shall be read as references to "10" and "tenth" respectively; and

(b) where on the date of issue of an exemption test policy the person whose life is insured has attained the age of 66 years but not the age of 75 years, the references in paragraph (1)(c) to "20" and "twentieth" shall be read as references to

(i) the number obtained when the number of years by which the age of the person whose life is insured exceeds 65 years is subtracted from 20, and

(ii) the adjectival form of the number obtained by performing the computation described in subparagraph (i), respectively.

(5) In this section, any amount determined by reference to section 1401 shall be determined

(a) without regard to section 1402;

(b) as if each reference therein to the term "policy loan" were read as if that term had the meaning assigned by paragraph 148(9)(e) [148(9)"policy loan"] of the Act; and

(c) as if clauses 1401(1)(c)(i)(B) and 1401(1)(c)(ii)(C) were read without reference to the expression "or the interest thereon that has accrued to the insurer at the end of the year".

308. Net cost of pure insurance and mortality gains and losses — (1) For the purposes of subparagraph 20(1)(e.2)(ii) and paragraph (a) of the description of L in the definition "adjusted cost basis" in subsection 148(9) of the Act, the net cost of pure insurance for a year in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life insurance policy is the product obtained when the probability, computed on the basis of the rates of mortality under the 1969-75 mortality tables of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries published in Volume XVI of the Proceedings of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries or on the basis described in subsection (1.1), that a person who has the same relevant characteristics as the person whose life is insured will die in the year is multiplied by the amount by which

(a) the benefit on death in respect of the taxpayer's interest at the end of the year

(b) the accumulating fund (determined without regard to any policy loan outstanding) in respect of the taxpayer's interest in the policy at the end of the year or the cash surrender value of such interest at the end of the year, depending on the method regularly followed by the life insurer in computing net cost of pure insurance.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-87R2: Policyholders' income from life insurance policies; IT-309R2: Premiums on life insurance used as collateral.

(1.1) Where premiums for a particular class of life insurance policy offered by a life insurer do not depend directly on smoking or sex classification, the probability referred to in subsection (1) may be determined using rates of mortality otherwise determined provided that for each age for such class of life insurance policy, the expected value of the aggregate net cost of pure insurance, calculated using such rates of mortality, is equal to the expected value of the aggregate net cost of pure insurance, calculated using the rates of mortality under the 1969-75 mortality tables of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries published in Volume XVI of the Proceedings of the Canadian Institute of Actuaries.

(2) Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of this section and subparagraph 148(9)(a)(v.1) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"G] of the Act, a "mortality gain" immediately before the end of any calendar year after 1982 in respect of a taxpayer's interest in a life annuity contract means such reasonable amount in respect of his interest therein at that time that the life insurer determines to be the increase to the accumulating fund in respect of the interest that occurred during that year as a consequence of the survival to the end of the year of one or more of the annuitants thereunder.

(3) Subject to subsection (4), for the purposes of this section and subparagraph 148(9)(a)(xi) [148(9)"adjusted cost basis"(c)] of the Act, a "mortality loss" immediately before a particular time after 1982 in respect of an interest in a life annuity contract disposed of immediately after that particular time as a consequence of the death of an annuitant thereunder means such reasonable amount that the life insurer determines to be the decrease, as a consequence of the death, in the accumulating fund in respect of the interest assuming that, in determining such decrease, the accumulating fund immediately after the death is determined in the manner described in subparagraph 307(1)(b)(i).

(4) In determining an amount for a year in respect of an interest in a life annuity contract under subsection (2) or (3), the expected value of the mortality gains in respect of the interest for the year shall be equal to the expected value of the mortality losses in respect of the interest for the year and the mortality rates for the year used in computing those expected values shall be those that would be relevant to the interest and that are specified under such of paragraphs 1403(1)(c), (d) and (e) as are applicable.

(ii) is not made as a result of the exercise of a conversion privilege under the policy;

(e) a change arising from the provision of an additional benefit on death under a participating life insurance policy (within the meaning assigned by paragraph 138(12)(k) [138(12)"participating life insurance policy"] of the Act) as, on account or in lieu of payment of, or in satisfaction of

unless any part of such increase is attributable to a prescribed premium paid in respect of a policy or to income earned on such a premium; and

(3) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (2), a life insurance policy that is issued as a result of the exercise of a renewal privilege provided under the terms of another policy as they read on December 1, 1982 shall be deemed to be a continuation of that other policy.

804. Interpretation — In this Part, "registered non-resident insurer" means a non-resident corporation ap-

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), s. 1, will amend s. 804 to read as above, applicable after December 12, 1991.

Technical Notes: Section 804 defines the term "registered non-resident insurer" as a non-resident corporation registered to carry on business in Canada under Part VIII of the Canadian and British Insurance Companies Act or under the Foreign Insurance Companies Act. Those Acts have been replaced by the Insurance Companies Act. The reference to those Acts is replaced with a reference to the Insurance Companies Act, and the terminology has been changed to refer to a company "approved", rather than "registered", under the new Act.

This amendment applies after December 12, 1991 to coincide with the coming-into-force of the Insurance Companies Act.

(b) the aggregate of

(i) all allowances computed under this section as it read in its application to each of the taxation years of the corporation that ended before 1972 to the extent that for those taxation years such allowances reduced the amount on which the corporation was taxable under subsection 110B(1) of the Act as it read in its application to those taxation years, and Interpretation Bulletins: IT-137R3: Additional tax on certain corporations carrying on business in Canada.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 808(1.1)

(1.1) Notwithstanding subsection (1), if a corporation becomes resident in Canada at a particular time, the corporation's allowance in respect of its investment in property in Canada for its last taxation year that ended before the particular time is prescribed to be nil.

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, s. 1, will add 808(1.1), applicable to corporations that become resident in Canada after February 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 808(1) of the Regulations specifies the amount of a corporation's allowance in respect of investment in property in Canada for the purposes of the "branch tax" imposed under Part XIV of the Act.

New subsection 808(1.1) provides that where a corporation becomes resident in Canada, the corporation's investment allowance for the taxation year that is deemed to end immediately before immigration is nil. Since the corporation will be unable to claim an investment allowance, it will be liable to pay branch tax on any unremitted profits of a Canadian branch arising in the year or deferred in respect of previous years. Effectively, for an immigrating corporation, unremitted profits of a Canadian branch are treated similarly to the undistributed surplus of a Canadian corporation in which the immigrating corporation holds shares, which is deemed to be distributed as a dividend by paragraph 128.1(1)(c.1) of the Act.

New subsection 808(1.1) applies to corporations that become resident in Canada after February 23, 1998.

Department of Finance News Release, June 11, 1998: GOVERNMENT PROVIDES TAX RELIEF TO SMALL BUSINESSES FOR YEAR 2000 COMPUTER COMPLIANCE

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced tax relief for small- and medium-sized businesses to address the year 2000 computer compliance problem. This announcement falls within the wider context of the government's role in responding to the year 2000 challenge, which is being jointly co-ordinated by Industry Minister John Manley and Treasury Board President Marcel Massé. Under the tax relief announced today, accelerated capital cost allowance (CCA) deductions of up to $50,000 will be provided to small- and medium-sized firms for computer hardware and software acquired to replace systems that are not year 2000 compliant. This will allow smaller firms to deduct 100 per cent of eligible expenditures in the year in which they occur.

The year 2000 compliance problem is a design flaw in software applications and in certain microprocessors related to storage of the year designation that could play havoc when the calendar year changes from 1999 to 2000. Many software applications such as accounting systems and certain types of computer hardware — including desktop computers, networks, and the microprocessor chips that control transportation systems, machinery, elevators, office equipment, lights, building climate, and security systems — could be affected. Although many firms have taken action to ensure that their computer systems will be ready for the year 2000, a large number still have not addressed this issue. "The year 2000 computer problem presents a serious economic challenge for the Canadian economy. Businesses must act promptly if they are going to meet that challenge," Minister Martin said. "That's why we are providing targeted tax relief to help ease the financial constraints faced by small- and medium-sized businesses in addressing this issue."

Specifically, an accelerated CCA deduction will be provided to small- and medium-sized enterprises on the cost of computer hardware and software acquired between January 1, 1998 and June 30, 1999 in order to replace equipment that is not year 2000 compliant.

For eligible computer hardware and software, accelerated CCA deductions, combined with the regular CCA claims, will result in 100 per cent of the cost of eligible expenditures being deductible in the year of acquisition.

Tax relief for small- and medium-sized firms to help them address the year 2000 issue was one of the recommendations made by both the House of Commons Standing Committee on Industry and the Task Force Year 2000, a private sector-led group set up by Minister Manley. The Task Force of 14 chief executives was established in September 1997 to examine the preparedness of Canadian business to accommodate the transition to the year 2000.

Mr. Martin said he wanted to immediately announce the tax relief for small- and medium-sized businesses to give them maximum notice so they can take advantage of the assistance, as well as to encourage them to give top priority to the year 2000 computer compliance problem.

Attached is a Backgrounder that provides more details about how the program works, and Draft Regulations giving effect to this announcement.

Tax Treatment of Year 2000 Expenditures

The accelerated capital cost allowance deduction being provided to small- and medium-sized businesses builds upon statements made in the February 1998 budget and signals the government's continued concern about the year 2000 preparedness of businesses, especially smaller firms.

Current expenditures

The February 1998 budget clarified the tax treatment of certain year 2000 expenditures and Revenue Canada issued a technical bulletin on this issue (Technical News No. 12). Specifically, expenditures made only to ensure functionality in the year 2000 (i.e., a repair) are fully deductible in the year incurred. In these instances, taxpaying firms would be provided with immediate tax relief.

Computer chips and firmware

The government is also confirming that expenditures on computer chips and firmware (software that is embedded in a computer chip) will be treated like other year 2000-related costs. That is, expenditures on computer chips and firmware made only to ensure functionality in the year 2000 are fully deductible in the year incurred.

Capital expenditures

Concern has been expressed that small- and medium-sized businesses need to address the year 2000 problem on a priority basis, but may face certain financial constraints. This was one of the specific concerns raised by the House of Commons Standing Committee on Industry in its recent report on the year 2000 problem. The government proposes to provide additional immediate tax relief to small- and medium-sized firms by providing an immediate write off of 100 per cent of the cost of computer hardware and software acquired to address their year 2000 problem.

The write off will take the form of an accelerated CCA deduction claimable in the year of acquisition, thereby effectively permitting small- and medium-sized enterprises to deduct immediately CCA that would otherwise have only been deductible over future years:

- for eligible computer hardware and systems software (i.e., Class 10(f) assets) — the accelerated CCA deduction will be 85 per cent of cost (this, combined with the regular CCA claim, will result in a deduction of 100 per cent of the cost of eligible expenditures in the year of acquisition); and
- for eligible application software (i.e., Class 12(o) assets) — the accelerated CCA deduction will be 50 per cent of cost (this, combined with the regular CCA claim, will result in a deduction of 100 per cent of the cost of eligible expenditures in the year of acquisition).

In order to be eligible, the computer hardware and software must be year 2000 compliant and be acquired to replace non-compliant hardware and/or software acquired before 1998. To encourage small businesses to act in an expeditious manner, only expenditures for hardware and software acquired during the period January 1, 1998 to June 30, 1999 will be eligible.

Revenue Canada will accept an election, supported by a letter, filed with the tax return, that identifies the eligible property being acquired, its cost and the date of acquisition and a description of the property being replaced. This letter will fulfil the requirement to make an election in prescribed manner.

To focus the benefit on smaller businesses, the maximum additional deduction will be limited to $50,000 per taxpayer/partnership. In addition, only unincorporated firms and corporations not subject to the Large Corporations Tax will be eligible (i.e., incorporated firms with taxable capital of less than $10 million and unincorporated businesses). There will be special rules for corporate groups and partnerships that have corporate members.

Revenue Canada Q & A September 1998: Millennium Bug Expenditures: The Department of Finance has released amendments to the Income Tax Regulations (the Regulations) to help small- and medium-sized businesses address the Year 2000 computer compliance problem.

These amendments will allow accelerated capital cost allowance (CCA) deductions of up to $50,000 for small- and medium-sized firms for computer hardware and software they acquire between January 1, 1998, and June 30, 1999, to replace similar property they acquired before 1998 that is not Year 2000 compliant.

Q1. What is the amount of the accelerated CCA?

A1. Under proposed amendments to the Regulations, eligible taxpayers will be entitled to a maximum of $50,000 of accelerated CCA so that eligible expenditures that are made to replace property that is not Year 2000 compliant may be subject to a full write-off for tax purposes in the year the property is acquired. The accelerated CCA can be claimed in any tax year in which eligible expenditures are made. In cases where the eligible taxpayer is part of an associated group, the $50,000 limit has to be shared between members of the group.

Example

On July 1, 1998, Xco purchases new hardware and software to replace its computer system that was acquired in 1987 and is not Year 2000 compliant. The hardware costs $50,000 and the software costs $50,000.

Regular CCA

Hardware ($50,000 × 30% × 1/2) $7,500

Software ($50,000 × 100% × 1/2) $25,000

Accelerated CCA

$50,000 × 85%	$42,500
$50,000 × 50%	$25,000
	$67,500
Maximum accelerated CCA	$50,000

Q2. How is the accelerated CCA claimed?

A2. To claim the accelerated CCA, an eligible taxpayer has to file a letter with their return for the year in which the eligible property is acquired. The letter should include a description of the property acquired, its cost, the date it was acquired, a description of the non-compliant property it replaces, and the date that the non-compliant property was acquired. The taxpayer must be able to substantiate the basis for the material risk of malfunctioning because of the change to the calendar year 2000.

Q3. Who can claim the accelerated CCA?

A3. The accelerated CCA can be claimed by any eligible taxpayer that provides the letter described above. However, the accelerated CCA cannot be claimed by:

- a large corporation [as defined in subsection 225.1(8) of the Act]; or
- a partnership, any member of which as a large corporation [as defined in subsection 225.1(8) of the Act].

Q4. What expenditures qualify for the accelerated CCA?

A4. To qualify for the accelerated CCA, an expenditure has to meet all of the following requirements. The expenditure has to:

- be made between January 1, 1998, and June 30, 1999;
- acquire property included in:
- paragraph (f) of Class 10; or
- paragraph (o) of Class 12; and
- replace property described in either of these paragraphs that was acquired before 1998 and that has a material risk of malfunctioning because of the change of the calendar year to 2000.

Q5. What types of equipment are covered under paragraph (f) of Class 10 and paragraph (o) of Class 12? Are fax machines, printers, security systems, or other machinery considered?

A5. Paragraph (f) of Class 10 refers to general purpose electronic data processing equipment and systems software, while paragraph (o) of Class 12 includes computer software other than systems software. Fax machines and other office equipment or machinery are not included in either of these paragraphs and are therefore not eligible for the accelerated CCA.

Q6. Does this apply to capital additions to existing property?

A6. Betterments to existing property included in paragraph (f) of Class 10 and paragraph (o) of Class 12 are eligible for the accelerated allowance as long as:

- the expenditure was made between January 1, 1998, and June 30, 1999, to replace property described in either of these paragraphs that was acquired before 1998; and
- the property has a material risk of malfunctioning because of the change of the calendar year to 2000.

Q7. How is the amount of $50,000 shared among an associated group; does an agreement have to be filed?

A7. No agreement has to be filed. However, members of an associated group should agree on the way in which the allowance will be shared. Any part of the allowance that is claimed by a member of an associated group will reduce the amount that another member of the group can claim.

Q8. Does Technical Newsletter number 12 still apply?

A8. Yes, Technical Newsletter number 12, which discusses whether a particular Year 2000 expenditure should be expensed or treated as a capital expenditure, remains relevant. The Department of Finance has indicated, in their backgrounder accompanying the amendments to the Regulations, that expenditures on computer chips and firmware (software that is embedded in a computer chip) made to ensure functionality in the Year 2000 (i.e., a repair) are fully deductible in the year they are incurred.

Q9. I was a member of a partnership during the year. However, now I am not. No acquisitions fitting this description were made before our dissolution, but I now want to take advantage of the accelerated CCA. Are there any restrictions for me?

A9. Partnerships that have a large corporation as a member are not entitled to the accelerated CCA. A taxpayer who, in a particular tax year, is not a member of a partnership would not be prevented from claiming the accelerated CCA. However, the amount of the taxpayer's claim may be restricted if a corporation claimed all or part of the accelerated CCA in a tax year in which the corporation was associated with the taxpayer.

Q10. What happens if I upgrade, i.e., purchase more sophisticated versions of the product that also happen to be Year 2000 compliant? Is only a part of the purchase price allowable?

A10. Whether a less expensive product exists to fix the taxpayer's Year 2000 compliance problem is irrelevant when determining the amount of accelerated CCA. The accelerated CCA is calculated on the basis of the capital cost to the taxpayer of eligible property acquired during the year. However, when determining whether property is eligible, it remains a question of fact as to whether the property was acquired to replace the existing non-compliant property.

Q11. What if my business is operating in a loss position? Can I still claim 100% of the cost of my computer equipment? Can I carry forward the loss?

A11. Businesses operating in a loss position are entitled to claim the allowance. These businesses can also choose not to claim the accelerated CCA and save regular CCA deductions for future years. The accelerated CCA has no effect on the ability of a taxpayer to carry forward any losses, whether or not the losses are created by claiming the accelerated CCA.

Q12. Is this CCA deduction also available to large firms?

A12. A large corporation, as defined in subsection 225.1(8), is not entitled to claim the accelerated CCA. Under that subsection, a large corporation for a particular tax year generally includes a corporation that has to pay the large corporation tax under Part I.3.

Department of Finance news release, June 2, 1999: Government Proposes to Extend Deadline for Tax Relief to Small Business for Year 2000 Computer Compliance

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced that the Government of Canada is proposing to extend the deadline for the acquisition of computer equipment eligible for tax relief from June 30, 1999 to October 31, 1999. This will be of benefit to small- and medium-sized businesses in addressing the year 2000 issue. This initiative falls within the wider context of the government's response to the year 2000 challenge under the joint coordination of Treasury Board President Marcel Massé and Industry Minister John Manley.

Originally announced on June 11, 1998, the program provides accelerated capital cost allowance deductions of up to $50,000 to small- and medium-sized firms that acquire computer hardware and software to replace systems that are not year 2000 compliant. This will allow smaller firms to deduct 100% of eligible expenditures in the year in which they are incurred.

An extension of the deadline to qualify for the tax relief measure was one of the recommendations made by the House of Commons Standing Committee on Industry in its report of May 31, 1999. Although many firms have taken action to ensure that their computer systems will be ready for the year 2000, some have still not addressed this important issue. The extension to October 31 will give small- and medium-sized firms more time to assess their year 2000 readiness and take any needed action.

The October 31 deadline will also encourage firms to act promptly. "I encourage all firms that have not already done so to give top priority to this important issue," Minister Martin said.

(b) the subject of a lease at that time to a person with whom the taxpayer deals at arm's length and that, at the time the lease was entered into, was a lease for a term of more than one year, and

(c) the subject of a lease of property where the tangible property, other than exempt property, that was the subject of the lease had, at the time the lease was entered into, an aggregate fair market value in excess of $25,000,

(1.14) For the purposes of subsection (1.11) and notwithstanding subsection (1.13), where a taxpayer referred to in subsection (16) so elects in the taxpayer's return of income under Part I of the Act for a taxation year in respect of the year and all subsequent taxation years, all of the property of the taxpayer that is the subject of leases entered into in those years shall be deemed not to be exempt property for those years and the aggregate fair market value of all of the tangible property that is the subject of each such lease shall be deemed to have been, at the time the lease was entered into, in excess of $25,000.

(b) as a result of the renegotiation, the amount paid or payable by the lessee of the property for the use of, or the right to use, the property is altered in respect of a period after that time (otherwise than by reason of an addition or alteration to which subsection (1.19) applies),

the following rules apply:

(c) the original lease shall be deemed to have expired and the renegotiated lease shall be deemed to be a new lease of the property entered into at that time, and

(d) paragraph (1.13)(b) shall not apply in respect of any period before that time during which the property was leased by the lessee or a person with whom the lessee did not deal at arm's length.

(b) computer software tax shelter property, or

Application: The August 6, 1997 draft regulations, subsec. 1(1), will add para. 1100(17)(b), applicable generally to fiscal periods and taxation years of a taxpayer or partnership that end after August 5, 1997, but see the full application reproduced under new subsections 1100(20.1) and (20.2).

Technical Notes: Regulation 1100(17) defines "leasing property" for the purpose of restricting the amount of capital cost allowance ("CCA") that may be deducted in respect of such property. Under the leasing property rules, the amount of CCA that a taxpayer may deduct in respect of "leasing property" cannot exceed the taxpayer's rental, leasing or royalty income from leasing property (computed without reference to any CCA claim). Regulation 1100(17) is amended to exclude from the definition of "leasing property" computer software that is "computer software tax shelter property" (discussed below). Generally, this amendment applies to fiscal periods and taxation years of a taxpayer or partnership that end after August 5, 1997.

(c) property referred to in paragraph (w) of Class 10 or in paragraph (n) of Class 12 in Schedule II, where such property is owned by the taxpayer or the partnership, whether jointly with another person or otherwise, if, in the taxation year in respect of which the expression is being applied, the property was used by the taxpayer or the partnership principally for the purpose of gaining or producing gross revenue that is rent, royalty or leasing revenue, but for greater certainty, does not include a property leased by the taxpayer or the partnership to a lessee, in the ordinary course of the taxpayer's or partnership's business of selling goods or rendering services, under an agreement by which the lessee undertakes to use the property to carry on the business of selling, or promoting the sale of, the taxpayer's or partnership's goods or services.

(B) a vendor of the property,

(C) a broker or dealer in securities, or

(D) a person who does not deal at arm's length with a person referred to in clause (A) or (B).

For the purpose of this application, computer software is deemed to be acquired by a taxpayer or partnership no earlier than the time and only to the extent that its cost is considered to be an expenditure made or incurred by the taxpayer or partnership for the purposes of the Income Tax Act, determined without reference to subsec. 1100(20.1) of the Regulations.

Technical Notes: New Regulation 1100(20.1) provides that the amount of capital cost allowance ("CCA") that a taxpayer may deduct in respect of "computer software tax shelter property" cannot exceed the taxpayer's income from the business in which such property is used, computed without reference to any CCA deduction in respect of such property. Computer software tax shelter property is defined in new Regulation 1100(20.2) to be computer software that is depreciable property of a prescribed class of a person or partnership where

- the person's or partnership's interest in the property is a tax shelter investment, or
- an interest in the person or partnership is a tax shelter investment.

Generally, these amendments apply to fiscal periods and taxation years of a taxpayer or partnership that end after August 5, 1997.

Department of Finance news release, August 6, 1997: New Rules Proposed for Computer Software Tax Shelters

Finance Minister Paul Martin and National Revenue Minister Herb Dhaliwal today issued a joint announcement that will improve the fairness of the tax system and prevent abuses related to computer software tax shelters.

Minister Martin today proposed to amend the Income Tax Regulations governing "leasing property rules" and to enact new "computer software tax shelter property rules". The "computer software tax shelter property rules" will restrict the deductibility of capital cost allowance for computer software that is not otherwise already subject to the leasing property rules; the deductibility will generally be limited to the amount of income earned by the business in which the software is used.

Mr. Dhaliwal stated that "Revenue Canada has been reviewing and auditing tax shelter arrangements, including computer software promotions, to ensure that they meet the requirements of the tax law". An increase in the auditing of tax shelters was announced by the Minister of National Revenue in a joint press release with Finance Minister Paul Martin on December 1, 1994.

Further information on the changes to the Income Tax Regulations and details of the various tax rules used by Revenue Canada in issuing reassessments is provided in the attached Backgrounder. Copies of the draft Income Tax Regulations together with detailed explanatory notes are available from the Department of Finance Distribution Centre (613) 943-8665 at a cost of $10.

Backgrounder

A tax shelter is any property promoted to an investor on the basis that losses or other deductions, or benefits such as tax credits or revenue guarantees, will be available to the taxpayer within four years, the total of which equals or exceeds the amount the investor pays for the property.

Potential investors in tax shelters should be cautious and exercise due diligence before investing in a tax shelter. In particular, the existence of a tax shelter registration number in respect of a promotion should not be taken as government approval for the promotion. Tax shelter selling documents are required to display a tax shelter identification number and to indicate that the identification number is for administrative proposes only and does not in any way confirm the entitlement of an investor to claim any tax benefit associated with the tax shelter. Revenue Canada uses tax shelter identification numbers to, for example, identify for audit purposes investors participating in tax shelter arrangements. It is prudent, therefore, for investors to examine all documents carefully and consult an independent tax advisor before purchasing a tax shelter. Matters that should be considered include, for example, whether the tax shelter features:

- a lack of business activity, or an activity with no reasonable expectation of profit;
- unreasonable or inflated expenses, or overvalued assets; or
- limited-recourse financing, including promises that debts will be forgiven or not be collected, or offers of financing arrangements that indefinitely defer an investor's payment.

Over the last four years, the government has implemented a number of measures countering the proliferation of transactions designed primarily to sell income tax shelters to investors, including the "limited-recourse debt" rules, the "matchable expenditure" rules and the broadening of the "minimum tax" base to include all tax shelter losses. Nevertheless, the government remains concerned about "computer software tax shelter promotions" being marketed to investors. In particular, computer software tax shelters registered under the "tax shelter identification rules" exceeded $1 billion in 1996 with $190 million in actual sales. A typical software tax shelter is as follows:

Investment

Cash (over 2 years)	$ 45,000
Long-term note (often for a 10-year term)	$105,000
Total Purchase Price of Tax Shelter	$150,000

Tax Benefits being Claimed

	Tax Loss	Tax Rate	Tax Savings
The first taxation year:	$ 75,000	.5	$37,500
The second taxation year:	$ 75,000	.5	$37,500
Total	$150,000	.5	$75,000

Revenue Canada Audits:

Concurrent with the announcement of the "limited-recourse debt" rules on December 1, 1994 (Press Release 94-112), the Minister of National Revenue indicated that Revenue Canada would increase its audits of "computer software" tax shelter promotions. In audits completed to date, Revenue Canada has identified a number of non-compliance issues with these tax shelters with resulting reassessments in excess of $20 million. As well, audits involving up to $230 million in computer software tax shelter losses are in various stages of progress.

Losses in respect of these tax shelter promotions are normally not deductible, in whole or part, if:

1. The proposed activity does not have a reasonable expectation of profit;
2. The value of the software is inflated or unreasonable;
3. The notes payable as part of the purchase price are not genuine, are contingent liabilities, or their value is inflated;
4. The investors claim losses for which they are not truly at risk;
5. The tax shelter promotion does not comply with the capital cost allowance leasing property rules that preclude capital cost allowance claims that would otherwise create or increase an investor's loss;
6. The software has not been acquired by the entity in question or it is not available for use in the relevant taxation year;
7. The tax shelter was sold before a tax shelter identification number was obtained by the promoter; or
8. The general anti-avoidance rule (GAAR) applies to the tax shelter promotion.

Some computer software promotions are currently being marketed to investors on the assumption that the computer software will be used to produce non-software products for sale rather than to earn rent, royalty or leasing income from the licensing or distribution of copies of the software (i.e., marketed on the basis that the property is not "leasing property"). Even in cases where the software is not a leasing property, however, the other above- mentioned non-compliance issues may arise during the course of an audit and result in a reassessment of an investor's tax return.

The changes in the Income Tax Regulations proposed by the Minister of Finance will resolve disputes on many of these issues for the future by, in effect, extending stop-loss rules similar to the leasing loss rules to all computer software tax shelters regardless of whether the computer software comes within the conventional concept of "leasing property". In this way disputes between Revenue Canada and taxpayers on the effectiveness of these tax shelters will be reduced and potential investors will be protected from those promoting computer software tax shelters which are determined to be ineffective under the tax law.

Department of Finance news release, October 28, 1997: Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced further transitional relief from the rules announced on August 6, 1997 (Finance Canada News Release 97-069), which restrict the deduction of capital cost allowance in respect of computer software tax shelters.

Minister Martin indicated that the extended relief will apply to certain public offerings of computer software tax shelters, namely those that would have been eligible for transitional relief under the rules released August 6, 1997, but for the fact that

- the computer software was not identified in the public document; or
- the 10% minimum sales threshold had not been met.

The new restrictions will not apply to these tax shelters where

- the computer software upon which the tax shelter is based is acquired by the tax shelter before November 29, 1997 from a person resident in Canada who developed the software; and
- the total amount raised pursuant to the particular prospectus or offering memorandum does not exceed $100 million and is raised before 1998.

In this way, most of those offerings that were under serious contemplation as of the date the new rules were announced will be allowed to proceed, subject to all existing legislative requirements. In this context, the Minister emphasized that this transitional relief should not be taken to indicate government approval of these tax shelters. All computer software tax shelters will be closely audited by Revenue Canada. The Minister noted that the public should be aware that many of the investors in computer software tax shelters that Revenue Canada has audited to date have been reassessed to deny all or a portion of the deductions claimed.

As well, the Minister indicated that in the attached revised transitional rules, the references in the August 6, 1997, press release to "November 1997" have been changed to refer to 1998.

(v) the funds raised pursuant to the terms of the memorandum are so raised before 1995.

Notwithstanding the above,

(a) para. 1100(21)(e) applies after 1994 in respect of property acquired at any time by a partnership where [draft] ITA subsec. 40(3.1) does not apply to a member of the partnership before the end of the partnership's fifth fiscal period ending after 1994 by reason only of the application of Bill C-59, subsec. 12(6) (the coming-into-force of subsec. 40(3.1)), and

(b) para. 1100(21)(e) applies after 1994 in respect of property acquired after February 21, 1994 and before 1995 by a partnership pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into by the partnership after February 21, 1994 and before 1995, where

(vii) the producer of the production receives before 1995 a commitment for funding or other government assistance (or an advance ruling or active status letter in respect of eligibility for such funding or other government assistance) for the production from a federal or provincial government agency the mandate of which is related to the provision of assistance to film productions in Canada, or

(viii) the production is a continuation of a television series an episode of which satisfies the requirements of subpara. (vi).

Technical Notes: Subsection 1100(21) requires that the depreciable cost of a taxpayer's interest in a certified feature film or certified production be reduced by certain amounts, including certain revenue guarantees provided in respect of the investment.

Subsection 1100(21) is amended to require that the depreciable cost of such an interest be reduced by the portion of any debt obligation of the investor outstanding at the end of a particular year that is convertible into an interest in the film or tape or the taxpayer.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 22, 1994: The federal government is committed to the continued viability of the Canadian film industry. Currently, assistance is provided to the industry through direct expenditure programs as well as income tax incentives for certified Canadian films. The government is concerned, however, that film financing mechanisms have been developed to provide tax benefits to investors in excess of those contemplated when the incentives were introduced and in a manner inconsistent with the limited partnership at-risk rules. Generally, these financings depend on an overallocation of benefits to investors through the use of convertible debt.

In particular, some film limited partnerships have raised debt that is convertible into interests in the partnership. After the tax benefits and cash distributions have been allocated to the original limited partners, the lender converts its loan into a partnership interest. In effect, proceeds from convertible loans are used to acquire films or video tapes at a capital cost which is, when allocated to the original limited partners in the form of capital cost allowance (CCA), in excess of the amount that would otherwise be allocated to such limited partners if the lender were considered to be a partner from the time the loan was made. The combination of this excess allocation of CCA to the original limited partners and the distribution of revenue to those partners ensures that the original limited partners have little or no investment risk.

Accordingly, this budget proposes to amend the Income Tax Regulations to reduce the capital cost of a film or video tape acquired after February 22, 1994 by the amount of any loan that is convertible into an interest in the film or a partnership that holds the film or video tape until such time as the convertible loan is exchanged for a partnership interest or repaid. Transitional relief will be provided for property acquired pursuant to an agreement in writing entered into before February 22, 1994 or pursuant to a prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum filed before February 22, 1994 and where required by law, accepted for filing by a public authority in Canada pursuant to and in accordance with securities legislation of Canada or of any province.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1100(21)

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 27, 1995: The elements of the existing film tax incentive to be eliminated for films acquired after 1995 (and films acquired in 1995 in respect of which the new credit is claimed) include the following:

- exemption from the reduction of CCA in respect of certain revenue guarantees under Income Tax Regulation 1100(21).

Division III — Property Rules

1102. (1) Property not included — The classes of property described in this Part and in Schedule II shall be deemed not to include property

(a) the cost of which would be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income if the Act were read without reference to sections 66 to 66.4 of the Act;

History: Para. 1102(1)(a) amended by P.C. 1999-629, subsec. 2(1), April 15, 1999, Canada Gazette, Part II, April 28, 1999, applicable to taxation years that end after December 5, 1996.

(a.1) the cost of which is included in the taxpayer's Canadian renewable and conservation expense (within the meaning assigned by section 1219);

Application: The September 16, 1997 draft regulations, s. 1, will add para. 1102(1)(a.1), applicable to expenses incurred after December 5, 1996.

Technical Notes: [The following Technical Notes were released with the December 5, 1996 draft regulations.]

The 1996 budget proposed the introduction of a new category of expenditures, Canadian renewable and conservation expenses (CRCE), which would include intangible costs for projects the equipment for which is included in Capital Cost Allowance Class 43.1. The budget proposed that the tax treatment of these expenses would be analogous to that of Canadian Exploration Expenses. In particular, the budget proposed that CRCE would be fully deductible and capable of being renounced to shareholders who have entered into a flow-through share agreement. The budget also stated that CRCE would take effect only after the definition of eligible costs had been developed in consultation with Natural Resources Canada and industry representatives. The proposed regulations contained in this Appendix, in conjunction with certain amendments to sections 66 and 66.1 of the Act, give effect to this budget announcement.

Part XI sets out rules for the deduction of capital cost allowance. Subsection 1102(1) provides that certain properties are excluded from the classes of depreciable property in Schedule II to the Regulations.

Subsection 1102(1) is amended to add proposed paragraph (a.1), consequential on the introduction of the definition CRCE in subsection 66.1(6) of the Act, in order to ensure that an expenditure which is deductible as CRCE is not also included as the capital cost of depreciable property.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 1106

DIVISION VII — CERTIFICATES ISSUED BY MINISTER OF CANADIAN HERITAGE

1106. (1) Definitions — For the purposes of this section and paragraph (x) of Class 10 in Schedule II,

"Canadian" means a person that is

(a) a Canadian citizen as defined in the Citizenship Act,

(b) a permanent resident within the meaning assigned by the Immigration Act, or

(c) a corporation that is Canadian-controlled, as determined for the purposes of sections 26 to 28 of the Investment Canada Act;

Related Provisions: Reg. 1106(5)(c) — Principal screenwriter deemed not Canadian.

"Canadian government film agency" means a federal or provincial government agency the mandate of which is related to the provision of assistance to film productions in Canada;

"excluded production" means a film or video production of a prescribed taxable Canadian corporation

(a) in respect of which

(i) the Minister of Canadian Heritage has not issued a certificate of completion, within 30 months after the end of the corporation's taxation year in which the production's principal photography began, certifying that the production was completed within two years after the end of the year,

(ii) where the production is not a treaty co-production, neither the corporation nor another prescribed taxable Canadian corporation related to the corporation

(A) is, except to the extent of an interest in the production held by a prescribed taxable Canadian corporation as a co-producer of the production or by a prescribed person (within the meaning assigned by subsection 1106(7)), the exclusive worldwide copyright owner in the production for all commercial exploitation purposes for the 25-year period that begins at the first time the production had been completed and is commercially exploitable,

(B) controls the initial licensing of commercial exploitation, and

(C) retains a share of revenues, that is acceptable to the Minister of Canadian Heritage, from the exploitation of the production in non-Canadian markets,

(iii) there is not an agreement in writing for consideration at the fair market value with

(A) a corporation that is a Canadian and is a distributor of film or video productions, or

(B) a corporation that holds a broadcasting license issued by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission for television markets, to have the production shown in Canada within the two-year period that begins at the first time the production has been completed and is commercially exploitable, or

(iv) a distribution is made in Canada within that two-year period by a person who is not a Canadian, or

(b) that is

(xii) a production for which public financial support would, in the opinion of the Minister of Canadian Heritage, be contrary to public policy;

Technical Notes: June 20, 1996: Proposed Regulation 1106(1) provides the definition of "excluded production ", which is a film or video production that is not considered to be an eligible production for the purposes of the Canadian film or video production tax credit regime. Generally, propose clause (a)(ii)(A) of that definition provides that a prescribed taxable Canadian corporation's film or video production will be an excluded production if the corporation (or a related prescribed taxable Canadian corporation) is not the exclusive worldwide copyright owner of the production for 5 years. This amendment would lengthen the required ownership period to 25 years. However, an exception from the exclusive worldwide copyright rule in respect of a production is made for copyright in the production held by a co-producer of the production that is a prescribed taxable Canadian corporation or by a prescribed person (see the commentary to proposed Regulation 1106(7)).

This amendment applies to the 1995 and subsequent taxation years except that the reference to the "25-year period" in that clause shall be read as a "5-year period" in the case of a film or video production for which a Canadian film or video production certificate is obtained before 1997. The change to a 25-year ownership requirement has been made upon recommendation of the Department of Canadian Heritage.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1106(2) — Prescribed taxable Canadian corporation; Reg. 1106(7) — Prescribed person.

"treaty co-production" means a film or video production the production of which is contemplated in a co-production treaty entered into between Canada and another country.

(2) Prescribed taxable Canadian corporation — For the purposes of section 125.4 of the Act and this section, "prescribed taxable Canadian corporation" means a taxable Canadian corporation that is a Canadian, other than a corporation that is

(iv) that is an animation production

(A) for the place where the layout and background work is done, one point,

(B) for the place where the key animation is done, one point,

(C) for the place where the assistant animation and in-betweening is done, one point, if the place is in Canada;

(b) a production that is not an animation production is deemed not to be a Canadian film or video production unless there are allotted in respect of the production two points under clause (a)(i)(A) or (B) and one point under clause (a)(i)(C) or (D); and

(c) an animation production is deemed not to be a Canadian film or video production unless there are allotted in respect of the production

(i) one point under clause (a)(ii)(A) or subparagraph (a)(iii),

(ii) one point under clause (a)(ii)(B), and

(iii) one point under clause (a)(iv)(B).

Related Provisions: Reg. 1106(1) — Definitions; Reg. 1106(5) — Lead performer/screenwriter; Reg. 1106(6) — Documentary production.

(B) the work is published in Canada.

(6) Documentary production — Notwithstanding subsection (4), a documentary production that is not an excluded production is deemed to be a Canadian film or video production if all creative positions in respect of the production are occupied by individuals who are Canadians.

(7) Prescribed person — For the purpose of section 125.4 of the Act, "prescribed person" means

(a) a corporation that holds a television broadcasting licence issued by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission,

(b) a person to whom paragraph 149(1)(l) of the Act applies where the person has a fund which is used to finance Canadian film or video productions,

(c) a Canadian government film agency, or

(d) in respect of a film or video production, a non-resident person who does not carry on a business in Canada where the person's interest in the production is acquired to comply with the certificate requirements of a treaty co-production twinning arrangement.

Technical Notes: June 20, 1996: Draft Regulation 1106(7), which defines "prescribed person" for the purposes of the proposed Canadian film or video production tax credit ("CFVPTC"), is relevant for two purposes. First, a prescribed person is not considered to be an "investor" under subsection 125.4(1). A qualifying corporation will, therefore, not be precluded by subsection 125.4(4) from claiming a CFVPTC in respect of a film or video production solely because a "prescribed person" has an interest in the production.

Second, the definition "prescribed person" is relevant for the purpose of determining whether a production is an "excluded production" under proposed Regulation 1106(1). Subsection 1106(7) of the Regulations applies to the 1995 and subsequent taxation years.

Related Provisions: ITA 253 — Extended meaning of "carry on business in Canada".

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, s. 1, will add subsec. 1106(8), applicable to amounts received after February 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Section 1106 of the Income Tax Regulations provides rules related to the Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit.

New subsection 1106(8) prescribes amounts paid or payable under the License Fee Program of the Canada Television and Cable Production Fund for the purpose of the definition "assistance" in subsection 125.4(1) of the Income Tax Act. As a result, such payments will not be considered assistance for the purposes of the Canadian Film or Video Production Tax Credit provided under section 125.4 of the Act.

New subsection 1106(8) applies to amounts received after February 23, 1998.

Application: The December 12, 1995 draft regulations (Canadian film tax credit), s. 3, will add s. 1106 (Div. VII), applicable to 1995 et seq. The June 20, 1996 Notice of Ways and Means Motion will amend cl. (a)(ii)(A) of the definition "excluded production" in subsec. 1106(1) and add subsec. 1106(7), applicable to 1995 et seq., except that the reference to the "25-year period" in cl. (a)(ii)(A) shall be read as a "5-year period" in the case of a film or video production for which a Canadian film or video production certificate is obtained before 1997. For subsec. 1106(8), see Application note above.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1202(5)(c)

(c) in respect of a property acquired at any time by purchase, amalgamation, merger, winding-up or otherwise, from a person who is exempt from tax under Part I of the Act on that person's taxable income.

Application: The June 20, 1996 Notice of Ways and Means Motion will amend para. 1202(5)(c) to read as above, applicable to acquisitions that take place after April 26, 1995, other than an acquisition that takes place before 1996 and that was required by an agreement in writing entered into before April 26, 1995.

Technical Notes: Part XII of the Income Tax Regulations sets out a number of rules with respect to resource and processing allowances. These rules include provision for the inheritance by a corporation (the "successor") of another taxpayer's earned depletion allowances, mining exploration base, frontier exploration base and supplementary depletion allowances. Subsection 1202(5) provides that this successoring is not available in certain circumstances, including (in paragraph 1202(5)(c)) the acquisition of property from a person that is exempt from tax under Part I of the Act. The paragraph includes an exception, however, where the exempt person from whom the property is acquired is a corporation described in paragraph 149(1)(d) — broadly, a Crown or municipal corporation — that is also a principal-business corporation, the successor rules will apply. Paragraph 1202(5)(c) is amended to remove this exception.

(6) Subsections (2), 1203(3), 1207(7) and 1212(4) apply only to a corporation that has acquired a particular property

(a) where it acquired the particular property in a taxation year commencing before 1985 and, at the time it acquired the particular property, the corporation acquired the specified property of the person from whom it acquired the particular property;

(b) where it acquired the particular property from a person in a taxation year commencing after 1984 and, at the time it acquired the particular property, the corporation acquired

(i) all or substantially all of the Canadian resource properties of that person, or

(ii) where subparagraph (i) does not apply, the specified property of the person;

(c) where it acquired (other than in circumstances in which subparagraph (b)(ii) applies) the particular property after November 16, 1978 and in a taxation year ending before February 18, 1987 by any means other than by way of an amalgamation or winding-up and it and the person from whom it acquired the particular property have filed with the Minister a joint election under and in accordance with any of subsections 66(6), 66.1(4), 66.1(5), 66.2(3), 66.2(4), 66.4(3), and 66.4(4) of the Act as those subsections read in their application to that year;

(d) where it acquired the particular property after June 5, 1987 by way of an amalgamation or winding-up (other than in circumstances in which subparagraph (b)(ii) applies) and it has filed an election in the form prescribed for the purposes of paragraph 66.7(7)(c) of the Act with the Minister on or before the day on or before which the corporation is required to file a return of income pursuant to section 150 of the Act for its taxation year in which it acquired the particular property;

(e) where it acquired the particular property (other than by means of an amalgamation or winding-up or in circumstances in which subparagraph (b)(ii) applies) in a taxation year ending after February 17, 1987 and it and the person from whom it acquired the particular property have filed a joint election in the form prescribed for the purposes of paragraph 66.7(7)(e) of the Act with the Minister on or before the earlier of the days on or before which either of them is required to file a return of income pursuant to section 150 of the Act in respect of their respective taxation years that include the time of acquisition of the particular property; and

(f) where it acquired (other than by way of an amalgamation or winding-up) the particular property in circumstances in which subparagraph (b)(ii) applies and it and the person from whom it acquired the particular property agree to have subsection (2), 1203(3), 1207(7) or 1212(4), as the case may be, apply to them and notify the Minister in writing of the agreement in their returns of income under Part I of the Act for their respective taxation years that include the time of acquisition of the particular property.

(7) Where at any time after November 12, 1981

(a) control of a corporation is considered for the purposes of subsection 66.7(10) of the Act to have been acquired by a person or group of persons, or

(b) a corporation ceases to be exempt from tax under Part I of the Act on its taxable income, for the purposes of section 1201, this section and section 1205,

(c) the corporation shall be deemed after that time to be a successor (within the meaning assigned by subsection (2)) that had, at that time, acquired all the properties owned by the corporation immediately before that time from an original owner thereof;

(d) a joint election shall be deemed to have been filed in accordance with subsection (6) in respect of the acquisition;

(e) the earned depletion base of the corporation immediately before that time shall be deemed not to be the earned depletion base of the corporation immediately after that time but to be the earned depletion base of the original owner immediately after that time;

(f) [Revoked]

(g) where the corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferee") was, immediately before and at that time,

(i) a parent corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1.4) of the Act), or

(ii) a subsidiary wholly-owned corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1.4) of the Act) of a particular corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferor"), if both corporations agree to have this paragraph apply to them in respect of a taxation year of the transferor ending after that time and notify the Minister in writing of the agreement in the return of income under Part I of the Act of the transferor for that year, the transferor may, if throughout that year the transferee was such a parent corporation or subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the transferor, designate in favour of the transferee, in respect of that year, for the purpose of making a deduction under subsection (2) in respect of expenditures incurred by the transferee before that time and when it was such a parent corporation or subsidiary wholly-owned corporation of the transferor, an amount not exceeding such portion of the amount that would be its income for the year, if no deductions were allowed under any of section 29 of the Income Tax Application Rules and sections 65 to 66.7 of the Act, [as] may reasonably be regarded as being attributable to

(iii) the production from Canadian resource properties owned by the transferor immediately before that time,

(iv) the disposition in the year of any Canadian resource properties owned by the transferor immediately before that time, and

(v) such processing as is described in subparagraph 1204(1)(b)(iii), (iv), or (v) with property owned by the transferor immediately before that time to the extent that such portion of the amount so designated is not designated under this paragraph in favour of any other taxpayer or under paragraph 66.7(10)(g) of the Act in favour of any taxpayer, and the amount so designated shall be deemed, for the purposes of determining the amount under subsection (2),

(vi) to be income from the sources described in subparagraph (iii), (iv) or (v), as the case may be, of the transferee for its taxation year in which that taxation year of the transferor ends, and

(vii) not to be income from the sources described in subparagraph (iii), (iv) or (v), as the case may be, of the transferor for that year;

(h) where, immediately before and at that time, the corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferee") and another corporation (in this paragraph referred to as the "transferor") were both subsidiary wholly-owned corporations (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1.4) of the Act) of a particular parent corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1.4) of the Act), if the transferee and the transferor agree to have this paragraph apply to them in respect of a taxation year of the transferor ending after that time and notify the Minister in writing of the agreement in the return of income under Part I of the Act of the transferor for that year, paragraph (g) shall apply for that year to the transferee and transferor as though one were the parent corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1.4) of the Act) of the other; and

(i) where that time is after January 15, 1987 and at that time the corporation was a member of a partnership that owned a property at that time,

(i) for the purposes of paragraph (c), the corporation shall be deemed to have owned immediately before that time that portion of the property owned by the partnership at that time that is equal to its percentage share of the aggregate of amounts that would be paid to all members of the partnership if it were wound up at that time, and

(ii) for the purposes of clauses (2)(b)(i)(C) and (D) for a taxation year ending after that time, the lesser of

(A) its share of the part of the income of the partnership for the fiscal period of the partnership ending in the year that may reasonably be regarded as being attributable to the production from the property or to such processing as is described in subparagraph 1204(1)(b)(iii), (iv) or (v) with the property, and

(B) an amount that would be determined under clause (A) for the year if its share of the income of the partnership for the fiscal year of the partnership were determined on the basis of the percentage share referred to in subparagraph (i) shall be deemed to be income of the corporation for the year that may reasonably be attributable to production from the property or to such processing as is described in subparagraph 1204(1)(b)(iii), (iv) or (v) with the property.

(8) For the purposes of subsections (1) and (7), where a corporation acquired control of another corporation after November 12, 1981 and before 1983 by reason of the acquisition of shares of the other corporation pursuant to an agreement in writing concluded on or before November 12, 1981, the corporation shall be deemed to have acquired such control on or before November 12, 1981.

(9) Where, at any time,

(a) control of a taxpayer that is a corporation has been acquired by a person or group of persons,

(b) a taxpayer has disposed of all or substantially all of the taxpayer's Canadian resource properties, or

(c) a taxpayer has disposed of the specified property of the taxpayer,

and, before that time, the taxpayer or a partnership of which the taxpayer was a member acquired a property and it may reasonably be considered that one of the main purposes of the acquisition was to avoid any limitation provided in subsection (2) on the deduction in respect of the earned depletion base of the taxpayer or of a corporation referred to as a transferee in paragraph (7)(g) or (h), the taxpayer or the partnership, as the case may be, shall be deemed, for the purposes of applying subsection (2) to or in respect of the taxpayer, not to have acquired the property.

(10) Where in a particular taxation year a predecessor owner of a property disposes of it to a corporation in circumstances in which subsection (2) applies, for the purposes of applying subsection (2) to the predecessor owner for a taxation year ending after February 17, 1987 in respect of its acquisition of the property, the predecessor owner shall be deemed, after the disposition, never to have acquired the property except for the purposes of making a deduction under subsection (2) for the particular year.

(11) Where at any time a property is acquired by a person in circumstances in which subsection (2) does not apply, every person who was an original owner or predecessor owner of the property by reason of having disposed of the property before that time shall, for the purposes of applying this Part to or in respect of the person or any other person who after that time acquires the property, be deemed after that time not to be an original owner or predecessor owner of the property by reason of having disposed of the property before that time.

B is the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's share of the adjusted resource profits of a partnership for the year, as determined under subsection (3) or (4); and

C is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount included in the taxpayer's gross resource profits for the year as a rental or royalty (other than a production royalty or a specified royalty) computed by reference to the amount or value of petro-

(4) Notwithstanding subsection (3), where a taxpayer is a member of an exempt partnership in a fiscal period of the partnership that begins before 2000 and ends in a taxation year of the taxpayer and the taxpayer's share of the partnership's adjusted resource profits for the year would, if this subsection did not apply, be a negative amount, the taxpayer's share of the partnership's adjusted resource profits for the year is the amount, which may be positive or negative, determined by the formula

where

A is the amount that would, if this subsection did not apply, be the taxpayer's share of the partnership's adjusted resource profits for the year; and

(a) nil, where

(i) the partnership is an exempt partnership in respect of the taxpayer at the end of the fiscal period, and

where

C is the amount that would be the partnership's adjusted resource profits for the fiscal period if the partnership did not have any working interest described in subparagraph (a)(ii), and

D is the partnership's adjusted resource profits for the fiscal period.

Canadian renewable and conservation expense — (1) Subject to subsection (2), for the purpose of the definition "Canadian renewable and conservation expense" in subsection 66.1(6) of the Act, "Canadian renewable and conservation expense" means an expense incurred by a taxpayer, and payable to a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer is dealing at arm's length, in respect of the development of a project for which it is reasonable to expect that at least 50% of the capital cost of the depreciable property to be used in the project would be the capital cost of property described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II, and includes such an expense incurred by the taxpayer

(a) for the purpose of making a service connection to the project for the transmission of electricity to a purchaser of the electricity, to the extent that the expense so incurred was not incurred to acquire property of the taxpayer;

(b) for the construction of a temporary access road to the project site;

(c) for a right of access to the project site in respect of the period ending at the earliest time at which a property described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II is used in the project for the purpose of earning income;

(d) for clearing land to the extent necessary to complete the project;

(e) for process engineering for the project, including

(i) collection and analysis of site data,

(ii) calculation of energy, mass, water, or air balances,

(iii) simulation and analysis of the performance and cost of process design options, and

(iv) selection of the optimum process design;

(f) for the drilling or completion of a well for the project; or

(g) for the acquisition and installation of the taxpayer's test wind turbine for the project.

(2) A Canadian renewable and conservation expense does not include any expense incurred by a taxpayer that is directly or indirectly

(a) for the acquisition of, or the use of or the right to use, land, except as provided by paragraph (1)(b), (c) or (d);

(b) for grading or levelling land or for landscaping, except as provided by paragraph (1)(b);

(c) payable to a non-resident person or a partnership other than a Canadian partnership (other than an expense described in paragraph (1)(g));

(d) included in the capital cost of property that, but for this section, would be depreciable property, except as provided by paragraph (1)(b), (d), (e), (f) or (g);

(e) an expenditure that, but for this section, would be an eligible capital expenditure, except as provided by any of paragraphs (1)(a) to (e);

(f) included in the cost of inventory of the taxpayer;

(g) an expenditure on or in respect of scientific research and experimental development;

(h) a Canadian development expense or a Canadian oil and gas property expense;

(i) incurred, for a project, in or in respect of the period that begins at the earliest time at which a property described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II is used in the project for the purpose of earning income;

(j) incurred in respect of the administration or management of a business of the taxpayer;

(k) described in paragraphs 20(1)(c), (d), (e) or (e.1) of the Act; or

(l) a cost attributable to the period of the construction, renovation or alteration of depreciable property, other than property described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II, that relates to

(i) the construction, renovation or alteration of the property (except as provided by paragraph (1)(b), (f), or (g)), or

(ii) the ownership of land during the period (except as provided by paragraph (1)(b), (c) or (d)).

(3) For the purpose of subsection (1), "test wind turbine" means a fixed location device that is a wind energy conversion system that would, but for this section, be property included in Class 43.1 of Schedule II because of subparagraph (d)(v) thereof, and in respect of which the Minister, in consultation with the Minister of Natural Resources, is satisfied that

(a) the device will be the first such device installed at the taxpayer's site for a proposed wind energy generation facility, and

(b) the primary purpose of the device is to test the level of energy production at the site.

Related Provisions: Reg. 1102(1)(a.1) — CRCE ineligible for capital cost allowance.

Application: The September 16, 1997 draft regulations, s. 3, will add s. 1219, applicable to expenses incurred after December 5, 1996.

Technical Notes: [The following Technical Notes were released with the December 5, 1996 draft legislation.]

Proposed amendments to subsection 66.1(6) of the Act define "Canadian renewable and conservation expense" (CRCE) as having the meaning assigned by regulation. For this purpose, the Technical Guide on this topic published by the Department of Natural Resources is to apply conclusively with respect to engineering and scientific matters in the determination of whether an expense meets the criteria set out in the Regulations.

New section 1219 assigns the meaning of the term "Canadian renewable and conservation expense" for the purpose of the definition of that term in subsection 66.1(6) of the Act.

Subsection 1219(1) states, generally, that CRCE means an expense incurred in respect of the development of projects for which it is expected that at least half the depreciable property to be used in the project will be described in Class 43.1 of Schedule II to the Regulations. The determination of the proportion of depreciable property that is described in Class 43.1 is to be made by reference to capital cost.

Subsection 1219(1) goes on to list six types of expenditure which are specifically included in CRCE and which, because of the exclusions listed in subsection 1219(2), might otherwise have been ineligible for treatment as CRCE.

Subsection 1219(2) lists expenses which are specifically excluded from the CRCE definition.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 18, 1997: Canadian renewable and conservation expenses (CRCEs)

Regulations detailing the expenses that are eligible for inclusion in the CRCE category were released on December 5, 1996. This budget proposes one additional modification to the definition of a CRCE.

Canadian renewable and conservation expense (CRCE) category

Canadian renewable and conservation expenses include certain intangible development costs associated with projects primarily using equipment eligible for Class 43.1.

The CRCE category is similar in concept to the definition of expenses used in the non-renewable energy sector. These expenses generally include all intangible expenses incurred to determine the existence, location, extent or quality of certain non-renewable resources such as crude oil and natural gas.

CRCE was introduced to encourage investment in the pre-production development phases of energy conservation and renewable energy projects. CRCE deductions can be accumulated from December 5, 1996, when the legislation implementing the 1996 budget changes was tabled in Parliament.

Expenditures eligible for CRCE treatment are fully deductible and can be carried forward indefinitely. These expenditures can also be renounced to shareholders who have entered into a flow-through share agreement. The CRCE definition also provides taxpayers investing in renewable energy and energy conservation projects with more rapid deductions for certain other types of expenses which would normally be treated as capital in nature.

Test wind turbines

Following upon recent consultations with industry associations, this budget proposes to modify the CRCE definition released on December 5, 1996 to include the costs of acquiring and installing test wind turbines. Favourable prior opinions must be issued by the Minister of Natural Resources for each test wind turbine installation.

PART XIV — POLICY RESERVES IN INSURANCE BUSINESS

Proposed Amendment — Insurers' earthquake reserves

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, February 24, 1998: [See under ITA 20(7) — ed.]

Proposed Amendment — Part XIV

Department of Finance press release, October 7, 1996: Draft Legislation on Insurers' Policy Reserves

Finance Minister Paul Martin today released draft amendments to the Income Tax Act and the Income Tax Regulations dealing with insurers' policy reserves.

The draft amendments are the result of extensive consultations on the reform of the taxation of life insurers. The amendments respond to a number of issues raised during consultations on the draft legislation released to the industry in April this year.

The amendments are primarily concerned with the tax treatment of life insurance policy reserves. In broad terms, the draft legislation provides that an insurer's policy reserves in respect of its policies issued after 1995 will now generally be calculated in the manner in which they are calculated for regulatory purposes. For policies issued before 1996, the insurer will generally continue to calculate policy reserves using the existing rules in Part XIV of the Income Tax Regulations.

It should be noted that the draft amendments also deal with non-life insurance policy reserves and other insurance taxation matters. A detailed description of the amendments is contained in the explanatory notes which are being released with the draft amendments.

The Minister indicated that the draft amendments to the Income Tax Act would be included in the bill containing this year's budget measures, which is expected to be tabled in the fall.

Technical Notes: Part XIV of the Regulations provides rules for determining the amount that may be deducted by an insurer in computing its income for a taxation year under Part I as a reserve in respect of liabilities under insurance policies. Part XIV is modified by the creation of four separate divisions. Division I of Part XIV will provide for the determination of the policy reserves for insurance policies other than life insurance policies. Division II will provide for the determination of the policy reserves for life insurance policies that are "pre-1996 life insurance policies". Division III will provide for the determination of the policy reserves for life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies. Division IV will provide definitions and rules of interpretation for the purposes of Divisions I to III.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, March 6, 1996: Taxation of life insurance companies

A number of changes to the taxation of life insurance companies will take effect in the 1996 taxation year. These changes are the result of extensive consultations with the industry. The objective is to improve the income tax rules so that the dependence on capital taxes will eventually be reduced and more revenues will be raised through income taxes.

The changes will affect both the calculation of life insurers' reserves and the calculation of the Canadian component of the income of multinational insurers. Specifically:

- Most reserves on life insurance policies issued after 1995 will be equal to the reserves reported in financial statements. Pre-1996 policies will be fully grandfathered.
- The method of measuring Canadian income will be improved by using a full balance sheet approach.
- To ensure that tax revenues are not reduced in the short-term, the additional capital tax currently levied on life insurance companies [ITA 190.1(1.1) — ed.] will be extended for a further three years.

The changes are intended to be revenue neutral. Over time, life insurance companies will pay more income taxes and less capital taxes. Draft legislation and regulations giving effect to the changes will be released later this year.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1400

Division I — Policy Reserves

1400. Non-life insurance business — (1) For the purpose of paragraph 20(7)(c) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of an insurer for a taxation year is

(a) the amount determined under subsection (3) in respect of the insurer for the year, where that amount is greater than nil, and

(b) nil, in any other case.

Technical Notes: Section 1400 establishes the amount an insurer may deduct under paragraph 20(7)(c) as policy reserves in respect of insurance policies other than life insurance policies. Section 1400 is replaced by four new subsections.

New subsection 1400(1) provides that, for the purposes of paragraph 20(7)(c) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of an insurer's other than life businesses is the amount determined under subsection 1400(3), where that amount is a positive number. Where, however, that amount is equal to or less than nil, the prescribed amount is nil.

(2) For the purpose of paragraph 12(1)(e.1) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of an insurer for a taxation year is

(a) the absolute value of the amount determined under subsection (3) in respect of the insurer for the year, where that amount is less than nil, and

(b) nil, in any other case.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1400(2) provides that, for the purposes of new paragraph 12(1)(e.1) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of an insurer's other than life businesses is the absolute value of the amount determined under subsection 1400(3), where that amount is less than nil. Where, however, the amount determined under subsection 1400(3) is equal to or greater than nil, the prescribed amount is nil.

Therefore, where the amount determined under subsection 1400(3) is positive, that is the amount prescribed for the purposes of paragraph 20(7)(c) of the Act. According to paragraph 20(7)(c), an amount not exceeding such prescribed amount may be deducted as a policy reserve in respect of an insurer's other than life businesses. Where, however, the amount determined under subsection 1400(3) is negative, then the absolute value of that amount is the amount prescribed for the purpose of paragraph 12(1)(e.1) of the Act. This "negative policy reserve" must be included in computing the insurer's income from its other than life businesses pursuant to new paragraph 12(1)(e.1), and may be deducted in the following taxation year pursuant to new subsection 20(22) of the Act.

(3) For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(a) and (2)(a), the amount determined under this subsection in respect of an insurer for a taxation year is the amount, which may be positive or negative, determined by the formula

where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the unearned portion at the end of the year of the net premium for a policy, (other than a policy that insures a risk in respect of

(a) a financial loss of a lender on a loan made on the security of real property,

(b) a home warranty,

(c) a lease guarantee, or

(d) an extended motor vehicle warranty),

determined by apportioning the net premium equally over the period to which that premium relates;

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined in respect of a policy referred to in paragraph (a), (b), (c) or (d) of the description of A equal to the lesser of

(a) the amount of the reported reserve of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the unearned portion at the end of the year of the net premium for the policy, and

(b) a reasonable amount as a reserve determined as at the end of the year in respect of the unearned portion at the end of the year of the net premium for the policy;

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount in respect of a policy, where all or a portion of a risk under the policy was reinsured, equal to the unearned portion at the end of the year of a reinsurance commission in respect of the policy determined by apportioning the reinsurance commission equally over the period to which it relates;

D is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount determined by the formula

in respect of a policy under which a claim was reported to the insurer before the end of the year and in respect of which the insurer is, or may be, required to make a payment or incur an expense after the year, where

V is

(a) where the claim is in respect of damages for personal injury or death and the insurer has agreed to a structured settlement of the claim, 100 per cent, and

(b) in any other case, 95 per cent, and

W is the lesser of

(a) the amount of the reported reserve of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the claim, and

(b) the amount of the claim liability of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the claim;

E is the amount, in respect of policies under which there may be claims incurred before the end of the year that have not been reported to the insurer before the end of the year, equal to 95% of the lesser of

(a) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the possibility that there are such claims, and

(b) the total of the claim liabilities of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the possibility that there are such claims;

F is an additional amount in respect of policies that insure

(a) a fidelity risk,

(b) a surety risk,

(c) a nuclear risk, or

(d) a risk related to a financial loss of a lender on a loan made on the security of real property, equal to the lesser of

(e) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of such risks (other than an amount included in determining the value of A, B, C, D, E, G, H, I, J or K), and

(f) a reasonable amount as a reserve determined as at the end of the year in respect of such risks (other than an amount included in determining the value of A, B, C, D, E, G, H, I, J or K);

G is the amount of a guarantee fund at the end of the year provided for under an agreement in writing between the insurer and Her Majesty in right of Canada under which Her Majesty has agreed to guarantee the obligations of the insurer under a policy that insures a risk related to a financial loss of a lender on a loan made on the security of real property;

H is the amount in respect of risks under pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies equal to

(a) where the amounts determined under subparagraphs (i) and (ii) are greater than nil, the lesser of

(i) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of such risks (other than an amount included in determining the value of A, B, C, D, E, F, G, I, J or K), and

(ii) a reasonable amount as a reserve determined as at the end of the year in respect of such risks (other than an amount included in determining the value of A, B, C, D, E, F, G, I, J or K); and

(b) nil, in any other case;

I is, subject to subsection (5), the amount in respect of risks under non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies that are not pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies, equal to the lesser of

(a) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of such risks (other than an amount included in determining the value of A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, J or K), and

(b) the total of the policy liabilities of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of such risks (other than an amount included in determining the value of A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, J or K);

J is the total of all amounts (other than an amount deductible under subsection 140(1) of the Act) each of which is the amount that is the least of

in respect of a dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits provided for under the terms of a group accident and sickness insurance policy that will be

(a) used by the insurer to reduce or eliminate a future adverse claims experience under the policy,

(b) paid or unconditionally credited to the policyholder by the insurer, or

(c) applied in discharge, in whole or in part, of a liability of the policyholder to pay premiums to the insurer under the policy,

where

P is a reasonable amount as a reserve determined as at the end of the year in respect of the dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits,

Q is 25 per cent of the amount of the premium payable under the terms of the policy for the 12-month period ending

(i) if the policy is terminated in the year, on the day the policy is terminated, and

(ii) in any other case, at the end of the year, and

R is the reported reserve of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits;

K is the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, in respect of a policy under which a portion of the amount paid or payable by the policyholder for the policy before the end of the year is deducted under paragraph 1408(4)(b), equal to the portion of that amount that the insurer has determined will, after the end of the year, be returned to, or credited to the account of, the policyholder on the termination of the policy.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1400(3) sets out a formula for determining the amount prescribed for the purposes of subsections 1400(1) and (2) of the Regulations. The total amount determined under this formula in subsection 1400(3), as well as the individual amounts determined under each of the components of the formula, may be equal to, greater or less than, nil (see new section 1402.1 of the Regulations).

The description of A in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(a) of the Regulations. In general terms, "A" is equal to the total unearned premiums at the end of the taxation year in respect of insurance policies other than those listed in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of the description of A.

The description of B in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(b) of the Regulations. Paragraph 1400(b) provides a reserve for unearned premiums in respect of policies excluded from the application of paragraph 1400(a). Similarly, the description of B provides a reserve for unearned premiums in respect of policies excluded from the description of A, namely, policies that insure a risk in respect of mortgages, home warranties, lease guarantees and extended motor vehicle warranties. "B" is, in general terms, equal to the lesser of the insurer's reported reserve in respect of the unearned portion at the end of the year of the net premium for the policy and a reasonable amount in respect of such unearned premiums.

A "reported reserve" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year in respect of an insurance policy or a claim, possible claim or risk under an insurance policy is defined in new subsection 1408(1). Where the insurer is subject to the supervision of the "relevant authority" throughout a taxation year, it is defined as the positive or negative amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's annual report for the year to the "relevant authority" in respect of that policy, claim, possible claim or risk if the reserve has been determined without reference to projected income and capital taxes of the insurer (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). Where the insurer is subject to the supervision of the relevant authority throughout its taxation year but is not required to file a report for a period ending coincidentally with the year, or the insurer is the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) or a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, it is the amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's financial statements if they had been prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP) and without reference to income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). In any other case, the reported reserve is nil.

The description of C in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraphs 1400(c) and (d) of the Regulations. Paragraph 1400(c) provides a reserve for the unearned portion of reinsurance commissions in respect of policies where all or a portion of the risk under the policies has been reinsured. Similarly, paragraph 1400(d) provides a reserve for the unearned portion of reinsurance commissions in respect of policies where all or a portion of the risk under the policies was assumed by the insurer and all or a portion of the risk assumed was subsequently reinsured. No substantive changes have been made to these reserves.

The description of D in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(e) of the Regulations. Paragraph 1400(e) provides for a reserve in respect of an insurer's unpaid claims. In general terms, the reserve is equal to 95% of the lesser of the insurer's reported reserve for unpaid claims and the insurer's actuarial liability in respect of such claims. The description of E modifies this reserve by making it 95% of the lesser of the insurer's reported reserve and the insurer's claim liability in respect of such claims. Where the insurer has agreed to a structured settlement of a claim that is in respect of personal injury or death, the reserve remains at 100% of the claim.

A "reported reserve" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year in respect of an insurance policy or a claim, possible claim or risk under an insurance policy is defined in new subsection 1408(1). Where the insurer is subject to the supervision of the "relevant authority" throughout a taxation year, it is defined as the positive or negative amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's annual report for the year to the relevant authority in respect of that policy, claim, possible claim or risk if the reserve had been determined without reference to projected income and capital taxes of the insurer (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). Where the insurer is subject to the supervision of the relevant authority throughout its taxation year but is not required to file a report for a period ending coincidentally with the year, or the insurer is the CMHC or a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, it is the amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's financial statements if they had been prepared in accordance with GAAP and without reference to income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). In any other case, the reported reserve is nil.

New subsection 1408(1) defines the "claim liability" (which term has been substituted for the term "actuarial liability") of an insurer at the end of a taxation year in respect of an unpaid claim as a reasonable estimate, determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, of the present value of future payments and claims adjustment expenses in respect of the claim, over the present value of amounts to be recovered in respect of the claim because of salvage, subrogation or any other reason.

The description of E in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(e.1) of the Regulations. Paragraph 1400(e.1) provides a reserve in respect of the possibility that claims have been incurred under a policy before the end of a taxation year but not reported to the insurer. In general terms, the reserve is 95% of the lesser of the insurer's actuarial liability for incurred but not reported (IBNR) claims and its reported reserve for IBNR claims. The description of E modifies this reserve by making it 95% of the lesser of the insurer's reported reserve and the insurer's claim liability in respect of the possibility that there are such claims. The terms "reported reserve" and "claim liability" are defined in new subsection 1408(1) and described in the commentary therefor.

The description of F in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(f) of the Regulations. Paragraph 1400(f) provides a supplementary reserve for policies insuring a risk listed in that paragraph, such as a fidelity risk. Under the description of F, the new reserve in respect of such policies becomes the lesser of the insurer's reported reserve and a reasonable amount in respect of that reserve. The term "reported reserve" is defined in new subsection 1408(1) and described in the commentary therefor.

The description of G in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(f.1) of the Regulations. This reserve is currently under review by the Department.

The description of H in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(g) of the Regulations. Paragraph 1400(g) provides for a reserve in respect of a risk under non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies. The reserve under the description of H may only be claimed in respect of non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies that are "pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed accident and sickness policies". Otherwise, the reserve is essentially unchanged. Non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies that are "post-1995 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies" are governed by the description of I.

A "pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" is defined by new subsection 1408(1) to mean a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy that was issued before 1996 and in respect of which there has been no change to the amount or number of premium payments or the amount of benefits under the policy after 1995 except in accordance with the provisions of the policy as they existed on December 31, 1995. However, if such a change occurred pursuant to a "general amending provision" of the policy, it will lose its status as a pre-1996 policy. The term "general amending provision" is defined in new subsection 1408(1) as a provision of a policy that allows it to be amended with the consent of the policyholder.

The description of I provides a reserve in respect of risks under non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies that are post-1995 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies, that is, non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies that are not pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies. The reserve is the lesser of the reported reserve and the policy liability of the insurer in respect of such risks. The terms "reported reserve" and "policy liability" are defined in new subsection 1408(1) and described in the commentary therefor.

The description of J in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(g.1) of the Regulations. In general terms, paragraph 1400(g.1) provides a reserve for future adverse claims experience under group accident and sickness insurance policies. This reserve is essentially unchanged.

Existing paragraph 1400(h) is repealed. Paragraph 1400(h) is a transitional provision applicable in respect of the 1977 to 1986 taxation years of an insurer. It effectively provides an insurer with a ten-year period in which to include in income the amount of any contingency reserve claimed by the insurer for its 1977 taxation year, which was the last year in respect of which such a reserve could be claimed.

The description of K in new subsection 1400(3) replaces existing paragraph 1400(i) of the Regulations. Paragraph 1400(i) provides a reserve, in lieu of the reserve under paragraph 1400(a) for unearned premiums, in respect of amounts deposited under a policy that will be returned to the policyholder upon termination of the policy. This reserve is essentially unchanged.

(4) Where the relevant authority does not require an insurer to determine its liabilities in respect of claims referred to in the description of D or E in subsection (3) in accordance with actuarial principles,

(a) the value of W in subsection (3) is deemed to be the amount determined under paragraph (a) of the description of W in that subsection, and

(b) the value of E in subsection (3) is deemed to be the amount determined under paragraph (a) of the description of E in that subsection.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1400(4) provides a special rule where the relevant authority does not require an insurer to determine its reserves in respect of unpaid claims in accordance with actuarial principles. The unpaid claim reserves under the descriptions of D or E of subsection 1400(3), in such cases, will simply be the reported reserve under those descriptions. This rule is intended to relieve small property and casualty insurers from having to seek an "outside" opinion as to the reasonableness of their reserves for unpaid claims.

Application: The October 7, 1996 draft regulations (insurers' policy reserves), s. 1, will amend s. 1400 and the heading of Division I to read as above, applicable to 1996 et seq.

Division II — Policy Reserves for Pre-1996 Policies

1401. Life insurance businesses — (1) For the purpose of subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) of the Act, in computing a life insurer's income for a taxation year from carrying on its life insurance business in Canada, there may be deducted in respect of Application: The October 7, 1996 draft regulations (insurers' policy reserves), subsec. 2(2), will amend the heading of Division II and the opening words of subsec. 1401(1) to read as above, applicable to 1996 et seq.

Technical Notes: Amended subsection 1401(1) establishes the amount which an insurer is permitted to deduct as a policy reserve under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) in respect of its life insurance policies. New subsection 1401(1.1) is added in order to restrict the application of subsection 1401(1) to life insurance policies in Canada that are "pre-1996 life insurance policies". Life insurance policies in Canada that are "post-1995 life insurance policies" will be subject to the new policy reserve rules in Division III of Part XIV of the Regulations.

Subsection 1408(1) defines "pre-1996 life insurance policy" to mean a life insurance policy that was issued before 1996 and in respect of which there has been no change to the amount or number of premiums payments or the amount of benefits under the policy after 1995 except in accordance with the provisions of the policy as they existed on December 31, 1995. However, if such a change occurs pursuant to a "general amending provision" of the policy, it will lose its status as a pre-1996 policy. The term "general amending provision" is defined in new subsection 1408(1) as a provision of a policy that allows it to be amended with the consent of the policyholder. New subsection 1408(7) provides that, for the purpose of the definition "pre-1996 life insurance policy" in subsection 1408(1), changes in the amount of any benefit or in the amount or number of any premiums payable under a life insurance policy are deemed not to have occurred where they have resulted from:

- a change in underwriting class,
- a change in frequency of premium payments within a year that does not alter the present value, at the beginning of the year, of the total premiums to be paid under the policy in the year,
- the deletion of a rider,
- the correction of erroneous information,
- the reinstatement of the policy after its lapse, provided the policy is reinstated not later than 60 days after end of the calendar year in which the lapse occurred,
- the redating of the policy for policy loan indebtedness, and
- an increase in a benefit under the policy granted by the insurer on a class basis without consideration and not pursuant to any term of the policy.

To summarize, an existing life insurance policy will not lose its status as a pre-1996 life insurance policy, and, therefore, will continue to be governed by section 1401 of the Regulations, where the change in its benefits or premiums results from a transaction or event that is either pre-determined or set out in new subsection 1408(7). However, where such a change is the result of any other transaction or event, the policy will no longer be a pre-1996 life insurance policy, and, accordingly, will be subject to the new policy reserve rules in respect of post-1995 life insurance policies set out in Division III of Part XIV of the Regulations.

(a) deposit administration fund policies, such amount as the insurer may claim that is a reasonable amount in respect of the aggregate of the insurer's liabilities under the policies as at the end of the year and does not exceed the aggregate of the insurer's liabilities under those policies calculated in the manner required for the purposes of the insurer's annual report to the relevant authority for the year or, where the insurer was throughout the year subject to the supervision of the relevant authority but was not required to file an annual report with the relevant authority for the year, in its financial statements for the year;

(b) a group term life insurance policy that provides coverage for a period not exceeding 12 months, such amount as the insurer may claim not exceeding the unearned portion of the net premium for the policy at the end of the year determined by apportioning the net premium equally over the period to which that premium pertains;

Technical Notes: A minor amendment has also been made to clause 1401(1)(c)(ii)(B) in order to avoid any confusion that could result from the use of the term "net premiums for the policy" in that clause.

(C) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount payable in respect of a policy loan outstanding at the end of the year in respect of the policy or the interest thereon that has accrued to the insurer at the end of the year;

(i) a reasonable amount in respect of such a dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits,

(ii) 25 per cent of the amount of the premium payable under the terms of the policy for the 12-month period ending

(A) if the policy is terminated in the year, on the day the policy is terminated, and

(B) in any other case, at the end of the year, and

(iii) the amount of the reserve or liability in respect of such a dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits reported by the insurer in its annual report for the year to the relevant authority or, where the insurer was throughout the year subject to the supervision of the relevant authority for the year but was not required to file an annual report with the relevant authority for the year, in its financial statements for the year;

(d) a policy, other than a policy referred to in paragraph (a), such amount as the insurer may claim, in respect of a benefit, risk or guarantee that is

(i) an accidental death benefit,

(ii) a disability benefit,

(iii) an additional risk as a result of insuring a substandard life,

(iv) an additional risk in respect of the conversion of a term policy or the conversion of the benefits under a group policy into another policy after the end of the year,

(v) an additional risk under a settlement option,

(vi) an additional risk under a guaranteed insurability benefit,

(vii) a guarantee in respect of a segregated fund policy, or

(viii) any other benefit that is ancillary to the policy, subject to the prior approval of the Minister on the advice of the Superintendent of Insurance for Canada, but is not

(ix) a benefit, risk or guarantee in respect of which an amount has been claimed under any other paragraph of this subsection, other than paragraphs (d.1) and (d.2), by the insurer as a deduction in computing its income for the year, not exceeding the lesser of

(x) a reasonable amount in respect of the benefit, risk or guarantee, and

(xi) the reserve in respect of the benefit, risk or guarantee, reported by the insurer in its annual report to the relevant authority for the year or, where the insurer was throughout the year subject to the supervision of the relevant authority but was not required to file an annual report with the relevant authority for the year, in its financial statements for the year;

(d.1) a policy referred to in paragraph (b) where, after the end of the year, a claim under the policy is made in respect of a death that occurred before the end of the year, such amount as the insurer may claim, not exceeding the lesser of

(i) the present value, at the end of the year, of the payments to be made in respect of the claim made under the policy or such estimate of such payments to be made in respect of the claim as is reasonable in the circumstances, and

(ii) 95 per cent of the amount of the reserve in respect of the claim reported by the insurer in its annual report to the relevant authority for the year or, where the insurer was throughout the year subject to the supervision of the relevant authority for the year but was not required to file an annual report with the relevant authority for the year, in its financial statements for the year;

(d.2) a policy referred to in paragraph (c) where, after the end of the year, a claim under the policy is made in respect of a death that occurred before the end of the year, such amount as the insurer may claim, not exceeding the lesser of

(1.1) An amount may be deducted because of subsection (1) only in respect of a life insurance policy in Canada that is a pre-1996 life insurance policy.

Application: The October 7, 1996 draft regulations (insurers' policy reserves), subsec. 2(4), will add subsec. 1401(1.1), applicable to 1996 et seq.

Technical Notes: See under Reg. 1401(1).

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), (except in respect of subparagraph (d)(vii) thereof), any amount claimed by an insurer for the year shall not include an amount in respect of a liability of a segregated fund (within the meaning assigned "segregated fund" by section 138.1 of the Act).

(3) In computing the amount that a life insurer may deduct under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) of the Act in computing its taxable income for a taxation year, there shall be deducted from the aggregate of the amounts determined under subsection (1), the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the lesser of the following amounts determined in respect of a life insurance policy referred to in paragraph (1)(c):

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount that would be determined under subclause (1)(c)(i)(B) in respect of the policy

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would be determined under subclause (1)(c)(i)(A) in respect of the policy, and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the aggregate of the amounts that would be determined under subclauses (1)(c)(ii)(B) and (C) in respect of the policy

exceeds

(ii) the amount that would be determined under subclause (1)(c)(ii)(A) in respect of the policy.

(4) For the purposes of subparagraph 138(3)(a)(ii) of the Act, a life insurer may, in computing its income for a taxation year, deduct an amount as a reserve in respect of unpaid claims under life insurance policies in Canada at the end of the year received by the insurer before the end of the year equal to the present value at the end of the year, computed using a rate of interest that is reasonable in the circumstances, of a reasonable amount in respect of such claims.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1401(4)

(4) For the purpose of subparagraph 138(3)(a)(ii) of the Act, there may be deducted, in computing a life insurer's income for a taxation year, the amount it claims as a reserve in respect of unpaid claims received by it before the end of the year under life insurance policies in Canada that are pre-1996 life insurance policies, not exceeding the present value at the end of the year, computed using a rate of interest that is reasonable in the circumstances, of a reasonable amount in respect of those unpaid claims.

Application: The October 7, 1996 draft regulations (insurers' policy reserves), subsec. 2(5), will amend subsec. 1401(4) to read as above, applicable to 1996 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 1401(4) sets out the basis for determining the amount an insurer is permitted to deduct pursuant to subparagraph 138(3)(a)(ii) as a reserve in respect of its reported unpaid claims under its life insurance policies in Canada. Subsection 1401(4) is amended in order to limit its application to life insurance policies that are "pre-1996 life insurance policies". Policies that are not pre-1996 life insurance policies, that is, "post-1995 life insurance policies", will be subject to the rules regarding unpaid claims reserves in new Division III of Part XIV of the Regulations. The terms "post-1995 life insurance policy" and "pre-1996 life insurance policy" are defined in subsection 1408(1) of the Regulations.

the amounts determined under those sections in respect of the business shall not exceed an amount that is reasonable having regard to all the circumstances and shall be determined as if the business were carried on in Canada and the affiliate were subject to the supervision of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 1402

Special Rules

1402. Non-life and life insurance businesses — Any amount determined under section 1400 or 1401 shall be determined on a net of reinsurance ceded basis.

Application: The October 7, 1996 draft regulations (insurers' policy reserves), s. 3, will amend s. 1402 to read as above, applicable to 1996 et seq.

Technical Notes: Clause 3 simply changes the heading before section 1402 of the Regulations.

Existing subsection 1402(1) ensures that the reserves claimed under sections 1400 and 1401 are net of any reinsurance ceded by the insurer. Subsection 1402(2) is intended to provide an insurer that is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada with the authority to claim reserves of a reasonable amount in respect of its insurance business that is deemed to be carried on in Canada under the Foreign Accrual Property Income (FAPI) rules in subdivision i of the Act. Where an insurer that is a foreign affiliate carries on a business that is subject to the FAPI rules, it must compute the income from that business in accordance with the rules of the Act (see paragraph 95(2)(k)), including the rules respecting policy reserves in paragraph 20(7)(c) and section 138 and the regulations made thereunder. Because of the existence of paragraph 95(2)(k) and the definition of reported reserve in new subsection 1408(1), subsection 1402(2) is considered to be unnecessary and is therefore repealed.

History: S. 1402 amended by P.C. 1997-1670, s. 1, November 20, 1997, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 10, 1997, applicable to taxation years of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that begin after 1994, except that

(a) the subsecs. apply to taxation years of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer that end after 1994 where there has been a change in the taxation year of the foreign affiliate in 1994 and after February 22, 1994, unless

(i) the foreign affiliate had requested that change in the taxation year in writing before February 22, 1994 from the income taxation authority of the country in which it was resident and subject to income taxation, or

(ii) the first taxation year of the foreign affiliate that began after 1994 began at a time in 1995 that is earlier than the time when that taxation year would have begun if there had not been that change in the taxation year of the foreign affiliate.

1402.1 For greater certainty, any amount referred to or determined under section 1400 may be equal to, or less than, nil.

Application: The October 7, 1996 draft regulations (insurers' policy reserves), s. 4, will add s. 1402.1, applicable to 1996 et seq.

Technical Notes: New section 1402.1 provides, for greater certainty, that amounts referred to or determined under section 1400 may be negative.

Definitions [Reg. 1402.1]: "amount" — ITA 248(1).

1403. (1) For the purposes of paragraph 1401(1)(c) and subject to subsections (2) and (3), a modified net premium and an amount claimed by an insurer for a taxation year shall be computed

(a) in the case of a lapse-supported policy effected after 1990, based on rates of interest, mortality and policy lapse only, and

(b) in any other case, based on rates of interest and mortality only,

using

(c) in respect of the modified net premiums and benefits (other than a benefit described in paragraph (d)) of a participating life insurance policy (other than an annuity contract) under the terms of which the policyholder is entitled to receive a specified amount in respect of the policy's cash surrender value, the rates used by the insurer when the policy was issued in computing the cash surrender values of the policy;

(d) in respect of any benefit provided

(i) in lieu of a cash settlement on the termination or maturity of a policy, or

(ii) in satisfaction of a dividend on a policy, the rates used by the insurer in determining the amount of such benefit; and

(e) in respect of all or part of any other policy, the rates used by the insurer in determining the premiums for the policy.

(a) to taxation years beginning after 1990; and

(b) where an insurer so elected by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing before July, 1991, to the insurer's taxation years beginning after 1987, 1988 or 1989 (as specified in the election) and before 1991, and where such an election has been made

(i) if the insurer so indicated in the election, para. 1403(1)(a) shall be read without reference to the words "effected after 1990", and

(ii) in any other case, the reference in para. 1403(1)(a) to "1990" shall be read as a reference to the calendar year immediately preceding the first taxation year to which the election relates.

Para. 1403(1)(b) substituted by P.C. 1980-2089, s. 4, July 31, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 13, 1980, effective in respect of 1978 et seq.

Paras. 1403(1)(c), (d) substituted, (e) added, by P.C. 1980-1484, subsec. 2(1), June 5, 1980, Canada Gazette, Part II, June 25, 1980, effective for 1978 et seq.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), where a rate of mortality or other probability used by an insurer in determining the premium for a policy is not reasonable in the circumstances, the Minister on the advice of the Superintendent of Insurance for Canada may make such revision to the rate as is reasonable in the circumstances and the revised rate shall be deemed to have been used by the insurer in determining the premium.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1), where the present value of the premiums for a policy as at the date of issue of the policy is less than the aggregate of

(a) the present value, at that date, of the benefits provided for by the policy, and

(b) the present value, at that date, of all outlays and expenses made or incurred by the insurer or outlays and expenses that the insurer reasonably estimates it will make or incur in respect of the policy (except outlays and expenses to maintain the policy after all premiums under the policy have been paid and for which explicit provision has not been made in calculating the premiums) and such part of any other outlays and expenses made or incurred by the insurer that may reasonably be regarded as applicable thereto, an increased rate of interest shall be determined by multiplying the rate of interest used in determining the premiums by a constant factor so that when the increased rate of interest is used,

(c) the present value of the premiums at the date of issue of the policy shall equal

(d) the aggregate of the present values of the benefits, outlays and expenses referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b), and the increased rate of interest shall be deemed to have been used by the insurer in determining the premiums for the policy.

(4) For the purposes of subsection (3), a "present value" referred to in that subsection shall be computed by using the rates of mortality and other probabilities used by the insurer in determining its premiums, after making any revision required by subsection (2).

(5) For the purposes of subsection (1), where a record of the rate of interest or mortality used by an insurer in determining the premiums for a policy is not available,

(a) the insurer may, if the policy was issued before 1978, make a reasonable estimate of the rate; and

(b) the Minister, on the advice of the Superintendent of Insurance for Canada, may

(i) if the policy was issued before 1978 and the insurer has not made the estimate referred to in paragraph (a), or

(ii) if the policy was issued after 1977,

make a reasonable estimate of the rate.

(6) Notwithstanding paragraph 1401(1)(c), a life insurer in computing its income for a taxation year may, in respect of any class of life insurance policies issued before its 1988 taxation year, other than policies referred to in paragraph 1401(1)(a) or (b), use a method of approximation to convert the reserve in respect of such policies reported by the insurer in its annual report to the relevant authority for the year to an amount that is a reasonable estimate of the amount that would otherwise be determined for such policies under paragraph 1401(1)(c), provided that that method of approximation is acceptable to the Minister on the advice of the relevant authority.

(7) For the purposes of subsection (1) and notwithstanding any other provision of this section, where

(a) an individual annuity contract was issued prior to 1969 by a life insurer, or

(b) a benefit was purchased prior to 1969 under a group annuity contract issued by a life insurer, and the contract

(c) is a policy in respect of which the provisions of paragraph 1401(1)(c) as it read in its application to the insurer's 1977 taxation year applied, the rates of interest and mortality used by the insurer in computing its reserve for the policy under that paragraph for its 1977 taxation year shall be used by the insurer in respect of that policy.

(8) For the purposes of subsection (1), where

(a) in a taxation year of an insurer, there has been a disposition to the insurer by another person with whom the insurer was dealing at arm's length in respect of which subsection 138(11.92) of the Act applied,

(b) as a result of the disposition, the insurer assumed obligations under life insurance policies (in this subsection referred to as the "transferred policies") in respect of which an amount may be claimed by the insurer as a reserve under paragraph 1401(1)(c) for the taxation year,

(c) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the aggregate of all amounts received or receivable by the insurer from the other person in respect of the transferred policies referred to in paragraph (b)

exceeds

(ii) the aggregate of all amounts paid or payable by the insurer to the other person in respect of commissions in respect of the amounts referred to in subparagraph (i)

exceeds the total of the maximum amounts that may be claimed by the insurer as a reserve under paragraph 1401(1)(c) (determined without reference to this subsection) in respect of the transferred policies for the taxation year, and

(d) the amount determined under paragraph (c) (in this subsection referred to as "reserve deficiency") can reasonably be attributed to the fact that the rates of interest or mortality used by the issuer of the transferred policies in determining the cash surrender values or premiums under such policies are no longer reasonable in the circumstances, the Minister, on the request of the insurer and with the advice of the relevant authority, may make such revision to the rates of interest or mortality to eliminate all or any part of that reserve deficiency, and those revised rates shall be deemed to have been used by the issuer of the transferred policies in determining the cash surrender value or premiums under the policies.

Proposed Amendment — Regs. 1404–1408

DIVISION III — POLICY RESERVES FOR POST-1995 POLICIES

1404. Life insurance business — (1) For the purpose of subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) of the Act, there may be deducted in computing a life insurer's income from carrying on its life insurance business in Canada for a taxation year in respect of its life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies, the amount the insurer claims, not exceeding

(a) the amount determined under subsection (3) in respect of the insurer for the year, where that amount is greater than nil, and

(b) nil, in any other case.

Technical Notes: New section 1404 establishes the basis for determining the amount an insurer may deduct under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) of the Act as a policy reserve in respect of its life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies. A "post-1995 life insurance policy" is defined by subsection 1408(1) of the Regulations. Section 1404 is divided into four subsections.

New subsection 1404(1) provides that, for the purpose of subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) of the Act, the amount that may be deducted by an insurer as a policy reserve in respect of its life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies is the amount determined under the formula in subsection 1404(3) of the Regulations. Where that amount is a positive number, new subsection 1404(1) provides that that amount is the deductible amount; however, where that amount is equal to or less than nil, the amount deductible is nil.

(2) For the purpose of paragraph 138(4)(b) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of an insurer for a taxation year, in respect of its life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies, is

(a) the absolute value of the amount determined under subsection (3) in respect of the insurer for the year, where that amount is less than nil, and

(b) nil, in any other case.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1404(2) provides that, for the purposes of paragraph 138(4)(b) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies is the absolute value of the amount determined under the formula in subsection 1404(3) of the Regulations, where that amount is less than nil. Where, however, the amount determined under subsection 1404(3) is equal to or greater than nil, the prescribed amount is nil.

To summarize, where the amount determined under subsection 1404(3) is positive, that is the amount deductible under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) of the Act. Under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) of the Act, an amount not exceeding such prescribed amount may be deducted as a policy reserve in respect of an insurer's life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies. Where, however, the amount determined under subsection 1404(3) is negative, then the absolute value of that "negative reserve" is (subject to the transitional relief provided in new subsection 1404(4)) the prescribed amount for the purpose of paragraph 138(4)(b) of the Act.

(3) For the purposes of paragraphs (1)(a) and (2)(a), the amount determined under this subsection in respect of an insurer for a taxation year, in respect of its life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies, is the amount, which may be positive or negative, determined by the formula

where

A is the amount (except to the extent the amount is determined in respect of a policy, claim, premium, dividend or refund in respect of which an amount is included in determining the value of B, C or D), in respect of the insurer's life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies, equal to the lesser of

(a) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of those policies, and

(b) the total of the policy liabilities of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of those policies;

B is the amount, in respect of the insurer's life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies under which there may be claims incurred before the end of the year that have not been reported to the insurer before the end of the year, equal to 95% of the lesser of

(a) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the possibility that there are such claims, and

(b) the total of the policy liabilities of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the possibility that there are such claims;

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the unearned portion at the end of the year of the net premium for the policy where the policy is a group term life insurance policy that

(a) provides coverage for a period that does not exceed 12 months,

(b) is a life insurance policy in Canada, and

(c) is a post-1995 life insurance policy,

determined by apportioning the net premium equally over the period to which that premium relates;

D is the total of all amounts (other than an amount deductible under subsection 138(3)(a)(v) of the Act) each of which is the amount that is the least of

in respect of a dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits provided for under the terms of a group life insurance policy that is a life insurance policy in Canada that is a post-1995 life insurance policy that will be

(a) used by the insurer to reduce or eliminate a future adverse claims experience under the policy,

(b) paid or unconditionally credited to the policyholder by the insurer, or

(c) applied in discharge, in whole or in part, of a liability of the policyholder to pay premiums to the insurer under the policy,

where

P is a reasonable amount as a reserve as at the end of the year in respect of the dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits provided for under the terms of the policy,

Q is 25 per cent of the amount of the premium under the terms of the policy for the 12-month period ending

(i) on the day the policy is terminated, if the policy is terminated in the year, and

(ii) at the end of the year, in any other case, and

R is the amount of the reported reserve of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits provided for under the terms of the policy; and

M is the total of all amounts determined in respect of a life insurance policy in Canada that is a post-1995 life insurance policy each of which is

(a) an amount payable in respect of a policy loan under the policy, or

(b) interest that has accrued to the insurer to the end of the year in respect of a policy loan under the policy.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1404(3) sets out a formula for determining the amount prescribed for the purposes of subsections 1404(1) and (2) of the Regulations. The total amount determined under this formula in subsection 1404(3), as well as the individual amounts determined under each of the components of the formula, may be equal to, greater or less than, nil (see new section 1407 of the Regulations).

The general policy reserve in respect of life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies is found in the description for A of the formula in subsection 1404(3) of the Regulations. This reserve replaces the existing reserves for such policies contained in paragraphs (a), (c) and (d) of subsection 1401(1) of the Regulations, the application of which, for the 1996 and subsequent taxation years, is limited to pre-1996 life insurance policies. The reserves contained in paragraphs (a), (c) and (d) of subsection 1401(1) are for, respectively, deposit administration fund policies, actuarial liabilities in respect of policies other than deposit administration fund policies and group term life policies with a term of up to 12 months, and policies that provide for certain additional benefits and guarantees under life insurance policies.

In general terms, the amount of the reserve determined under the description of A is equal to the lesser of two amounts: (1) the total of the reported reserves of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of post-1995 life insurance policies and (2) the total of the policy liabilities of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of such policies.

The terms "reported reserve" and "policy liability" are defined in new subsection 1408(1) of the Regulations.

Where an insurer is subject to the supervision of the "relevant authority" throughout a taxation year, the "reported reserve" of the insurer at the end of that year in respect of a life insurance policy or a claim, possible claim or risk under a life insurance policy means the positive or negative amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's annual report to the "relevant authority" in respect of that policy, claim, possible claim or risk if the reserve had been determined without reference to projected income and capital taxes of the insurer (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). Where the insurer is subject to the supervision of the relevant authority throughout its taxation year but is not required to file a report for a period ending coincidentally with the year, or the insurer is the CMHC or a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, it is the amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's financial statements if they had been prepared in accordance with GAAP and without reference to income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). In any other case, the reported reserve is nil.

The "policy liability" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year in respect of a life insurance policy or a claim, possible claim or risk under a life insurance policy means the positive or negative amount of the reserve in respect of the insurer's liability in respect of the policy, claim, possible claim or risk determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, but without reference to income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act).

The description of B in new subsection 1404(3) provides a reserve in respect of the possibility that there may be claims under post-1995 life insurance policies that have not been reported to the insurer. Existing paragraphs 1401(1)(d.1) and (d.2) provide a reserve for such incurred but not reported claims in respect of pre-1996 life insurance policies.

The reserve under "B" in respect of a life insurance policy is equal to 95% of the lesser of two amounts: (1) the total of the insurer's reported reserves in respect of possible claims under the policy and (2) the total of the insurer's policy liabilities in respect of such claims. The terms "reported reserve" and "policy liability" are defined in new subsection 1408(1) and described in the commentary therefor.

The description of C in new subsection 1404(3) provides for the determination of a reserve amount for unearned premiums in respect of group term life insurance policies that provide coverage for a period of up to 12 months. The description of C parallels the reserve in paragraph 1401(1)(b) of the Regulations, the application of which, for the 1996 and subsequent taxation years, is restricted to group term life insurance policies that are pre-1996 life insurance policies.

The description of D in new subsection 1404(3) provides for the determination of a reserve amount for, in general terms, future adverse claims experience in respect of group life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies. The description of D parallels the reserve in paragraph 1401(1)(c.1) of the Regulations, the application of which, for the 1996 and subsequent taxation years, is restricted to group life insurance policies that are pre-1996 life insurance policies.

The additional reserve provided under paragraph 1401(1)(e) in respect of qualified annuities of an insurer has no corollary under the new policy reserve rules in Division III of Part XIV, as these rules are solely applicable to life insurance policies that are not pre-1996 life insurance policies, that is, post-1995 life insurance policies.

The description of M in new subsection 1404(3) provides a deduction for outstanding policy loans and interest accrued thereon in the computation of the reserve amount under that subsection. This is in keeping with the view that policy loans represent a pre-payment of benefits.

(4) Notwithstanding subsection (3), the amount determined under that subsection in respect of an insurer for a taxation year that ends before 2001 is deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount that would, but for this subsection, be the amount determined under subsection (3) in respect of the insurer for the year;

B is, where the year ends in

(a) 1996, 100%,

(b) 1997, 80%,

(c) 1998, 60%,

(d) 1999, 40%, and

(e) 2000, 20%;

C is the total of all amounts each of which is the absolute value of any amount that is less than nil and that is used in computing

(a) the amount that is the lesser of the totals determined for the year under the description of I in subsection 1400(3), in respect of a risk under a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy of the insurer that is a post-1995 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy, or

(b) the amount that is the lesser of the totals determined for the year under the description of A in subsection (3), in respect of a liability or risk under a life insurance policy in Canada of the insurer that is a post-1995 life insurance policy; and

D is the lesser of

(a) 5% of the total of all amounts each of which is a premium received by the insurer in the year or any preceding taxation year ending after 1995 in respect of

(i) a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy, or

(ii) a life insurance policy in Canada, and

(b) the value of C.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1404(4) is a transitional measure which provides relief, in certain circumstances, for negative reserves arising under the description of I in new subsection 1400(3) or the description of A in new subsection 1404(3). Those provisions provide for reserves in respect of an insurer's non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies that are post-1995 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies and in respect of its life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies. More specifically, new subsection 1404(4) may operate to increase a life insurer's total policy reserve (or, if such a reserve is negative, decrease the amount by which it is negative) otherwise determined under subsection 1404(3), for its taxation years ending after 1995 and before 2001, by a decreasing percentage of an amount. That amount is the amount, if any, by which the absolute value of the total of the negative reserves used in the computation of the reserve amount under the descriptions of I or A in, respectively, subsection 1400(3) or 1404(3) for the year, exceeds 5% of the total of the premiums received by the insurer in each of those years in respect of its non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policies and its life insurance policies in Canada (including "pre-1996" policies). The following example illustrates the mechanics of the rule.

Assume that a life insurer with a December 31 year-end issues insurance policies in 1996 and 1997. Certain of these policies (the "I policies") are subject to the reserve rules under the description of I in subsection 1400(3), while the rest (the "A policies") are subject to the rules under the description of A in subsection 1404(3). Assume further that no other reserves may be claimed in respect of the policies. The total amount of premiums received by the insurer in respect of all policies (including "pre-1996" policies) is $10,000 in 1996 and $14,000 in 1997. The following reserves, both positive and negative, were computed in respect of the A and I policies for those years:

Policies	A Policies		I Policies
Reserves	1996	1997	1996	1997
— negative	(800)	(600)	(200)	(100)
— net	200	600	(200)	(100)
Policy liabilities
— positive	1200	1400	100	100
— net	400	800	(100)	0

Therefore, the lesser of the totals determined under the descriptions of A in subsection 1404(3) and I in subsection 1400(3) in respect of the A and I policies for the insurer's 1996 taxation year, is the total of the reported reserves for those policies. Given the above, the amount deemed by subsection 1404(4) to be the insurer's policy reserve under subsection 1404(3) for its 1996 taxation year is computed as follows:

$A + (B \times (C - D))$ [with the term (C–D) never less than zero]

where

A is 200, that is, the total of the reported reserves in respect of the A policies for the insurer's 1996 taxation year;

B is 100%, as the insurer's taxation year ends in 1996;

C is 1,000, that is, the absolute value of the negative amounts (800 + 200), determined on a policy-by-policy basis, used in computing the insurer's reported reserves (as the total reported reserves is the least of the totals determined under the descriptions of A in subsection 1404(3) and I in subsection 1400(3)) in respect of the A and I policies for the insurer's 1996 taxation year; and

D is 500 or 5% of the $10,000 premiums received by the insurer in its 1996 taxation year in respect of all policies.

Therefore, the insurer's policy reserve under subsection 1404(3) for its 1996 taxation year is $700.

For the insurer's 1997 taxation year, the amount deemed by subsection 1404(4) to be the insurer's policy reserve under subsection 1404(3) is computed as follows:

$A + (B \times (C - D))$ [with the term (C–D) never less than zero]

where

A is 600, that is, the total of the reported reserves in respect of the A policies for the insurer's 1997 taxation year;

B is 80%, as the insurer's taxation year ends in 1997;

C is 700, that is, the total of all amounts each of which is the absolute value of the negative amounts used in computing the reported reserves for 1997 (600) in respect of the A policies, and the reported reserves for 1997 (100) in respect of the I policies; and

D is the lesser of 1,200 (5% × ($10,000 premiums received in 1996 + $14,000 premiums received in 1997)), and (in order to avoid a negative amount) the value of C or 700.

Therefore, the insurer's policy reserve under subsection 1404(3) for its 1997 taxation year is $600.

1405. For the purpose of subparagraph 138(3)(a)(ii) of the Act, there may be deducted in computing a life insurer's income for a taxation year the amount it claims as a reserve in respect of an unpaid claim received by the insurer before the end of the year under a life insurance policy in Canada that is a post-1995 life insurance policy, not exceeding the lesser of

(a) the reported reserve of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the claim; and

(b) the policy liability of the insurer at the end of the year in respect of the claim.

Technical Notes: New section 1405 sets out the basis for determining the amount an insurer is permitted to deduct pursuant to subparagraph 138(3)(a)(ii) of the Act as a reserve in respect of its reported unpaid claims at the end of a taxation year under its life insurance policies in Canada that are post-1995 life insurance policies. Policies that are pre-1996 life insurance policies will continue to be governed by the rules in subsection 1401(4) of the Regulations.

The reserve under section 1405 is equal to the lesser of two amounts: (1) the insurer's reported reserve in respect of a reported unpaid claim and (2) the insurer's policy liability in respect of that claim. The terms "reported reserve" and "policy liability" are defined in new subsection 1408(1) and described in the commentary therefor.

Definitions [Reg. 1405]: "amount", "insurer" — ITA 248(1); "life insurance policy" — Reg. 1404(2), (6), 1408(1), (5); "life insurance policy in Canada" — ITA 138(12), Reg. 1404(1); "life insurer" — ITA 248(1); "policy liability" — Reg. 1408(1); "reported reserve" — Reg. 1404(2), 1408(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249.

1406. Any amount determined under section 1404 or 1405 shall be determined

(a) on a net of reinsurance ceded basis; and

(b) without reference to any liability in respect of a segregated fund (other than a liability in respect of a guarantee in respect of a segregated fund policy).

Technical Notes: New sections 1406 and 1407 provide rules for the purpose of computing the policy reserves under new sections 1404 and 1405 in respect of life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies.

New section 1406 provides that any amounts determined under sections 1404 and 1405 shall be determined

- on a net of reinsurance ceded basis, and
- without reference to a liability in respect of a segregated fund.

Definitions [Reg. 1406]: "amount" — ITA 248(1); "segregated fund", "segregated fund policy" — ITA 138.1(1), Reg. 1408(1).

1407. For greater certainty, any amount referred to or determined under section 1404 or 1405 may be equal to, or less than, nil.

Technical Notes: New section 1407 clarifies that any amounts referred to or determined under sections 1404 and 1405 of the Regulations, in connection with an insurer's reserves in respect of its life insurance policies that are post-1995 life insurance policies, may be negative amounts. A parallel rule is provided in new section 1402.1 for the purposes of the existing reserve provisions in section 1400 of the Regulations.

Definitions [Reg. 1407]: "amount" — ITA 248(1).

DIVISION IV — INTERPRETATION

1408. Insurance businesses — (1) The definitions in this subsection apply in this Part.

"acquisition costs" of a policy means

(a) 5 per cent of the premium paid by the policyholder for the policy where the policy is

(i) a group policy,

(ii) a policy that insures a risk in respect of a financial loss of a lender on a loan made on the security of real property,

(iii) a policy issued under an arrangement with a person (other than an insurer or an insurance agent or broker) with whom the insurer does not deal at arm's length whereby a customer of the person is referred to the insurer,

(iv) a policy issued to a member of a credit union as a consequence of an arrangement with a credit union, where

(A) the insurer was established primarily to provide insurance to members of credit unions,

(B) the policyholder was referred to the insurer, and

(C) the principal business of the insurer is the provision of insurance to members of credit unions, or

(v) a policy issued to a policyholder that is a corporation with which the insurer does not deal at arm's length, and

(b) in any other case, 20 per cent of the premium paid by the policyholder for the policy.

Technical Notes: New section 1408 of Division IV of Part XIV provides a number of definitions and interpretative rules (some of which were previously found in section 1404) for the purposes of the rules in Divisions I, II and III of Part XIV dealing with the determination of insurance reserves. Those definitions and rules which are new or that have undergone significant amendments are dealt with below.

The term "acquisition costs" of a policy for a taxation year is amended in order to delete the transitional provisions in subparagraphs 1404(2)(a)(v) and (vi) of that definition.

"amount payable", in respect of a policy loan at a particular time, means the amount of the policy loan and the interest thereon that is outstanding at that time.

"benefit" in respect of a policy includes

(a) a policy dividend (other than a policy dividend in respect of a policy described in paragraph 1403(1)(c)) in respect of the policy to the extent that the dividend was specifically treated as a benefit by the insurer in determining a premium for the policy, and

(b) an expense of maintaining the policy after all premiums in respect of the policy have been paid to the extent that the expense was specifically provided for by the insurer in determining a premium for the policy, but does not include

(c) a policy loan,

(d) interest on funds left on deposit with the insurer under the terms of the policy, and

(e) any other amount under the policy that was not specifically provided for by the insurer in determining a premium for the policy.

"capital tax" means a tax imposed under Part I.3 or VI of the Act or a similar tax imposed under an Act of the legislature of a province.

Technical Notes: "Capital tax" means the tax imposed under Part I.3 or VI of the Act or a similar tax imposed by a province.

"cash surrender value" has the meaning assigned by subsection 148(9) of the Act.

"claim liability" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year means

(a) in respect of a claim reported to the insurer before that time under an insurance policy, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the present value at that time, computed using a rate of interest that is reasonable in the circumstances, of a reasonable estimate, determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, of the insurer's future payments and claim adjustment expenses in respect of the claim

(ii) the present value at that time, computed using a rate of interest that is reasonable in the circumstances, of a reasonable estimate, determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, of the amounts that the insurer will recover after that time in respect of the claim because of salvage, subrogation or any other reason, and

(b) in respect of the possibility that there are claims under an insurance policy incurred before that time that have not been reported to the insurer before that time, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the present value at that time, computed using a rate of interest that is reasonable in the circumstances, of a reasonable estimate, determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, of the insurer's payments and claim adjustment expenses in respect of those claims

(ii) the present value at that time, computed using a rate of interest that is reasonable in the circumstances, of a reasonable estimate, determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, of the amounts that the insurer will recover in respect of those claims because of salvage, subrogation or any other reason.

Technical Notes: The "claim liability" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year in respect of an unpaid claim is defined as a reasonable estimate, determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, of the present value of future payments and claim adjustment expenses in respect of the claim, over the present value of amounts to be recovered in respect of the claim because of salvage, subrogation or any other reason.

The "claim liability" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year in respect of the possibility that there are claims that have been incurred before that time but not reported, is defined as a reasonable estimate, determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, of the present value at that time of future payments and claim adjustment expenses that it will incur in respect of such claims, over the present value at that time of amounts to be recovered in respect of the claim because of salvage, subrogation or any other reason.

"extended motor vehicle warranty" means an agreement (referred to in this definition as the "extended warranty") under which a person agrees to provide goods or render services in respect of the repair or maintenance of a motor vehicle manufactured by the person or a corporation related to the person where

(a) the extended warranty is in addition to a basic or limited warranty in respect of the vehicle,

(b) the basic or limited warranty has a term of 3 or more years, although it may expire before the end of such term upon the vehicle's odometer registering a specified number of kilometres or miles,

(c) more than 50 per cent of the expenses to be incurred under the extended warranty are reasonably expected to be incurred after the expiry of the basic or limited warranty, and

(d) the person's risk under the extended warranty is insured by an insurer that is subject to the supervision of a relevant authority.

Technical Notes: The term "extended motor vehicle warranty" is defined as a warranty agreement issued by a person in respect of a motor vehicle it or a corporation related to it manufactured where

- there exists a basic or limited warranty in respect of the vehicle,
- the basic warranty is for a term of at least 3 years, although it may expire earlier if the vehicle registers a certain distance before that time,
- it is reasonable to expect that more than 50% of the expenses under the warranty will be incurred after the basic warranty expires, and
- the company insuring the manufacturer's risk under the warranty is a regulated insurer.

"general amending provision" of an insurance policy means a provision of the policy that allows it to be amended with the consent of the policyholder.

Technical Notes: A "general amending provision" is a provision of an insurance policy that allows the policy to be amended with the consent of the policyholder.

"interest", in relation to a policy loan, has the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12).

Technical Notes: The terms "interest" and "life insurance policy in Canada" in subsection 138(12) of the Act have been added to the list of definitions that were in former section 1404 of the Regulations.

"lapse-supported policy" means a life insurance policy that would require materially higher premiums if premiums were determined using policy lapse rates that are zero after the fifth policy year.

"life insurance policy" includes a benefit under a group life insurance policy or a group annuity contract.

Related Provisions: ITA 138(4.01) — Same rule for purposes of ITA 138(3) and (4).

"life insurance policy in Canada" means a life insurance policy issued or effected by an insurer on the life of a person resident in Canada at the time the policy was issued or effected.

Technical Notes: See under 1408(1)"interest".

"modified net premium", in respect of a premium under a policy (other than a prepaid premium under a policy that cannot be refunded except on termination of the policy), means

(a) where all benefits (other than policy dividends) and premiums (other than the frequency of payment of premiums) in respect of the policy are determined at the date of issue of the policy, the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount of the premium,

B is the present value, at the date of the issue of the policy, of the amount of the benefits to be provided under the terms of the policy after the day that is one year after the date of the issue of the policy,

C is the present value, at the date of the issue of the policy, of the amount of the benefits to be provided under the terms of the policy after the day that is two years after the date of the issue of the policy,

D is the present value, at the date of the issue of the policy, of the amount of the premiums payable under the terms of the policy on or after the day that is one year after the date of the issue of the policy, and

E is the present value, at the date of the issue of the policy, of the amount of the premiums payable under the terms of the policy on or after the day that is two years after the date of the issue of the policy, except that the amount determined by the formula in respect of the premium for the second year of a policy is deemed to be the amount that is 1/2 of the total of

(i) the amount that would otherwise be determined under the formula, and

(ii) the amount of a one-year term insurance premium (determined without regard to the frequency of payment of the premium) that would be payable under the policy, and

(b) in any other case, the amount that would be determined under paragraph (a) if that paragraph applied and the amount were adjusted in a manner that is reasonable in the circumstances.

"net premium for the policy" means the amount by which the premium paid by the policyholder for the policy exceeds the acquisition costs of the policy.

"non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" includes a benefit under a group non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy.

Technical Notes: A "non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" is defined to include a benefit under a group non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy. A parallel rule exists for life insurance policies.

"participating life insurance policy" has the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12) of the Act.

"policy liability" of an insurer at the end of the taxation year in respect of an insurance policy or a claim, possible claim or risk under an insurance policy means the positive or negative amount of the insurer's reserve in respect of its potential liability in respect of the policy, claim, possible claim or risk at the end of the year determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, but without reference to projected income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act).

Technical Notes: "Policy liability" of an insurer at the end of the taxation year in respect of an insurance policy or claim, possible claim or risk under an insurance policy means the positive or negative amount of the reserve in respect of the insurer's liability in respect of the policy, claim, possible claim or risk determined in accordance with accepted actuarial practice, but without reference to income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act).

"policy loan" has the meaning assigned by subsection 138(12) of the Act.

"post-1995 life insurance policy" means a life insurance policy that is not a pre-1996 life insurance policy.

Technical Notes: A "post-1995 life insurance policy" is simply defined as a life insurance policy that is not a "pre-1996 life insurance policy".

"post-1995 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" means a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy that is not a pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy.

Technical Notes: A "post-1995 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" is simply defined as a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy that is not a "pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy".

"pre-1996 life insurance policy", at any time, means a life insurance policy where

(a) the policy was issued before 1996; and

(b) before that time and after 1995 there has been no change, except in accordance with the provisions (other than a general amending provision) of the policy as they existed on December 31, 1995, to

(i) the amount of any benefit under the policy,

(ii) the amount of any premium or other amount payable under the policy, or

(iii) the number of premium or other payments under the policy.

Technical Notes: A "pre-1996 life insurance policy" is a life insurance policy that was issued before 1996 and in respect of which there has been no change to the amount or number of premium payments or the amount of benefits under the policy after 1995 except in accordance with the provisions of the policy as they existed on December 31, 1995. However, if such a change occurs pursuant to a "general amending provision" of the policy, it will lose its status as a pre-1996 policy. The term "general amending provision" is defined in new subsection 1408(1) and described in the commentary therefor.

"pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy", at any time, means a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy where

(a) the policy was issued before 1996; and

(b) before that time and after 1995 there has been no change, except in accordance with the provisions (other than a general amending provision) of the policy as they existed on December 31, 1995, to

(i) the amount of any benefit under the policy,

(ii) the amount of any premium or other amount payable under the policy, or

(iii) the number of premium or other payments under the policy.

Technical Notes: A "pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" means a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy, which, for this purpose, includes a benefit under a group policy, that was issued before 1996 and in respect of which there has been no change to the amount or number of premium payments or the amount of benefits under the policy after 1995 except in accordance with the provisions of the policy as they existed on December 31, 1995. However, if such a change occurs pursuant to a "general amending provision" of the policy, it will lose its status as a pre-1996 policy. The term "general amending provision" is defined in subsection 1408(1) and described in the commentary therefor.

"qualified annuity" means an annuity contract issued before 1982, other than a deposit administration fund policy or a policy referred to in paragraph 1403(7)(c),

(a) in respect of which regular periodic annuity payments have commenced,

(b) in respect of which a contract or certificate has been issued that provides for regular periodic annuity payments to commence within one year from the date of issue of the contract or certificate,

(c) that is not issued as or under a registered retirement savings plan, registered pension plan or deferred profit sharing plan and that

(i) does not provide for a guaranteed cash surrender value at any time, and

(ii) provides for regular periodic annuity payments to commence not later than the attainment of age 71 by the annuitant, or

(d) that is issued as or under a registered retirement savings plan, registered pension plan or deferred profit sharing plan, if the interest rate is guaranteed for at least 10 years and the plan does not provide for any participation in profits, directly or indirectly.

"reinsurance commission" in respect of a policy means

(a) where the risk under the policy is fully reinsured, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the net premium for the policy

exceeds

(ii) the consideration payable by the insurer in respect of the reinsurance of the risk, and

(b) where the risk under the policy is not fully reinsured, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the portion of the net premium for the policy that may reasonably be considered to be in respect of the portion of the risk that is reinsured with a particular reinsurer

exceeds

(ii) the consideration payable by the insurer to the particular reinsurer in respect of the risk assumed by the reinsurer.

"relevant authority" of an insurer means

(a) the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, if the insurer is required by law to report to the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, and

(b) in any other case, the Superintendent of Insurance or other similar officer or authority of the province under whose laws the insurer is incorporated.

Technical Notes: Where an insurer is subject to the supervision of the "relevant authority" throughout a taxation year, the "reported reserve" of the insurer at the end of that year in respect of an insurance policy or a claim, possible claim or risk under an insurance policy means the positive or negative amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's annual report to the relevant authority in respect of that policy, claim, possible claim or risk if the reserve had been determined without reference to income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). Where the insurer is subject to the supervision of the relevant authority throughout its taxation year but is not required to file a report for a period ending coincidentally with the year, or the insurer is the CMHC or a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, it is the amount of the reserve that would have been reported in the insurer's financial statements if they had been prepared in accordance with GAAP and without reference to income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act). In any other case, the reported reserve is nil.

"reported reserve" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year in respect of an insurance policy or a claim, possible claim, risk, dividend, refund of premiums or refund of premium deposits under an insurance policy means the amount equal to

(a) where the insurer is required to file an annual report with its relevant authority for a period ending coincidentally with the year, the positive or negative amount of the reserve that would be reported in that report in respect of the insurer's potential liability under the policy if the reserve were determined without reference to projected income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act),

(b) where the insurer is, throughout the year, subject to the supervision of its relevant authority and paragraph (a) does not apply, the positive or negative amount of the reserve that would be reported in its financial statements for the year in respect of the insurer's potential liability under the policy if

(i) those statements were prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and

(ii) the reserve were determined without reference to projected income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act),

(c) where the insurer is the Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation or a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer resident in Canada, the positive or negative amount of the reserve that would be reported in its financial statements for the year in respect of the insurer's potential liability under the policy if

(i) those statements were prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, and

(ii) the reserve were determined without reference to projected income and capital taxes (other than the tax payable under Part XII.3 of the Act), and

(d) in any other case, nil.

Technical Notes: See under 1408(1)"relevant authority".

"segregated fund" has the meaning given that expression in subsection 138.1(1).

Technical Notes: The terms "segregated fund" and "segregated fund policy" have been added to the list of definitions in former section 1404 of the Regulations, and have the meanings given those expressions in subsection 138.1(1) of the Act.

"segregated fund policy" has the meaning given that expression in subsection 138.1(1).

Technical Notes: See under 1408(1)"segregated fund".

(2) The definition "group term life insurance policy" in subsection 248(1) of the Act does not apply to this Part.

(3) For the purpose of the definition "modified net premium" in subsection (1), it may be assumed that premiums are payable annually in advance.

(4) For the purposes of this Part,

(a) a reference to a "premium paid by the policyholder" shall, depending on the method regularly following by the insurer in computing its income, be read as a reference to a "premium paid or payable by the policyholder"; and

(b) in determining the premium paid by a policyholder for a policy, there may be deducted by the insurer the portion, if any, of the premium that

(i) can reasonably be considered, at the time the policy is issued, to be a deposit that, pursuant to the terms of the policy or the by-laws of the insurer, will be returned to the policyholder, or credited to the account of the policyholder, by the insurer on the termination of the policy, and

(ii) was not otherwise deducted under section 140 of the Act.

(5) For the purposes of this Part, any rider that is attached to a life insurance policy and that provides for additional life insurance or for an annuity is a separate life insurance policy.

(6) For the purposes of this Part, any rider that is attached to a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy that provides for additional non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness insurance, as the case may be, is a separate non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1408(6) provides that a rider attached to a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy that provides for additional non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness insurance, as the case may be, is a separate policy. This will ensure that such a rider issued after 1995 will not, in and of itself, cause a non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy to lose its status as a "pre-1996" policy. A parallel rule is provided in subsection 1408(5) with respect to life insurance policies.

(7) For the purposes of the definitions "pre-1996 life insurance policy" and "pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" in subsection (1), a change in the amount of any benefit or in the amount or number of any premiums or other amounts payable under a policy is deemed not to have occurred where the change results from

(a) a change in underwriting class;

(b) a change in frequency of premium payments within a year that does not alter the present value, at the beginning of the year, of the total premiums to be paid under the policy in the year;

(c) the deletion of a rider;

(d) the correction of erroneous information;

(e) the reinstatement of the policy after its lapse, if the reinstatement occurs not later than 60 days after the end of the calendar year in which the lapse occurred;

(f) the redating of the policy for policy loan indebtedness; or

(g) an increase in the amount of a benefit under the policy that is granted by the insurer on a class basis, where

(i) no consideration was payable by the policyholder or any other person for the increase, and

(ii) the increase was not made because of the terms or conditions of the policy or any other policy or contract to which the insurer is a party.

Technical Notes: New subsection 1408(7) provides that, for the purposes of the definitions "pre-1996 life insurance policy" and "pre-1996 non-cancellable or guaranteed renewable accident and sickness policy" in subsection 1408(1), a change in the amount of any benefit or in the amount or number of any premiums payable under a life insurance policy resulting from certain listed transactions or events in respect of the policy, is deemed not to have occurred.

DIVISION IV — INTERPRETATION

1703. (1) Taxation years for individuals in business — Where a taxpayer is an individual and his income for the taxation year includes income from a business the fiscal period of which does not coincide with the calendar year, in respect of depreciable properties acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from the business, a reference in this Part to

(a) "the taxation year" shall be deemed to be a reference to the fiscal period of the business; and

(b) "the end of the taxation year" shall be deemed to be a reference to the end of the fiscal period of the business.

(2) Depreciable cost — In this Part, "depreciable cost" to a taxpayer of property means, except as otherwise provided, the actual cost of the property to the taxpayer or the amount at which he is deemed under subsection 13(7) of the Act to have acquired the property, as the case may be.

(3) Notwithstanding the other provisions of this section, in the case of property the cost of which to a partnership has been determined under paragraph 20(5)(a) of the Income Tax Application Rules, the depreciable cost to the taxpayer of the property for the purposes of this Part shall be deemed to be an amount equal to the cost to the partnership of the particular property as determined under that paragraph.

(4) Personal use of property — Where a taxpayer has, in a taxation year, regularly used a property in part for the purpose of gaining or producing income from farming or fishing and in part for a purpose other than gaining or producing income, the depreciable cost to the taxpayer of the property for the purposes of this Part is the proportion of the amount that would otherwise be the depreciable cost that the use regularly made of the property for the purpose of gaining or producing income from farming or fishing is of the whole use regularly made of the property.

History: S. 2200 amended by P.C. 1994-1817, para. 62(c), November 1, 1994, Canada Gazette, Part II, November 30, 1994.

Definitions [Reg. 2200]: "Minister" — ITA 248(1); "security", "writing" — Interpretation Act 35(1).

Proposed Addition — Reg. 2201

2201. (1) For the purpose of subsection 227(4.2) of the Act, "prescribed security interest", in relation to an amount deemed by subsection 227(4) of the Act to be held in trust by a person means that part of a mortgage securing the performance of an obligation of the person, that encumbers land or a building, where the mortgage is registered pursuant to the appropriate land registration system before the time the amount is deemed to be held in trust by the person.

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1) where, at any time after 1999, the person referred to in subsection (1) fails to pay an amount deemed by subsection 227(4) to be held in trust by the person, as required under the Act, the amount of the prescribed security interest referred to in subsection (1) is deemed not to exceed the amount by which the amount, at that time, of the obligation outstanding secured by the mortgage exceeds the total of

(a) all amounts each of which is the value determined at the time of the failure, having regard to all the circumstances including the existence of any deemed trust for the benefit of Her Majesty pursuant to subsection 227(4), of all the rights of the secured creditor securing the obligation, whether granted by the person or not, including guarantees or rights of set-off but not including the mortgage referred to in subsection (1), and

(b) all amounts applied after the time of the failure on account of the obligation, so long as any amount deemed under any enactment administered by the Minister, other than the Excise Tax Act, to be held in trust by the person, remains unpaid.

(3) For greater certainty, a prescribed security interest includes the amount of insurance or expropriation proceeds relating to land or a building that is the subject of a registered mortgage interest, adjusted after 1999 in accordance with subsection (2), but does not include a lien or any other security interest created by statute, an assignment of rents or leases, or a mortgage interest in any equipment or fixtures that a mortgagee or any other person has the right absolutely or conditionally to remove or dispose of separately from the land or building.

Application: The March 11, 1999 draft regulations, s. 2 will add s. 2201, deemed to have come into force on June 15, 1994.

Technical Notes: Subsections 227(4), (4.1) and (4.2) of the Income Tax Act now provide for a reinforced deemed trust in respect of the unremitted source deductions of any person. That statutory security attaches to the property of the person whether or not that property is subject to any other security interest in favour of any other secured creditor. This means that the statutory deemed trust of the Crown will supersede any other security interest and that until and unless all source deductions owing by a person have been remitted to the Receiver General, the property of the person and any property held by a secured creditor that but for a security interest would be property of that person, is beneficially owned by the Crown in satisfaction of the Crown's interest therein. A parallel priority scheme exists under subsections 23 (3), (4) and (4.1) of the Canada Pension Plan and under subsections 86 (2), (2.1) and (2.2) of the Employment Insurance Act. As well, this deemed trust is incorporated into the provincial income tax acts administered by Revenue Canada. There is, however, a limited exception to the priority of these deemed trusts in the case of prescribed security interests.

Proposed sections 8.3 of the Canada Pension Plan Regulations and 10.1 of the Insurable Earnings and Collection of Premiums Regulations will closely parallel the proposed section 2201 of the Income Tax Regulations, attached, and these comments apply equally to these proposed regulations.

Subsection 2201(1) of the Income Tax Regulations defines "prescribed security interest" as mortgages in land or in a building that are duly registered before the deemed trust arises following the withholding of an amount at source. Consequently, any mortgage registered after a deemed trust arises (i.e., following the withholding of an amount at source) will now be subordinated to such pre-existing deemed trust. Where, for example, a loan guaranteed by a mortgage is made while a deemed trust is outstanding in respect of any source deduction and the mortgage is registered without ensuring the payment of these source deductions, the mortgage will not take priority over the deemed trust to the extent of any unpaid source deduction previously held under the deemed trust. Incidentally, it is provided that where the mortgage interest encumbers land or a building as well as other property, only that part of the mortgage attaching to land or a building will be considered a prescribed security interest.

Paragraphs 2201(2)(a) and (b) provide further restrictions that apply after 1999 to the determination of what constitutes a prescribed security interest. In particular, these paragraphs set the maximum amount of a prescribed security interest. It should be noted that the maximum amount of a prescribed security interest is determined by reference to the amount outstanding on the obligation for which it is a security interest at the time of a failure to remit any source deduction.

Paragraph 2201(2)(a) first limits the prescribed security interest to the amount of the obligation that is secured by the mortgage, after deducting the value of all the rights of the secured creditor securing the obligation (i.e., the other collateral securities that guarantee the obligation). This is a form of marshalling imposed in relation to prescribed security interests; it requires secured creditors that enjoy multiple securities to first exhaust their securities that will leave the limited security of the Crown intact. Thus, if a secured creditor enters into a general security agreement involving other collateral securities that guarantee, together with the mortgage on land or building, an obligation, the value to the secured creditor of such collateral securities will grind the amount of the prescribed security interest. In other words, the value of these collateral securities will reduce the security afforded by the mortgage and the amount that may be realized in priority to the Crown's deemed trust. This limitation will only apply in relation to competitions of priority with the Crown and not with other secured creditors. It is intended that the value of the collateral securities will be calculated as their net realizable value in the particular circumstances.

If, for example, to secure a business loan of $100, a mortgage on land is granted together with other collateral securities such as a right of set-off worth $10 and an assignment of property by a person related to the debtor worth $20, the prescribed security interest would be calculated as $70 (i.e., $100 – ($20 + $10) = $70). Assuming that the debtor fails to remit $100 to the Crown, and that the sale of the land yields $100 in addition to the $30 (i.e., $20 + $10) of collateral securities, the prescribed security interest of the lender will be limited to $70 and the Crown will be entitled to get $30 from the proceeds of the land notwithstanding the mortgage in favour of the lender.

Using the same example, if the collateral securities had been a mortgage on the debtor's personal property or an assignment of the debtor's property (rather than property of a person related to the debtor) for a total of $30, that amount would not be deducted in computing the prescribed security interest because the value to the secured creditor of such collateral security would be nil having regard to the fact that the Crown's deemed trust pursuant to subsection 227(4) of the Income Tax Act would take priority over these collateral securities. In this example, the prescribed security interest would be the full amount of the obligation to the secured creditor, i.e., $100. Thus, the value of the collateral securities will reflect the fact that the Crown has a prior claim and that accordingly a grind of the prescribed security interest is not warranted.

Secondly, paragraph 2201(2)(a) also provides that the prescribed security interest is limited to the outstanding amount of the obligation to the secured creditor as calculated at the time of the failure by a person (the common debtor) to remit an amount (remaining unpaid). This means that if advances are made by the secured creditor to the common debtor after a failure to remit, these advances will be excluded in the calculation of the prescribed security interest and will be subordinated to the deemed trust.

Consider a case where at the time a person (the common debtor) fails to remit an amount, the person has a secured creditor who has as sole security a mortgage on land of the person securing a rotating credit arrangement of up to $200. Consider further that only $50 has been advanced (i.e., the amount of obligation outstanding was $50) at the time of the failure to remit. If the secured creditor subsequently advances funds until the debt reaches $200, the prescribed security interest would be limited to $50 notwithstanding that the mortgage secures up to $200 of debt. The subsequent advances of $150 would not be included in determining the prescribed security interest of the secured creditor as only $50 of obligation was outstanding when the failure to remit occurred.

Similarly, paragraph 2201(2)(b) specifies that all amounts paid or credited after the failure by the debtor to remit, on account of the debt to the secured creditor, will further reduce the amount of the prescribed security interest. Thus, a secured creditor that advances funds to a delinquent employer will not be able to avoid the erosion of the prescribed security interest by realizing on the collateral securities before the deemed trust is invoked or by arranging for preferential payments.

Since secured creditors must generally monitor whether a client-employer remits sufficient amounts of source deductions in a timely manner, the aforementioned restrictions are meant to provide them with an incentive to ensure that source deductions are remitted as and when required by their debtor and prevent potential abuses as well as undue benefits or windfalls that could accrue to secured creditors following the failure to remit moneys held in trust for payment to the Receiver General.

Subsection 2201(3) further clarifies that insurance and expropriation proceeds relating to a mortgage on land or a building can be considered to be a prescribed security interest but that statutory liens and security interests are excluded. Similarly excluded are assignments of rents or leases and mortgage interests in equipment or fixtures that may be removed or disposed of separately from the land or building.

Section 2201 applies retroactively from June 14, 1994, the date from which subsection 227(4.1) of the Income Tax Act applies, to provide an exception to the priority of any deemed trust in favour of the Crown for mortgages registered before the deemed trust arises. Conversely, all mortgages registered after a deemed trust arises will now be subject to the deemed trust. However, the limitations set out in subsection 2201(2) will only be applicable in respect of determining the priority of deemed trusts arising after 1999 in relation to prescribed security interests. Thus, the rules in subsection (2) will apply prospectively, starting on January 1st, 2000, to all mortgages on land or building provided a failure to remit source deductions that were deemed to be held in trust occurred after 1999.

(iii) information adequate to enable the Minister to verify the amounts referred to in subparagraphs (i) and (ii), and

(iv) where subsection (3) applies, the position and jurisdiction of the insurance officer or authority referred to therein.

(2) Where an insurer has made an election referred to in subsection (1) and the information that is required to be provided pursuant to subparagraph (1)(b)(iii) is not adequate, in the opinion of the Minister on the advice of the Superintendent of Insurance for Canada, to enable the Minister to verify an amount referred to in that subparagraph, the insurer's life surplus factor shall be determined pursuant to paragraph (c) of the definition "life surplus factor" in subsection 2405(3).

(3) Notwithstanding the definition "relevant authority" in subsection 2405(3), where an insurer has made an election referred to in subsection (1), it may, if it so provides in its election, determine the amount referred to in subparagraph (1)(b)(i) as if "relevant authority" were read as "insurance officer or authority of the country or the political subdivision thereof to whom the insurer is required to report its reserves in respect of its insurance businesses carried on in all countries and territories".

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2400, 2401

Technical Notes: Part XXIV of the Income Tax Regulations sets out special rules for the computation of an insurer's income. The amendments to Part XXIV apply to the 1997 and subsequent taxation years.

Existing section 2400 of the Regulations provides rules for determining the investment property of multinational resident life insurers and non-resident insurers that is considered to be used or held in support of the insurer's Canadian insurance business. The rules in section 2400 have been extensively modified and moved to new section 2401.

In essence, amended section 2400 replaces the definitions and rules which are set out in existing section 2405. Amended subsections 2400(1) and (4) contain definitions for terms and expressions used in Part XXIV of the Regulations. Many of these terms and expressions were previously set out in subsections 2405(1), (2) and (3). Amended subsection 2400(2) sets out rules for determining the carrying value of a property or any other amount under Part XXIV of the Regulations. Amended subsection 2400(3) provides a rule for determining the liabilities of a taxpayer.

2400. (1) Definitions — The definitions in this subsection apply in this Part and in subsection 219(7) of the Act.

"attributed surplus" of a non-resident insurer for a taxation year is the total of

(a) the insurer's property and casualty surplus for the year;

(b) where the insurer elects for the year in prescribed form and manner, 1/2 of the total of

(i) the amount that would have been determined at the end of the year in respect of the insurer under subparagraph (a)(iii) of the definition "Canadian investment fund", and

(ii) the amount that would have been determined at the end of the preceding taxation year in respect of the insurer under subparagraph (a)(iii) of the definition "Canadian investment fund"

if, throughout the year and the preceding taxation year, the insurer had been a life insurer resident in Canada and had not carried on any insurance business other than a life insurance business or an accident and sickness insurance business; and

(c) where the insurer does not elect under paragraph (b) for the year, 120 per cent of the total of all amounts each of which is 1/2 of the amount determined by regulations or guidelines made under Part XIII of the Insurance Companies Act to be the margin of assets in Canada over liabilities in Canada required to be maintained by the insurer as at the end of the year or as at the end of the preceding taxation year in respect of an insurance business carried on in Canada (other than a property and casualty insurance business).

Technical Notes: In general terms, the attributed surplus for the year of a non-resident insurer is a notional calculation of its surplus in respect of its Canadian property and casualty insurance business and Canadian life insurance and accident and sickness insurance businesses.

Under the existing definition, a non-resident insurer's "attributed surplus for the year" is made up of the following two components:

1. surplus in respect of its Canadian property and casualty insurance business, and
2. surplus in respect of its other Canadian insurance businesses. An insurer's other insurance businesses are usually its life insurance and accident and sickness insurance businesses (in this note an insurer's other insurance businesses will be simply referred to as the insurer's life insurance business).

The amount in 1. above is determined by the rules in the definition of "property and casualty surplus" found in subsection 2405(3) of the existing Regulations (now found in subsection 2400(1); for further details see the commentary to that definition, below).

The amount in 2. above is equal to the insurer's life surplus factor (which is a percentage) multiplied by the total amount of its reserves and liabilities in respect of its Canadian life insurance business. An insurer's life surplus factor is determined under the definition of "life surplus factor" (in subsection 2405(3) of the existing Regulations) as one of the following expressed as a percentage:

(a) where the insurer makes an election under section 2401, the surplus the insurer would have been considered to have it if had been a life insurer resident in Canada;

(b) where the insurer made an election under section 2401 in one of the four preceding years, its surplus and liabilities) for the most recent year in which an election was made; or

(c) 10%.

Section 2401 of the existing Regulations sets out the administrative requirements for making an election to determine its surplus as if the non-resident where a life insurer resident in Canada. In essence, an election under section 2401 allowed a non-resident insurer to calculate its surplus as if it were life insurer resident in Canada. Accordingly, where an election is made, the non-resident's Canadian investment fund may be similar to the Canadian investment fund that it would have had if it were a Canadian resident (because attributed surplus is a component of the Canadian investment fund).

The definition of "attributed surplus for the year" is renamed simply "attributed surplus" and is amended with respect to the computation of an insurer's surplus in respect of its Canadian life insurance and accident and sickness insurance businesses. Paragraph (a) of the amended definition retains the property and casualty surplus component of attributed surplus, while the existing "life surplus factor" calculation is replaced by new rules in paragraphs (b) and (c) of the amended definition.

New paragraph (c) of the amended definition of "attributed surplus" contains the general rule for determining surplus is Canada in respect of an insurer's life insurance and accident and sickness insurance businesses in Canada. Under this paragraph an insurer's attributed surplus is 120% of the average of the current year's and the immediately preceding year's margin of assets over liabilities which are required to be maintained by the insurer under the Insurance Companies Act in respect of its Canadian life insurance and accident and sickness insurance businesses.

New paragraph (b) is applicable only where the insurer elects in prescribed form and manner to calculate its surplus using the rules which apply to resident life insurers. As explained in more detail in the commentary to that definition of "Canadian investment fund", subparagraph (a)(iii) of that definition sets out the Canadian portion of a resident life insurer's surplus in respect of its life and accident and sickness insurance businesses carried on in Canada. Under that subparagraph an insurer prorates its policyholders' and shareholders' equity (as reported to the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions) using the ratio of the insurer's Canadian liabilities to its world-wide liabilities. To make use of this election, the non-resident insurer must compute its policyholders' and shareholders' equity, and its world-wide liabilities as if it were a life insurer resident in Canada. Once the equity and world-wide liability amounts are determined, the non-resident insurer can use the proration formula in subparagraph (a)(iii) of the amended definition of "Canadian investment fund" to compute its Canadian surplus.

The form and manner of making the election under new paragraph (b) of the definition of "attributed surplus" will be prescribed by the Department of National Revenue; accordingly, the existing rules in section 2401 for making an election are repealed.

"Canadian business property" of an insurer for a taxation year in respect of an insurance business means

(a) where the insurer was resident in Canada throughout the year and did not carry on an insurance business outside Canada in the year, the property used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on the business in Canada; and

(b) in any other case, the designated insurance property of the insurer for the year in respect of the business.

Technical Notes: The expression "Canadian business property" is used in the definition of "gross Canadian life investment income" which is also contained in amended subsection 2400(1). These definitions are relevant only for the purpose of computing a life insurer's income from its participating life insurance business under section 2402.

The definition of "Canadian business property is amended in three respects. First, paragraph (a) is amended by removing the reference to a insurer that did not carry on a life insurance business in Canada in the year: as noted above, these definitions are redundant for insurers that do not carry on a life insurance business. Second, the phrase "property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of" (which means property that is factually used in an insurance business) is simplified to "property used or held by it in the year". This latter change is not intended to effect any substantive change to the definition.

Third, paragraph (b), which applies to multinational resident life insurers, is amended by replacing the reference to "property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of" with the new expression "designated insurance property".

"Canadian equity property" of a person or partnership (in this definition referred to as the "taxpayer") at any time means property of the taxpayer that is

(a) a share of the capital stock of, or an income bond, income debenture, small business development bond or small business bond issued by, a person (other than a corporation affiliated with the taxpayer) resident in Canada or a Canadian partnership; or

(b) that proportion of shares owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation affiliated with the taxpayer, or of the taxpayer's interest in a partnership or trust, that

(i) the total value for the year that includes that time of Canadian equity property owned by the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be,

is of

(ii) the total value for the year that includes that time of all property owned by the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be.

Technical Notes: The definition of "Canadian equity property" is relevant for the purposes of the equity limit in subsection 2400(4), the transitional rule in section 2409 and the minimum net revenue test in section 2411 of the Regulations.

Under the existing definition of the term (found in subsection 2405(3)), Canadian equity property means

- a share, an income bond or debenture, or small business development or small business bond issued by a person or partnership resident in Canada, or
- a share of a designated corporation or an interest in a partnership or trust, based on the amount of equity property owned by such corporation, partnership or trust.

Currently, where an insurer owns shares of a "designated corporation" (formerly defined in subsection 2405(3) as a corporation in respect of which the insurer or non-arm's length persons held shares that represented 30% or more of the common shares of the corporation) only that proportion of the shares that the designated corporation's Canadian equity property is of all its property is considered to be Canadian investment property.

The definition is amended as a consequence of the replacement of the designated corporation definition with the affiliated person concept (as set out in section 251.1 of the Act). The definition is also amended so that paragraph (a) applies only where the partnership is a Canadian partnership. The amended definition continues to be relevant for the equity limit in amended subsection 2400(4), the rules in section 2409 and amended section 2411.

"Canadian investment fund" of an insurer at the end of a taxation year means

(a) in the case of a life insurer resident in Canada, the total of

(i) the amount, if any, by which the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities as at the end of the year exceeds the insurer's Canadian outstanding premiums and policy loans as at the end of the year (to the extent the policy loans were not otherwise deducted in computing the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities as at the end of the year),

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada that is reported as a liability of the insurer as at the end of the year other than

(I) a liability to the extent that it is included in subparagraph (i),

(II) a liability in respect of an amount payable out of a segregated fund, or

(III) a debt that was incurred or assumed by the insurer to acquire a property

exceeds the total of

(B) the total value for the year of the insurer's non-segregated property (other than investment property, or a share of the capital stock of, or a debt owing by, a financial institution to the extent that its value for the year is included in the insurer's financial institution allowance for the year) used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on its insurance business in Canada,

(C) the insurer's deferred tax debit balance as at the end of the year in respect of its insurance business carried on in Canada, and

(D) an amount equal to that proportion of

(I) the insurer's financial institution allowance for the year

that

(II) the amount that would be determined under this subparagraph if it were read without this clause

is of

(III) the total of the amount determined under subclause (II) and the amount determined under subclause (iii)(B)(II), and

(iii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the amount equal to that proportion of

(I) the amount of the insurer's total policyholders' and shareholders' equity as at the end of the year (to the extent that that amount is not included as a liability under subparagraph (ii))

that

(II) the insurer's weighted Canadian liabilities as at the end of the year

is of

(III) the insurer's weighted total liabilities as at the end of the year

exceeds

(B) an amount equal to that proportion of

(I) the insurer's financial institution allowance for the year

that

(II) the amount determined under clause (A)

is of

(III) the total of the amount determined under subclause (II) and the amount determined under subclause (ii)(D)(II); and

(b) in the case of a non-resident insurer, the total of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities as at the end of the year

exceeds the total of

(B) the insurer's Canadian outstanding premiums and policy loans as at the end of the year (to the extent the policy loans were not otherwise deducted in computing the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities as at the end of the year), and

(C) the insurer's deferred acquisition expenses as at the end of the year in respect of its property and casualty insurance business carried on in Canada,

(ii) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada that is reported as a liability of the insurer as at the end of the year other than

(I) a liability to the extent that it is included in subparagraph (i),

(II) a liability in respect of an amount payable out of a segregated fund, or

(III) a debt that was incurred or assumed by the insurer to acquire a property

exceeds the total of

(B) the total value for the year of the insurer's non-segregated property (other than investment property) used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada, and

(C) the insurer's deferred tax debit balance as at the end of the year in respect of its insurance business carried on in Canada, and

(iii) the greater of

(A) the amount, if any, by which the total of

(I) the insurer's surplus funds derived from operations as at the end of its preceding taxation year, and

(II) the total of all amounts in respect of which the insurer made an election under subsection 219(4) or (5.2) of the Act, each of which is an amount included in the total determined in respect of the insurer under subparagraph 219(4)(a)(i.1) of the Act as at the end of its preceding taxation year

exceeds

(III) the total of amounts determined in respect of the insurer under subparagraphs 219(4)(a)(ii), (iii), (iv) and (v) of the Act, as at the end of the taxation year, and

(B) the insurer's attributed surplus for the year.

Technical Notes: Current rules:

An insurer's Canadian investment fund ("CIF") at the end of a taxation year represents the quantum of investment property considered to be used in the insurer's Canadian insurance business as of the end of the year. For a resident life insurer, its CIF at the end of a year is currently determined by pro-rating the value of the insurer's world-wide investment property using the ratio of its Canadian reserve liabilities to its total reserve liabilities at year-end. The amount of investment property pro-rated is adjusted by the insurer's policy loans and general indebtedness.

A non-resident insurer's CIF at the end of a year is equal to the total of

- its maximum tax actuarial reserves,
- its policy dividend reserves on a tax basis,
- its reserves in respect of its property and casualty insurance business in Canada (as reported to the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions ("OSFI")), and
- the greater of:

  (a) its "surplus funds from operations" computed at the end of the preceding year, and

  (b) its "attributed surplus" for the year

MINUS

- the value of all its non-investment property which is factually used in carrying on its insurance businesses in Canada, and
- its deferred acquisition expenses in respect of its property and casualty insurance business in Canada.

In general terms, a non-resident insurer's surplus funds from operations is its post-1968 income and gains from the disposition of property considered to have been used in an insurance business in Canada, less its post-1968 business losses and losses from property considered to have been used in an insurance business in Canada. A non-resident insurer's attributed surplus is the total of the insurer's surplus in respect of its insurance businesses in Canada less the amount of non-investment property that is considered to be used in respect of those business. (For further details see the commentary, above, on the definition of "attributed surplus".)

Proposed changes:

Under paragraph (a) of the amended CIF definition, a resident insurer's CIF at the end of a year is equal to the total of:

- its Canadian reserve liabilities (less policy loans and outstanding premiums in respect of Canadian policies)
- its other liabilities in respect of its Canadian insurance businesses to the extent that those liabilities exceed: (a) the value of the insurer's non-investment property (other than shares and debt of affiliated financial institutions) which is factually used in its Canadian insurance businesses; (b) the part of the insurer's financial institution allowance that, based on the relationship between the amount of its general Canadian liabilities and Canadian equity, may be considered to have been funded from those liabilities; and (c) its deferred tax debit balance
- its policyholders' and shareholders' equity, less the value of its shares or debt of affiliated financial institutions multiplied by the ratio of weighted Canadian liabilities to weighted total liabilities (For further details, see the commentary on the definitions of "weighted total liabilities" and "total weighted liabilities" below.) This equity amount is eligible to be reduced by the part of the insurer's financial institution allowance that, based on the relationship between the amount of its Canadian general liabilities and Canadian equity, may be considered to have been funded from that equity.

Conceptually, the new CIF for a resident insurer is determining by dividing the right hand side of the insurer's regulatory balance sheet into Canadian and foreign components. The liabilities which relate to the Canadian insurance business will be included in the insurer's CIF. The remaining part of the right hand side of the balance and, correspondingly, the rest of the insurer's CIF, will be composed of the insurer's capital and surplus accounts. A factual allocation of these accounts to Canada is not practical because most multinational life insurers' capital and surplus is considered to be held in support of its world-wide operations — not only those in Canada. The new resident CIF uses the ratio of weighted Canadian liabilities to weighted total liabilities to establish the Canadian portion of an insurer's capital and surplus accounts.

The amended non-resident CIF is similar to the resident life insurer's CIF with respect to the computation of its liability accounts. However, because non-resident insurers are not, generally, required to compute their total liabilities in accordance with a Canadian regulatory authority it would generally be impractical to use the weighted CL/weighted TL ratio for apportioning capital. The non-resident's capital and surplus components are equal to the greater of its surplus funds from operations and attributed surplus.

More specifically, under paragraph (b) of the amended definition of CIF, a non-resident insurer's CIF is equal to:

- its Canadian reserve liabilities as at the end of the year less policy loans and outstanding premiums in respect of Canadian policies, and deferred acquisition expenses, at the end of the year; and
- its other liabilities in respect of an insurance business carried on in Canada that is reported to OSFI as a liability (excluding Canadian reserve liabilities, liabilities in respect of a segregated fund or debts in respect of the acquisition of a specific property of the insurer)

  LESS

  - the total of the insurer's non-investment property that is factually used in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada and its deferred tax debit balance at year-end; and
- the greater of:

  (A) the insurer's surplus funds from operations computed at the end of the preceding year (adjusted for the amount of Part XIV branch tax paid), and

  (B) the insurer's attributed surplus for the year. (For further details see the commentary on the amended definition of "attributed surplus" above.)

"Canadian investment property" of an insurer for a taxation year means an investment property owned by the insurer (other than, where the insurer is non-resident, property established by the insurer as not being effectively connected with its Canadian insurance businesses) that is

(a) real property situated in Canada;

(b) depreciable property situated in Canada or leased to a person resident in Canada for use inside and outside of Canada;

(c) a mortgage, a hypothec, an agreement of sale or any other form of indebtedness in respect of property described in paragraph (a) or (b);

(d) a Canadian equity property;

(e) a Canadian resource property;

(f) a deposit balance of the insurer that is in Canadian currency;

(g) a bond, debenture or other form of indebtedness, in Canadian currency, issued by

(i) a person resident in Canada or a Canadian partnership, or

(ii) the government of Canada, a province or any political subdivision thereof; or

(h) a property that is

(i) a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada that is affiliated with the insurer, or

(ii) an interest in a Canadian partnership, or a trust resident in Canada where not less than 75 per cent of the total value for the year of all property of the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be, is attributable to property that would be Canadian investment property if it were owned by an insurer.

Technical Notes: Canadian investment property is defined in subsection 2405(3) of the existing Regulations as investment property of an insurer that is

(a) land or depreciable property in Canada;

(b) Canadian equity property;

(c) Canadian resource property;

(d) mortgage or other forms of indebtedness in respect of land or depreciable property;

(e) Canadian currency deposits with Canadian financial institutions;

(f) Canadian currency government debt of a Canadian government; and

(g) shares of a designated corporation in Canada, interest in a partnership or trust where not less than 75% of the value of the corporation's, partnership's or trust's assets is Canadian investment property.

The definition of "Canadian investment property" is used in the ordering rule for the designation of property (currently found in subsection 2400(6) and to be replaced with new subsection 2401(3)), and the minimum net revenue test for investment property in section 2411.

An insurer must designate its investment property in the following order:

1. property which was designated in the preceding year;
2. Canadian investment property in the following order:
   - land and depreciable property in Canada,
   - mortgages, agreements of sale and other forms of indebtedness in respect of land and depreciable property in Canada, and
   - other Canadian investment property; and
3. other investment property.

Section 2411 sets out the basis for determining the prescribed amount for the purpose of paragraph 138(9)(b) of the Act. This amount ensures that the insurer's net investment revenue from its designated property is not less than the net investment revenue that would be determined if the average rate of return on its designated assets were equal to the average rate of return on all its investment property. Under this net investment revenue test, the average rate of return is determined in respect of three classes of property: Canadian investment property, Canadian equity property and foreign investment property. This rule is intended to prevent an insurer from understating its Canadian investment income by only designating assets with low investment returns.

The definition of "Canadian investment property" is amended in several ways. First, the definition is reworded to make it easier to read. Second, the new definition of "deposit balance" is used to replace the wording in paragraph (e). Third, the look-through rule for shares of corporations is amended to change the reference from designated corporation to corporation affiliated with the insurer who owns the shares. The affiliation rules are set out in section 251.1 of the Act.

The definition continues to be relevant for the designation of property ordering rule in amended subsection 2401(3) and the minimum revenue test in amended section 2411.

"Canadian outstanding premiums" of an insurer at any time means the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of an outstanding premium of the insurer with respect to an insurance policy at that time, to the extent of the amount of the premium included in the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities as at that time.

Technical Notes: The "Canadian outstanding premiums" of an insurer at any time means the total of all amounts each of which is the amount of an outstanding premium of the insurer in respect of an insurance policy at that time, to the extent that the amount of the premium is included in the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities at that time.

"Canadian reserve liabilities" of an insurer as at the end of a taxation year means the total of all amounts as at that time each of which is the amount of a liability (other than a liability in respect of a segregated fund) of the insurer in respect of

(a) a life insurance policy in Canada;

(b) a fire insurance policy issued or effected upon property situated in Canada; or

(c) an insurance policy of any other class covering risks ordinarily within Canada at the time the policy was issued or effected.

Technical Notes: An insurer's "Canadian reserve liabilities" is defined as an insurer's liabilities and reserves (excluding those in respect of segregated funds) in respect of its insurance policies in Canada as determined for the purposes of the relevant authority. An insurance policy in Canada is defined in subsection 2405(3) of the existing Regulations as a life insurance policy in Canada, a fire insurance policy issued or effected upon property in Canada, and a policy where the risks covered by the policy were ordinarily in Canada. The relevant authority is defined in subsection 2405(3) as the Superintendent of Financial Institutions or the Superintendent of Insurance or other similar officer or authority of the province in which the insurer is incorporated.

The definition of "Canadian reserve liabilities" is amended as a consequence of the repeal of the definitions of "insurance policy in Canada" and "relevant authority". The definition of "insurance policy in Canada" is incorporated into the amended definition of "Canadian reserve liabilities". The reference to "relevant authority" is removed because amended subsection 2400(2) provides rules for determining any amount in the amended rules. (For further details see the commentary to amended subsection 2400(2) below.)

"deposit balance" of an insurer means an amount standing to the insurer's credit as or on account of amounts deposited with a corporation authorized to accept deposits or to carry on the business of offering to the public its services as a trustee.

Technical Notes: A "deposit balance" is an amount standing to an insurer's credit on account of amounts deposited with a deposit-taking institution or a trust company.

The definition replaces the existing references to "a balance standing to the insurer's credit as or on account of amounts deposited with a corporation authorized to accept deposits or to carry on the business of offering to the public its services as a trustee." The definition is used in subsection 2410(1) and the amended definitions of "Canadian investment property" and "value" in amended subsection 2400(1).

"equity limit" of an insurer for a taxation year means

(a) in respect of a life insurer resident in Canada, that proportion of the total of all amounts each of which is the value for the year of an equity property of the insurer that

(A) the insurer's weighted Canadian liabilities as at the end of the year

is of

(B) the insurer's weighted total liabilities as at the end of the year;

(b) in respect of a non-resident insurer (other than a life insurer), 1/4 of the total of

(i) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities for the year

exceeds

(B) 1/2 of the total of its deferred acquisition expenses and premiums receivable as at the end of the year and its deferred acquisition expenses and premiums receivable as at the end of its preceding taxation year to the extent that those amounts were included in the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities for the year or the preceding year, as the case may be, in respect of the insurer's business in Canada, and

(ii) the insurer's property and casualty surplus for the year; and

(c) in respect of a non-resident life insurer, the total of

(i) where the insurer makes an election referred to in paragraph (b) of the definition "attributed surplus" for the year, the greater of

(A) that proportion of the total of all amounts each of which is the value for the year of an equity property of the insurer that

(I) the insurer's weighted Canadian liabilities as at the end of the year

is of

(II) the insurer's weighted total liabilities as at the end of year, and

(B) 8 per cent of the insurer's mean Canadian investment fund for the year,

(ii) where the insurer does not make an election referred to in paragraph (b) of the definition "attributed surplus" for the year, 8 per cent of the insurer's mean Canadian investment fund for the year,

(iii) 1/4 of the amount, if any, by which

(A) the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities for the year (determined on the assumption that the only insurance business carried on in Canada by the insurer was a property and casualty insurance business)

exceeds

(B) 1/2 of the total of its deferred acquisition expenses and premiums receivable as at the end of the year and its deferred acquisition expenses and premiums receivable as at the end of its preceding taxation year to the extent that those amounts were included in the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities for the year or the preceding year, as the case may be, (determined on the assumption that the only insurance business carried on in Canada by the insurer was a property and casualty insurance business), and

(iv) 1/4 of the insurer's property and casualty surplus for the year.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2400(4) of the existing Regulations provides that an insurer cannot designate for a taxation year Canadian equity property in excess of its equity limit for the year. The limit is necessary to ensure that an insurer cannot fill its Canadian investment fund with Canadian equity property on which it receives tax-free dividend income. The existing definition of "equity limit for the year", found in subsection 2405(3) of the Regulations, provides a different limit for resident life insurers, non-resident non-life insurers and non-resident life insurers.

Paragraph (a) of the definition provides that the equity limit for resident life insurers is the greater of

- the total value for the year of all the insurer's equity property multiplied by the ratio of the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities (less policy loans and outstanding premiums in respect of Canadian policies) to the insurer's mean total reserve liabilities (less all policy loans and outstanding premiums), and
- 8% of the insurer's Canadian investment fund for the year.

Paragraph (a) is amended by removing the 8% limit and replacing the ratio of mean Canadian reserve liabilities to mean total reserve liabilities with the ratio of weighted Canadian liabilities to weighted total liabilities (For further details see the new definitions of "weighted Canadian liabilities" and "weighted total liabilities" below.)

Paragraph (b) of the definition currently provides that a non-resident, non-life insurer's equity limit is 1/4 of the total of

- the amount by which its mean Canadian reserve liabilities for the year exceeds its average deferred acquisition expenses and premiums receivable for the year as determined for the purposes of the relevant authority, and
- its property and casualty surplus for the year.

The definition of "property and casualty surplus" is currently set out in subsection 2405(3) and is reproduced in amended subsection 2400(1).

Paragraph (b) is amended by reorganizing subparagraph (b)(i) into 2 separate clauses and removing the reference to "relevant authority", which is to be repealed.

Paragraph (c) of the definition currently provides that a non-resident life insurer's equity limit is the total of

- its life equity limit for the year, and
- the amount that would be determined under paragraph (b) if the insurer carried on only a property and casualty business in Canada.

An insurer's "life equity limit" for a year is defined in subsection 2405(3) as one of the following:

- where the insurer elects under the definition "life surplus factor" for the year, the amount that would have been its equity limit if the insurer were a life insurer resident in Canada,
- where the insurer does not make an election but had made one in one of the four preceding taxation years, the amount determined under that preceding election, or

- in any other case, 8% of the insurer's Canadian investment fund for the year.

Paragraph (c) is amended as a consequence of the repeal of the definitions "life equity limit" and "life surplus factor", and the addition of the new definitions "mean Canadian investment fund", "weighted Canadian liabilities" and "weighted total liabilities". Amended paragraph (c) provides that a non-resident life insurer's equity limit is the total of

- where the insurer elects under paragraph (b) of the amended definition "attributed surplus", the greater of (a) 8% of the insurer's mean Canadian investment fund for the year; and (b) the total value for the year of all the insurer's equity property multiplied by the ratio weighted Canadian liabilities to weighted total liabilities;
- where the insurer does not make the above election, 8% of the insurer's mean Canadian investment fund for the year;
- 1/4 of the insurer's property and casualty surplus for the year; and
- 1/4 of the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities in respect of its property and casualty insurance business (less its deferred acquisition expenses and premiums receivable in respect of that business for the current and preceding year).

"equity property" of a person or partnership (in this definition referred to as the "taxpayer") for a taxation year or fiscal period means property of the taxpayer that is

(a) a share of the capital stock of, or an income bond, income debenture, small business development bond or small business bond issued by, a person (other than a corporation affiliated with the taxpayer) or partnership; or

(b) that proportion of shares owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a corporation affiliated with the taxpayer or of the taxpayer's interest in a partnership or trust that

(i) the total value for the year or period of equity property owned by the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be,

is of

(ii) the total value for the year or period of all property owned by the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be.

Technical Notes: The "equity property" of an insurer is currently defined in subsection 2405(3) of the Regulations as

- a share, income bond or debenture, small business development bond or small business bond issued by a person (other than a designated corporation) or partnership; or
- the shares of a designated corporation or an interest in a partnership or trust multiplied by the ratio of the value of the equity property owned by the designated corporation, partnership or trust to the value of all the property owned by the designated corporation, partnership or trust.

The definition of "equity property" is amended (and relocated to subsection 2400(1)) to ensure that it operates properly where the equities are held through multiple tiers of corporations, partnerships or trusts. The definition is also amended by replacing the reference to the designated corporation, which has been repealed, with a reference to affiliated corporation (as defined in section 251.1 of the Act).

"financial institution" means a corporation that is

(a) a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition "restricted financial institution" in subsection 248(1) of the Act; or

(b) a corporation all or substantially all of the value for a taxation year of the assets of which is attributable to shares or indebtedness of one or more financial institutions.

Technical Notes: The new definition of "financial institution" provides that a corporation is a financial institution if it is a corporation described in any of paragraphs (a) to (e) of the definition of "restricted financial institution" (as defined in subsection 248(1) of the Act) or a corporation all or substantially all of the value of which is attributable to assets that are shares or debt of one or more financial institutions.

"financial institution allowance" of an insurer for a taxation year means the amount equal to that proportion of

(a) the total of all amounts each of which is the amount that would be the value for the year of a property of the insurer that is a share of the capital stock of, or a debt owing to the insurer by, a corporation if the insurer owned the property only during those days in the year during which the insurer owned the property and the corporation was a financial institution affiliated with the insurer

that

(b) the insurer's weighted Canadian liabilities as at the end of the year

(c) the insurer's weighted total liabilities as at the end of the year.

Technical Notes: The amount of an insurer's "financial institution allowance" is deducted, on a proportionate basis, from its Canadian reserve liabilities and its general liabilities in computing its Canadian investment fund. In general terms, an insurer's financial institution allowance is equal to the total value for the year of shares of, or debts owing to the insurer by, financial institutions affiliated with the insurer.

"foreign policy loan" means an amount advanced by an insurer to a policyholder in accordance with the terms and conditions of a life insurance policy, other than a life insurance policy in Canada.

Technical Notes: The definition of "foreign policy loan" means an amount advanced to a policy holder under a life insurance policy that is not a life insurance policy in Canada. The expression life insurance policy in Canada" is defined in subsection 138(12) of the Act.

"gross Canadian life investment income" of a life insurer for a taxation year means the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is

(a) the insurer's gross investment revenue for the year, to the extent that the revenue is from Canadian business property of the insurer for the year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business,

(b) the amount included in computing the insurer's income for the year under paragraph 138(9)(b) of the Act,

(c) the portion of the amount deducted under paragraph 20(1)(l) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for its preceding taxation year that was in respect of Canadian business property of the insurer for that year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business,

(d) the amount included under section 142.4 of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year in respect of a property disposed of by the insurer that was, in the taxation year of disposition, a Canadian business property of the insurer for that year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business,

(e) the insurer's gain for the year from the disposition of a Canadian business property of the insurer for the year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business, other than a capital property or a property in respect of which section 142.4 of the Act applies, or

(f) the insurer's taxable capital gain for the year from the disposition of a Canadian business property of the insurer for the year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business

exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is

(g) the portion of the amount deducted under paragraph 20(1)(l) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year that is in respect of debt obligations that are Canadian business property of the insurer for the year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business,

(h) the amount deductible under section 142.4 of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year in respect of a property disposed of by the insurer that was, in the taxation year of disposition, a Canadian business property of the insurer for that year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business,

(i) the insurer's loss for the year from the disposition of a Canadian business property of the insurer for the year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business, other than a capital property or a property in respect of which section 142.4 of the Act applies, or

(j) the insurer's allowable capital loss for the year from the disposition of a Canadian business property of the insurer for the year in respect of the insurer's life insurance business.

Technical Notes: The expression "gross Canadian life investment income" is defined for the purpose of section 2402, which contains the rules for determining an insurer's income for a year from carrying on its participating life insurance business in Canada. The changes to this definition merely update some of the wording.

"investment property" of an insurer for a taxation year means non-segregated property that is

(a) property acquired by the insurer for the purpose of earning gross investment revenue in the year, other than property that is

(i) property, a portion of which is investment property because of paragraph (b),

(ii) a share of the capital stock of, or a debt owing to the insurer by, a corporation affiliated with the insurer, or

(iii) an interest in a partnership or trust;

(b) the portion, if any, of property of the insurer that is land, depreciable property or property that would have been depreciable property if it had been situated in Canada and used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada, that

(i) the use made of the property in the year for the purpose of earning gross investment revenue therefrom

is of

(ii) the whole use made of the property in the year;

(c) where the insurer is a life insurer, property described in any of paragraphs 138(4.4)(a) to (d) of the Act; or

(d) property of the insurer that is

(i) a share of the capital stock of, or a debt owing to the insurer by, a corporation (other than a financial institution) affiliated with the insurer, or

(ii) an interest in a partnership or trust

if the total value for the year of all investment property of the corporation, partnership or trust, as the case may be, is not less than 75 per cent of the total value for the year of all its property, and for the purpose of this paragraph (other than for the purpose of determining whether it is a financial institution) every corporation, partnership and trust is deemed to be an insurer.

Technical Notes: Resident life insurers and non-resident insurers are required to include in their income from carrying on an insurance business in Canada the gross investment revenue from investment property that the insurer designates as being used in that business. An insurer must designate investment property equal to its mean Canadian investment fund for the taxation year. (For further information on the Canadian investment fund see the commentary to the amended definition of Canadian investment fund and amended subsection 2401 and amended section 2412.)

Only non-segregated property can be considered investment property. Non-segregated property is defined under subsection 138(12) of the Act as property not held in respect of a segregated fund. Such funds are taxed as trusts which are separate from the other activities of the insurer that administers the fund.

Paragraphs (a) to (d) of the definition of "investment property" set out the types of property that are considered to be investment property. Paragraph (a) currently refers to property acquired by the insurer for the purpose of earning gross investment revenue except property that is a portion of property which is treated as investment property by reason of paragraph (b), a share or debt of a designated corporation, or an interest in a partnership or trust. The structure of paragraph (a) is reorganized and the reference to designated corporation is replaced with a reference to a corporation affiliated (within the meaning assigned by section 251.1 of the Act) with an insurer.

Paragraph (b) currently includes as investment the portion of land or depreciable property of an insurer that is factually used or held by the insurer in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada. Only the portion of the property which is used in the year in for the purpose of earning gross investment revenue is considered to be investment property. The amendment to the paragraph attempts to simplify the wording and the structure of paragraph (b).

Existing paragraph (c) captures as investment property land or depreciable property that is vacant, held for resale or development in a year and is not used for the purpose of earning gross investment revenue in the year. New paragraph (c) provides that where an insurer is a life insurer, property described in paragraphs 138(4.4)(a) to (d) of the Act will be treated as investment property. Amended subsection 138(4.4) of the Act includes a prescribed amount in computing a life insurer's income in respect of vacant real property or real property under development. The amendment to paragraph (c) of the definition of "investment property" is intended to ensure that non-income producing real property will only be considered investment property when a prescribed amount of income is considered to have been earned on the property.

Paragraph (d) of the current definition of "investment property" provides that a share or debt of a designated corporation, an interest in a partnership or trust is investment property if

- 75% or more of the corporation's, partnership's or trust's property is investment property; and
- 90% or more of the gross revenue of the corporation, partnership or trust is derived from investment property.

Paragraph (d) is amended in three ways. First, the term designated corporation, which is repealed, is replaced with the expression corporation (other than a financial institution) affiliated with the insurer. For the purpose of determining whether a corporation is affiliated section 251.1 of the Act will apply. Second, the 90% gross revenue test in subparagraph (d)(v) has been deleted. Finally, the post-amble to paragraph (d) is amended so that every corporation, partnership and trust is deemed to be an insurer for the purpose of applying the paragraph. This last change is intended to ensure that the definitions in Regulation 2400 will apply to the corporation, partnership or trust which owns the investment property and that paragraph (d) will work even if the property is held in a multi-tier corporate, partnership or trust structure.

"mean Canadian investment fund" of an insurer has the meaning assigned by section 2412.

Technical Notes: The new definition "mean Canadian investment fund" is relevant for the purpose of determining what amount of investment property an insurer must designate in respect of its Canadian insurance businesses. The expression has the meaning assigned by section 2412. (For further details see the commentary on amended section 2412, below.)

"mean Canadian outstanding premiums" of an insurer for a taxation year means 1/2 of the total of

(a) its Canadian outstanding premiums as at the end of the year; and

(b) its Canadian outstanding premiums as at the end of its preceding taxation year.

Technical Notes: The "mean Canadian outstanding premiums" of an insurer for a taxation year means the average of the insurer's Canadian outstanding premiums as at the end of the current taxation year and the immediately preceding taxation year.

"mean Canadian reserve liabilities" of an insurer for a taxation year means 1/2 of the total of

(a) its Canadian reserve liabilities as at the end of the year; and

(b) its Canadian reserve liabilities as at the end of its preceding taxation year.

Technical Notes: The expression "mean Canadian reserve liabilities" for a taxation year means the average of an insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities at the end of the year and at the end of it preceding taxation year. The definition is not amended in substance, but the wording is up-dated. The definition is used in determining a non-resident's equity limit for the year and in the new designation of property rules in amended section 2401.

"mean maximum tax actuarial reserve" in respect of a particular class of life insurance policies of an insurer for a taxation year means 1/2 of the total of

(a) its maximum tax actuarial reserve for that class of policies for the year; and

(b) its maximum tax actuarial reserve for that class of policies for its preceding taxation year.

Technical Notes: The definition of "mean maximum tax actuarial reserve" for a taxation year means the average of an insurer's maximum tax actuarial reserve for the year and for the preceding year. The definition is not substantively amended, but the wording is up-dated. The definition is relevant in calculating an insurer's income from a participating life insurance business under section 2402.

"mean policy loans" of an insurer for a taxation year means 1/2 of the total of

(a) its policy loans as at the end of the year; and

(b) its policy loans as at the end of its preceding taxation year.

Technical Notes: The definition of "mean policy loans" of an insurer for a taxation year means the average of an insurer's policy loans at the end of the year and at the end of the preceding year. The definition is not substantively amended, but the wording is up-dated. The definition is used in determining an insurer's attributed surplus, Canadian investment fund and its equity limit.

"outstanding premiums" of an insurer with respect to an insurance policy at any time means premiums due to the insurer under the policy at that time but unpaid.

Technical Notes: The "outstanding premiums" of an insurer with respect to an insurance policy at a particular time means the premiums due to the insurer under the policy at that time but unpaid.

"property and casualty surplus" of an insurer for a taxation year means the total of

(a) 7 1/2 per cent of the total of

(i) its unearned premium reserve as at the end of the year,

(ii) its unearned premium reserve as at the end of its preceding taxation year,

(iii) its provision for unpaid claims and adjustment expenses as at the end of the year, and

(iv) its provision for unpaid claims and adjustment expenses as at the end of its preceding taxation year, in respect of its property and casualty insurance business; and

(b) 1/2 of the total of

(i) its investment valuation reserve as at the end of the year, and

(ii) its investment valuation reserve as at the end of its preceding taxation year, in respect of its property and casualty insurance business.

Technical Notes: An insurer's "property and casualty surplus" is equal to the total of 7 1/2% of the average of the insurer's unearned premium reserve at the end of the year and at the end of its preceding year; 7 1/2% of its average provision for unpaid claims and adjustment expenses at the end of the year and the end of its preceding year; and its average investment valuation reserve at the end of the year and its preceding year. The definition of "property and casualty surplus" is relevant only in respect of a non-resident's property and casualty insurance business and is used in determining a non-resident's Canadian investment fund and equity limit for the year. The definition is not substantively amended, but the structure and wording are up-dated.

"segregated fund" has the meaning assigned by subsection 138.1(1) of the Act.

"segregated fund policies" has the meaning assigned by subsection 138.1(1) of the Act.

Technical Notes: The expressions segregated fund and segregated fund policies have the meaning assigned by subsection 138.1(1) of the Act. The existing definition defines both expressions. Under the amended Regulations, each expression is defined separately. The definition of "segregated fund policies" is relevant only for the 1977 Carryforward Deduction set out in section 2408.

"value" for a taxation year of a property of a person or partnership (in this definition referred to as the "owner") means

(a) in the case of a property that is a mortgage, hypothec or an agreement of sale or an investment property that is a deposit balance, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount obtained when the gross investment revenue for the year from the property is divided by the average rate of interest earned by the owner (expressed as an annual rate) on the amortized cost of the property during the year

exceeds

(ii) the amount obtained when the interest payable for the year on debt incurred for the purpose of acquiring the property is divided by the average rate of interest payable by the owner (expressed as an annual rate) on the debt for the year;

(b) in the case of a property (other than a property referred to in paragraph (a)) that was not owned by the owner throughout the year, the amount, if any, by which

(i) that proportion of

(A) the carrying value of the property as at the end of the preceding taxation year, where the property was owned by the owner at that time,

(B) the carrying value of the property as at the end of the year, where the property was owned by the owner at that time and not at the end of the preceding taxation year, and

(C) in any other case, the cost of the property to the owner when it was acquired

that

(D) the number of days, at the end of which the owner owned the property, that are in the year

is of

(E) the number of days in the year

exceeds

(ii) the amount obtained when the interest payable for the year on debt assumed or incurred for the purpose of acquiring the property is divided by the average rate of interest payable by the owner (expressed as an annual rate) on the debt for the year; and

(c) in the case of any other property, the amount, if any, by which

(i) 1/2 of the total of

(A) the carrying value of the property as at the end of the year, and

(B) the carrying value of the property as at the end of the preceding taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the amount obtained when the interest payable for the year on debt assumed or incurred for the purpose of acquiring the property is divided by the average rate of interest payable by the owner (expressed as an annual rate) on the debt for the year.

Technical Notes: The definition "value for the year" is replaced by the definition of "value".

Paragraph (a) of the definition of "value" currently provides that the value for a taxation year of a mortgage, hypothec, agreement of sale or an investment property that is a bank deposit is the gross investment revenue for the year earned on the property divided by the average interest rate earned on the property during the year. Paragraph (a) is amended by adding a reference to the new definition "deposit balance" and simplifying the wording by removing the references to interest expressed as a fraction.

Paragraph (b) of the existing definition applies to property, other than property described in paragraph (a), that is not owned throughout a taxation year. Where the property was owned at the end of the preceding taxation year, subparagraph (b)(i) provides that its value is its valuation at the end of the preceding taxation year prorated by the number of days the property was owned in the current taxation year. A similar rule in subparagraph (b)(ii) applies where the property is acquired during the taxation year. Depending on the type of property in question, its valuation under the existing Regulations may be based on its cost, undepreciated capital cost, or book value for purposes of the insurer's regulatory authority. Paragraph (b) is amended consequential on the repeal of the definition "valuation", and as amended provides that the value of property is

- where the property is owned at the end of the preceding taxation year, its carrying value at that year-end;
- where the property is owned at the end of the current taxation year, its value, its carrying value at that year-end; and
- in any case where the property was acquired during the year and was not owned at the end of the year, its cost when it was acquired.

To determine the value of a property to an insurer, its carrying value or cost is pro-rated for the number of days that the property is owned by the insurer in the year, and reduced by the average amount of debt incurred by the insurer to acquire the property. Under amended subsection 2400(2) the carrying value of a property is its value as accepted on the insurer's balance sheet by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions or a province's superintendent of insurance if the insurer is provincially incorporated. In general, where the property is not owned by someone other than an insurer, its carrying value is equal to the value that is reflected in the owner's year-end balance sheet. (For more details see the commentary to amended subsection 2400(2).)

Paragraph (c) of the existing definition "value for the year" provides that the value for a taxation year of a property owned throughout the year is equal to the average of its valuation at the end of the taxation year and its valuation at the end of its preceding taxation year. As a consequence of the repeal of the definition of "valuation", paragraph (c) of the definition "value" refers to the carrying value of a property. Amended paragraph (c) also requires that in computing a property's value that the property's average carrying value is reduced by the average amount of debt incurred to acquire the property.

"weighted Canadian liabilities" of an insurer as at the end of a taxation year means the total of

(a) 3 times the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada that is reported as a liability (other than a liability in respect of an amount payable out of a segregated fund) of the insurer in respect of a life insurance policy in Canada (other than an annuity) or an accident and sickness insurance policy as at the end of the year exceeds its policy loans as at the end of the year, and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada that is reported as a liability of the insurer as at the end of the year other than

(i) an amount to the extent that it is reported as a liability in respect of an insurance policy (other than an annuity) included in paragraph (a),

(ii) a liability in respect of an amount payable out of a segregated fund, or

(iii) a debt incurred or assumed to acquire a property of the insurer.

Technical Notes: The new definition "weighted Canadian liabilities" is relevant for the purposes of the amended definitions "Canadian investment fund" and "equity limit". The definition of "weighted Canadian liabilities" is also important for determining an insurer's daily cash-flow adjustment under amended subsection 2412(4).

An insurer's weighted Canadian liabilities is the total of its weighted Canadian life insurance and accident and sickness insurance policy liabilities (to the extent they exceed its policy loans) and its other non-weighted Canadian insurance liabilities (excluding those in respect of a segregated fund or a debt incurred or assumed to acquire a particular property). Weighting life and accident and sickness insurance policy liabilities by a factor of 3 recognizes the fact that an insurer must maintain more reserves in respect of such policies than in respect of other types of insurance products.

"weighted total liabilities" of an insurer as at the end of a taxation year means the total of

(a) 3 times the amount, if any, by which the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of an insurance business carried on by the insurer that is reported as a liability (other than a liability in respect of an amount payable out of a segregated fund) of the insurer in respect of a life insurance policy (other than an annuity) or an accident and sickness insurance policy exceeds the total of its policy loans and foreign policy loans as at the end of the year; and

(b) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of an insurance business carried on by the insurer that is reported as a liability of the insurer as at the end of the year other than

(i) an amount to the extent it is reported as a liability of the insurer in respect of an insurance policy (other than an annuity) included in paragraph (a),

(ii) a liability in respect of an amount payable out of a segregated fund, or

(iii) a debt incurred or assumed to acquire a property of the insurer.

Technical Notes: The new definition "weighted Canadian liabilities" is relevant for the purposes of the amended definitions "Canadian investment fund" and "equity limit". The definition of "weighted Canadian liabilities" is also important for determining an insurer's daily cash-flow adjustment under amended subsection 2412(4).

An insurers weighted total liabilities is similar to its weighted Canadian liabilities except that the former includes an insurer's world-wide insurance liabilities rather than only its Canadian insurance liabilities. (For further details see the above commentary to the definition of "weighted Canadian liabilities".)

(2) Determining values and amounts — For the purposes of determining the carrying value of a taxpayer's property or any other amount under this Part in respect of a taxation year of the taxpayer, except as otherwise provided in this Part,

(a) where the taxpayer is an insurer, the amounts reflected in the taxpayer's non-consolidated balance sheet as at the end of the year accepted (or, if that non-consolidated balance sheet was not prepared, the taxpayer's balance sheet as at the end of the year that would have been accepted) by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, in the case of an insurer that is required under the Insurance Companies Act to report to the Superintendent, or by the superintendent of insurance or other similar officer or authority of the province under the laws of which the corporation is incorporated or otherwise formed, in the case of an insurer that is required by law to report to that officer or authority, and

(b) in any other case, the amounts that would be reflected in the taxpayer's balance sheet as at the end of the year if that balance sheet were prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles shall be used.

Technical Notes: Existing subsection 2400(2) provides rules relating to the designation of property. These rules are modified and moved to amended section 2401.

For the purposes of Part XXIV of the Regulations, amended subsection 2400(2) provides rules for determining the carrying value of any property owned by a taxpayer and any other amount in respect of a taxpayer. Where the taxpayer is an insurer, paragraph 2400(2)(a) provides that the carrying value or other amount is the amount reflected on the insurer's year-end balance sheet as accepted by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions or, where the insurer is incorporated under province's law, the balance sheet accepted by that province's superintendent of insurance. Where the taxpayer is not an insurer, paragraph 2400(2)(b) provides that the carrying value or other amount is the amount that would be reflected in the taxpayer's year-end balance sheet if the balance sheet was prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles.

(3) Liabilities — A reference in this Part to an amount reported as a liability of a taxpayer as at the end of a taxation year means an amount that is reported as a liability in the taxpayer's non-consolidated balance sheet as at the end of the year accepted (or, if that non-consolidated balance sheet was not prepared, the taxpayer's balance sheet as at the end of the year that would have been accepted) by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, in the case of an insurer that is required under the Insurance Companies Act to report to the Superintendent, or by the superintendent of insurance or other similar officer or authority of the province under the laws of which the corporation is incorporated or otherwise formed, in the case of an insurer that is required by law to report to that officer or authority.

Technical Notes: Existing subsection 2400(3) provides rules that apply when designated property is exchanged for other property under various rollover transactions. An amended version of this rule is contained in amended subsection 2401(5).

Amended subsection 2400(3) provides that any reference in Part XXIV of the Regulations to an amount reported as a liability of an insurer is to be construed as a reference to the amount that is reported as a liability in the taxpayer's year-end balance sheet accepted by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions or, where the taxpayer is incorporated under a province's law, the amount reported as a liability on the year-end balance sheet accepted by that province's superintendent of insurance or similar officer.

(4) Definitions — For the purposes of subsection 138(14) of the Act, the expressions "Canadian investment fund for a taxation year", "specified Canadian assets" and "value for the taxation year" have the meanings prescribed therefor by subsection 2404(1) as it read in its application to the 1977 taxation year.

Technical Notes: Existing subsection 2400(4) sets out the restriction on the ability of insurers to designate Canadian equity property up to the insurer's equity limit. This equity limit rule has been moved as part of these changes to subsection 2401(4).

Amended subsection 2400(4) reproduces existing subsection 2405(2) which applies for the purposes of subsection 138(14) of the Act. Subsection 138(14) is a transitional rule which applies for the purposes of determining an insurer's tax basis or amortized cost of a debt obligation under subsection 138(13) of the Act. For the purposes of subsection 138(14) the expressions "Canadian investment fund for a taxation year", "specified Canadian assets" and "value for the taxation year" have the meanings set out in subsection 2404(1) of the Regulations as it read in its application to the 1977 taxation year.

2401. (1) Designated insurance property — For the purposes of section 138 of the Act, "designated insurance property" of an insurer for a taxation year means property that is designated by the insurer under this section for the year, in its return of income under Part I of the Act for the year, in respect of an insurance business carried on in Canada.

Technical Notes: Existing section 2401 sets out the rules for a non-resident to file an election to calculate its life surplus factor in accordance with the rules applicable to resident life insurers. The rules in existing section 2401 are deleted as a consequence of the repeal of the definition of "life surplus factor" and the amendments to the definition of "attributed surplus". In effect, the amended definition of "attributed surplus" states that an election to use the resident life insurer rules must be made in the form and manner prescribed by the Department of National Revenue.

Amended section 2401 replaces existing section 2400 which sets out the rules that apply for the type, amount, and nature of investment property that must be designated by an insurer in respect of a taxation year.

Amended subsection 2401(1) provides that for the purposes of section 138 of the Act, designated insurance property of an insurer is property that is designated by the insurer in its Part I income tax return and in accordance with section 2401.

(2) Designation rules — For the purposes of subsection (1),

(a) the insurer shall designate investment property owned by it at any time in the year with a total value for the year equal to the amount, if any, by which the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities for the year in respect of its life insurance business in Canada exceeds the insurer's mean Canadian outstanding premiums and mean policy loans for the year (to the extent that the amount of the mean policy loans was not otherwise deducted in computing the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities for the year);

(b) the insurer shall designate investment property owned by it at any time in the year with a total value for the year equal to the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities for the year in respect of its accident and sickness insurance business in Canada;

(c) the insurer shall designate in respect of its insurance business in Canada (other than a life insurance business or an accident and sickness insurance business) investment property owned by it at any time in the year with a total value for the year equal to the amount, if any, by which

(i) the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities for the year in respect of the business

exceeds

(ii) 1/2 of the total of all amounts each of which is the amount, at the end of the year or at the end of its preceding taxation year, of a deferred acquisition expense or a premium receivable (to the extent included in the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities) of the insurer in respect of the business;

(d) where

(i) the insurer's mean Canadian investment fund for the year

exceeds

(ii) the total value for the year of all property required to be designated by the insurer under paragraph (a), (b) or (c)

the insurer shall designate in respect of a particular insurance business it carries on in Canada investment property owned by it at any time in the year with a total value for the year equal to that excess;

(e) a particular property can only be designated once for the year;

(f) the insurer may designate for a taxation year a portion of a particular property where the designation of the entire property would result in a designation of property with a total value for the year exceeding that required to be designated by the insurer under paragraphs (a) to (d); and

(g) where in the opinion of the Minister the insurer has failed to designate property for the year in accordance with this section,

(i) subject to subparagraph (ii), any designation of property by the insurer for the year that is selected by the Minister is deemed not to have been made, and

(ii) property owned by the insurer at any time in the year may be designated by the Minister in accordance with this subsection and subsections (3) and (4), and the property so designated is deemed to have been designated by the insurer for the year.

Technical Notes: Amended subsection 2401(2) replaces the designation rules in existing subsection 2400(1). Amended subsection 2401(2) sets out rules that an insurer is required to follow in designating investment property for a taxation year in respect of its insurance businesses carried on in Canada in the year.

Paragraph 2401(2)(a) provides that an insurer shall designate in respect of its Canadian life insurance business, investment property with a total value (as defined in amended subsection 2400(1)) equal to the amount by which the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities (as defined in amended subsection 2400(1)) exceeds its mean policy loans and mean Canadian outstanding premiums (as defined in amended subsection 2400(1)) in respect of that business. Paragraph 2401(2)(b) provides a similar rule for an insurer's accident and sickness insurance business carried on in Canada.

Paragraph 2401(2)(c) provides that an insurer shall designate in respect of its non-life and non-accident and sickness insurance business, investment property with a total value equal to the amount by which the insurer's mean Canadian reserve liabilities in respect of that business exceeds the insurer's average deferred acquisition expenses or premiums receivable in respect of that business.

Where the insurer's mean Canadian investment fund for a year exceeds the value of the property that is designated in accordance with paragraphs 2401(2)(a) to (c), the insurer is required to designate additional investment property so that the total value of the designated property equals that mean Canadian investment fund. The insurer must designate the additional investment property in respect of a particular Canadian insurance business.

Paragraph 2401(2)(e) is similar to existing paragraph 2400(2)(b) and prohibits an insurer from designating the same property twice.

Paragraph 2401(2)(f) is similar to existing subsection 2400(7) and provides that an insurer may designate a portion of a particular property where a designation of the entire property would result in exceeding the value of the property required to be designated under amended paragraphs 2401(2)(a) to (d).

Paragraph 2401(2)(g) permits the Minister of National Revenue to determine whether an insurer has made appropriate designations and to designate property where the insurer has not followed the designation rules. Where the Minister designates property, the property is considered to have been designated by the insurer. The amended paragraph refines the powers which the Minister currently has under existing paragraph 2400(1)(f).

(3) Order of property — For the purpose of subsection (2), investment property of an insurer shall be designated for a taxation year in respect of the insurer's insurance businesses in Canada in the following order:

(a) Canadian investment property owned by the insurer at the beginning of the year that was designated insurance property of the insurer for its preceding taxation year except that such property shall be designated in the following order:

(i) real and depreciable property,

(ii) mortgages, hypothecs, agreements of sale and other forms of indebtedness in respect of real property situated in Canada or depreciable property situated in Canada or depreciable property leased to a person resident in Canada for use inside and outside of Canada, and

(iii) other property;

(b) property (other than Canadian investment property) owned by the insurer at the beginning of the year that was designated insurance property of the insurer for its preceding taxation year;

(c) Canadian investment property (other than property included in paragraph (a)) in the order set out in subparagraphs (a)(i) to (iii); and

(d) other property.

Technical Notes: Amended subsection 2401(3) replaces the existing rule in subsection 2400(6). Amended subsection 2401(3) mandates that property be designated by an insurer in a particular order. Before designating any other property, amended paragraph 2401(3)(a) requires an insurer to designate Canadian investment property that was designated insurance property in the preceding taxation year in the following order:

- real and depreciable property;
- mortgages, hypothecs, agreements of sale or other debts in respect of real or depreciable property; and
- other Canadian investment property.

Next, an insurer must designate previously designated insurance property that is not Canadian investment property. After that, the insurer must designate Canadian investment property that was not designated in the preceding taxation year in the order set out in amended paragraph 2401(3)(a). Finally, an insurer may designate its other (non-Canadian) investment property.

Canadian investment property is designated before other investment property on the basis that Canadian investment property can reasonably be expected to have a closer relationship to an insurer's Canadian insurance businesses than its foreign insurance businesses.

(4) Equity limit for the year — Notwithstanding subsections (2) and (3),

(a) the total value for the year of Canadian equity property that may be designated in respect of an insurer's insurance businesses for a taxation year shall not exceed the insurer's equity limit for the year; and

(b) the insurer may designate for a taxation year a portion of a particular Canadian equity property where the designation of the entire property would result in a designation of Canadian equity property with a total value for the year exceeding that allowed to be designated under paragraph (a).

Technical Notes: Amended subsection 2401(4) replaces the existing equity limit rule in existing subsection 2400(4). Amended paragraph 2401(4)(a) provides that an insurer cannot designate Canadian equity property with a total value for the year which exceeds the insurer's equity limit for the year. The amended definitions of "Canadian equity property" and "equity limit" are contained in amended subsection 2400(1).

Amended paragraph 2401(4)(b) adds a rule which provides that an insurer may designate a portion of a Canadian equity property where a designation of the entire property would result in exceeding the insurer's equity limit for the year.

(5) Exchanged property — For the purposes of subsection (3) and this subsection, property acquired by an insurer in a particular taxation year by reason of

(a) a transaction described in section 51, 51.1, 85.1 or 86 of the Act,

(b) a transaction in respect of which an election was made under subsection 85(1) or (2) of the Act,

(c) an amalgamation of two or more corporations (within the meaning assigned by subsection 87(1) of the Act), or

(d) a winding-up of a corporation to which subsection 88(1) of the Act applied,

as consideration for or in exchange for property of the insurer that was designated insurance property of the insurer in respect of a particular insurance business for its preceding taxation year is deemed to be designated insurance property in respect of the particular business of the insurer for that preceding year and to have been owned by the insurer at the beginning of the particular year.

Technical Notes: Amended subsection 2401(5) is very similar to the exchanged property rule in existing subsection 2400(3). Both subsections provide that property acquired in exchange for designated insurance property under certain rollover transactions is considered to be designated insurance property. Amended subsection 2401(5) merely updates the wording that is used in existing subsection 2400(3).

(6) Non-investment property — Non-segregated property (other than investment property) owned by an insurer at any time in a taxation year that is used or held by the insurer in the year in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada is deemed to be designated insurance property of the insurer for the year in respect of the business.

Technical Notes: Amended subsection 2401(6) replaces existing paragraph 2400(1)(e), which stated that an insurer's non-investment property which was factually used or held in carrying on an insurance business in Canada is deemed to have been designated by the insurer. This designation rule is relevant for the definition of "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" in subsection 18(5), the definition of "eligible property" in subsection 85(1.1), subparagraph 115(1)(b)(ii.1), section 138, paragraph 219(4)(i.1), and subsection 219(5.1) of the Act. The property designated under this rule is not, however, relevant for determining an insurer's gross investment revenue because such property is not investment property.

Amended paragraph 2401(6) uses the new term designated insurance property and simplifies the wording of existing paragraph 2400(1)(e) by replacing the phrase "used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on an insurance business" with "property used or held by the insurer".

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), s. 2, will amend ss. 2400 and 2401 to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

2402. Income from participating life insurance businesses — For the purposes of clause 138(3)(a)(iii)(B) of the Act and subparagraph 309(1)(e)(i), in computing a life insurer's income for a taxation year from its participating life insurance business carried on in Canada,

(a) there shall be included that proportion of the insurer's gross Canadian life investment income for the year that

(i) the aggregate of the insurer's mean maximum tax actuarial reserve for the year in respect of participating life insurance policies in Canada and the mean amount on deposit with the insurer for the year in respect of those policies

(ii) the aggregate of amounts, each of which is

(A) the insurer's mean maximum tax actuarial reserve for the year in respect of a class of life insurance policies in Canada, or

(B) the mean amount on deposit with the insurer for the year in respect of a class of policies described in clause (A);

Proposed Addition — Reg. 2402(a.1)

(a.1) there shall be included the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount required by subsection 142.5(5) of the Act to be included in computing the insurer's income for the year,

B is the amount deemed by subsection 142.5(7) of the Act to be a taxable capital gain of the insurer for the year from the disposition of property,

C is the amount determined under subparagraph (a)(i) for the taxation year of the insurer that includes October 31, 1994, and

D is the amount determined under subparagraph (a)(ii) for the taxation year of the insurer that includes October 31, 1994;

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 2(1), will add para. 2402(a.1), applicable to taxation years that end after October 30, 1994.

Technical Notes: Section 2402 contains rules for determining a life insurer's income for a year from carrying on its participating life insurance business in Canada. This income is relevant for subparagraph 138(3)(a)(iii) of the Act, which permits an insurer to deduct policy dividends to the extent that the total amount of dividends paid after its 1968 taxation year does not exceed the total amount of its participating business income after that year. Section 2402 is amended to reflect the new rules in the Act for the tax treatment of securities held by financial institutions, and to delete provisions which are no longer applicable.

New paragraph 2402(a.1) includes in an insurer's income from its participating business for a taxation year an amount in respect of the transition adjustments for the mark-to-market requirement for shares. The amount included is equal to a proportion of the transition amount for non-capital gains included in the insurer's income for the year by subsection 142.5(5) of the Act, plus the same proportion of the insurer's deemed taxable capital gain for the year under subsection 142.5(7). The ratio used for this purpose is equal to the ratio used under paragraph 2402(a) in determining the proportion of the insurer's gross Canadian life investment income for its taxation year that includes October 31, 1994 that is included in its income from its participating business. Paragraph 2402(a.1) applies to taxation years ending after October 30, 1994.

(b) there shall be included

(i) the amount deducted by the insurer under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(iv) of the Act in computing its income for the immediately preceding taxation year,

(ii) the insurer's maximum tax actuarial reserve for the immediately preceding taxation year in respect of participating life insurance policies in Canada,

(iii) the maximum amount deductible by the insurer under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(ii) of the Act in computing its income for the immediately preceding taxation year in respect of participating life insurance policies in Canada, and

(iv) that proportion of the amount included in income by the insurer for the year under section 12.3 that

(A) the amount determined under clause (f)(iii)(A) for its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987

is of

(B) the amount determined under clause (f)(iii)(B) for its first taxation year that commences after June 17, 1987 and ends after 1987;

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 2402(b)(iv)

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 2(2), will repeal subpara. 2402(b)(iv), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1992.

Technical Notes: Subparagraph 2402(b)(iv) relates to a transitional provision introduced in conjunction with the 1987 tax reform measures. The transitional provision, and subparagraph 2402(b)(iv), last applied to taxation years that began in 1992. The subparagraph is repealed since it is no longer applicable.

(c) there shall not be included any amount in respect of the insurer's participating life insurance policies in Canada that was deducted under subparagraphs 138(3)(a)(i) or (ii) of the Act in computing its income for the immediately preceding taxation year;

(d) except as otherwise provided in paragraph (a), there shall not be included any amount as a reserve that was deducted under paragraph 20(1)(l) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the immediately preceding taxation year;

(e) except as otherwise provided in paragraph (a), there shall not be included

(i) any amount that was included in income for the year by the insurer pursuant to 138(4)(b) or (c) of the Act, or

(ii) any amount that was included in computing the insurer's gains or taxable capital gains for the year from the disposition of property;

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2402(e)

(e) except as provided in paragraph (a), there shall not be included any amount that was included in determining the insurer's gross Canadian life investment income for the year;

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 2(3), will amend para. 2402(e) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after February 22, 1994.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 2402(e) provides that certain amounts are not included in computing an insurer's income from its participating life insurance business, except as provided by paragraph 2402(a). Paragraph 2402(e) is amended so that it applies with respect to all amounts included in determining an insurer's gross Canadian life investment income. This amendment is made for purposes of clarification, and because of the introduction of the new rules for the taxation of securities held by financial institutions. In this latter regard, subparagraph 2402(e)(i) refers to paragraphs 138(4)(b) and (c) of the Act, which are being repealed.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 2402(e.1), (e.2)

(e.1) except as provided in paragraph (a.1), there shall not be included the amounts referred to in the descriptions of A and B in that paragraph;

(e.2) where the year includes October 31, 1994, there shall be deducted the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the amount deducted under subsection 142.5(4) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year,

B is the amount deemed by subsection 142.5(6) of the Act to be an allowable capital loss of the insurer for the year from the disposition of property,

C is the amount determined under subparagraph (a)(i) for the year, and

D is the amount determined under subparagraph (a)(ii) for the year;

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 2(4), will add paras. 2402(e.1) and (e.2), applicable to taxation years that end after October 30, 1994.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 2402(e.1) provides that the transition amounts associated with the introduction of the mark-to-market requirement for shares are not to be included in an insurer's income from its participating life insurance business, except as provided by new paragraph 2402(a.1).

New paragraph 2402(e.2) provides for a deduction in computing an insurer's income from its participating business in respect of the transition deductions associated with the introduction of the mark-to-market requirement for shares. This deduction applies for the insurer's taxation year that includes October 31, 1994. The deducted amount is equal to a proportion of the transition deduction for non-capital gains claimed by the insurer under subsection 142.5(4) of the Act, plus the same proportion of the allowable capital loss claimed by the insurer under subsection 142.5(6). The ratio used for this purpose is equal to the ratio used under paragraph 2402(a) in determining the proportion of the insurer's gross Canadian life investment income for its taxation year that includes October 31, 1994 that is included in its income from its participating business.

(f) there shall be deducted

(i) the insurer's maximum tax actuarial reserve for the year in respect of participating life insurance policies in Canada,

(ii) the maximum amount deductible by the insurer under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(ii) of the Act in computing its income for the year in respect of participating life insurance policies in Canada, and

(iii) that proportion of the amount deducted from income by the insurer for the year under subsection 20(26) that

(A) the amount determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subparagraph (a)(i),

is of

(B) the amount determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subparagraph (a)(ii);

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 2402(f)(iii)

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 2(5), will repeal subpara. 2402(f)(iii), applicable to taxation years that begin after 1992.

Technical Notes: Subparagraph 2402(f)(iii) relates to a transitional deduction provided in conjunction with the 1987 tax reform measures. The transitional deduction, and subparagraph 2402(f)(iii), applied to an insurer's first taxation year that began after June 17, 1987 and ended after 1987. The subparagraph is repealed since it is no longer applicable.

(g) no deduction shall be made in respect of any amount deductible under subparagraph 138(3) (a)(iii) or (iv) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year;

(h) except as as otherwise provided in paragraph (a), no deduction shall be made in respect of

(i) any amount deductible under paragraph 138(3)(b) or (d) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year,

(ii) any amount deductible as a reserve under paragraph 20(1)(l) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year, or

(iii) any amount included in computing the insurer's losses or allowable capital losses for the year from the disposition of property;

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2402(h)

(h) except as provided in paragraph (a), no deduction shall be made in respect of

(i) any amount taken into account in determining the insurer's gross Canadian life investment income for the year, or

(ii) any amount deductible under paragraph 20(1)(l) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year;

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 2(6), will amend para. 2402(h) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after February 22, 1994.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 2402(h) provides that certain amounts are not deducted in computing an insurer's income from its participating life insurance business, except as provided by paragraph 2402(a). Paragraph 2402(h) is amended so that it applies with respect to all amounts that are included in determining an insurer's gross Canadian life investment income. This amendment is made for purposes of clarification and because of the introduction of the new rules for the taxation of securities held by financial institutions. In this latter regard, subparagraph 2402(h)(i) refers to paragraphs 138(3)(b) and (d) of the Act, which are being repealed.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 2402(h.1)

(h.1) except as provided in paragraph (e.2), no deduction shall be made in respect of the amounts referred to in the descriptions of A and B in paragraph (e.2);

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 2(7), will add para. 2402(h.1), applicable to taxation years that end after October 30, 1994.

Technical Notes: New paragraph 2402(h.1) provides that the transition amounts deducted by an insurer in connection with the introduction of the mark-to-market requirement for shares are not to be deducted in computing the insurer's income from its participating life insurance business, except as provided by new paragraph 2402(e.2).

(i) except as otherwise provided in paragraph (f), no deduction shall be made in respect of a reserve deductible under subparagraph 138(3)(a)(i) or (ii) of the Act in computing the insurer's income for the year; and

(j) except as otherwise provided in this section, the provisions of the Act relating to the computation of income from a source shall apply.

History: Subpara. 2402(b)(iii) added, and paras. (c) to (f), (h) and (i) substituted, by P.C. 1990-2002, s. 7, September 20, 1990, Canada Gazette, Part II, October 10, 1990, applicable in respect of taxation years beginning after June 17, 1987 and ending after 1987 except that in its application in respect of [an insurer's] first such taxation year,

(a) subpara. (b)(iii) shall be read as follows:

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), s. 3, will amend para. 2403(2)(a) to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2403(2) sets out the mechanism for making an election under subsection 219(5.2) of the Act. Technical Notes: Subsection 2405(3) defines a number of expressions used in Part XXIV.

The expression "gross Canadian life investment income" is defined for the purpose of section 2402, which contains rules for determining an insurer's income for a year from carrying on its participating life insurance business in Canada. Several amendments are made to this definition:

- Paragraph (a) is amended to use the newly-defined term "Canadian business property", which is defined in subsection 2405(3). Gross investment revenue from such property held in respect of an insurer's life insurance business is included by paragraph (a) in determining the insurer's gross Canadian life investment income. This amendment applies to taxation years that end after June 1, 1995.
- Paragraph (c) is repealed. This paragraph includes, in determining an insurer's gross Canadian life investment income, the amounts included in the insurer's income by paragraphs 138(4)(b) and (c) of the Act (profit on disposition of a Canada security, and amortization of discount on such a security). This amendment is consequential on the repeal of paragraphs 138(4)(b) and (c).
- Paragraphs (d) and (i), which deal with doubtful debt reserves, are amended as a consequence of the repeal of the definition of "Canada security" in subsection 138(12) of the Act. The amended paragraphs refer to debt obligations that are "Canadian business property" of the insurer in respect of the insurer's life insurance business.
- New paragraph (d.1) includes in an insurer's gross Canadian life investment income the amounts that are included in the insurer's income by section 142.4 of the Act in respect of property disposed of by the insurer that was "Canadian business property" of the insurer in respect of its life insurance business. New paragraph (i.1) is a corresponding rule for deductions. New section 142.4 of the Act contains rules for the measurement and the timing of recognition of gains and losses from the disposition of specified debt obligations.
- Paragraph (e), which includes certain non-capital gains in an insurer's gross Canadian life investment income, is amended to exclude from its scope property in respect of which section 142.4 of the Act applies. Gains from the disposition of this property are taken into account by new paragraph (d.1). Paragraph (e) is also amended, for dispositions of property in taxation years ending after June 1, 1995, to clarify that it applies only to the property of an insurer's Canadian life insurance business. Similar changes are made to the rule in paragraph (j) for certain non-capital losses.
- Paragraph (f), which includes an insurer's taxable capital gains in its gross Canadian life investment income, is amended so that it does not include amounts deemed by subsection 142.5(7) of the Act to be taxable capital gains of the insurer. That subsection contains a transition rule relating to the introduction of the mark-to-market requirement. Paragraph (f) is also amended, for dispositions of property in taxation years ending after June 1, 1995, to clarify that it applies only to the property of an insurer's Canadian life insurance business. Similar changes are made to the rule in paragraph (k) for allowable capital losses.
- Paragraph (g) is repealed since the provision to which it refers — paragraph 138(3)(c) of the Act (investment reserve) — was repealed in the tax reform of 1987.
- Paragraph (h) is repealed. This paragraph deducts in determining an insurer's gross Canadian life investment income the amounts deducted under paragraphs 138(3)(b) and (d) of the Act (loss on disposition of a Canada security, and amortization of premium on such a security) in computing an insurer's income. This amendment is consequential on the repeal of paragraphs 138(3)(b) and (d).

"insurance policy in Canada", in respect of an insurer, means, in the case of

Proposed Addition — Reg. 2405(5) [temporary]

(5) For the purposes of subsection (3), the cost of a property shall be determined without regard to subsection 142.5(2) of the Act.

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 3(11), will add subsec. 2405(5), applicable to taxation years that end after October 30, 1994.

Technical Notes: New subsection 2405(5) contains a rule for the purposes of the definitions in subsection 2405(3). It provides that the cost of property is to be determined without regard to the mark-to-market requirement in subsection 142.5(2) of the Act. Thus, the cost of mark-to-market property will not change each year for the purpose of the definitions in subsection 2405(3). This rule is relevant for determining the "valuation" of shares, and hence the "value for the year" of shares. As a consequence of this rule, the original cost of shares to an insurer will generally be used in measuring the Canadian investment fund, designating property, and determining any additional investment revenue prescribed by section 2411.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2404–2406

2404. Prescribed amount — For the purpose of subparagraph 138(5)(b)(iv) of the Act, the prescribed amount in respect of an insurer for a taxation year is that proportion of the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of interest described in paragraph 20(1)(c) of the Act that is payable by the insurer in respect of the year on borrowed money (other than borrowed money used to acquire property or used or held by a segregated fund) used by the insurer for the purpose of earning income from an insurance business carried on by it in Canada or an amount otherwise deductible under paragraph 20(1)(d) of the Act for the year that is paid in the year on such interest, that

(a) the total of the amount described in subparagraph (a)(ii) or (b)(ii), as the case may be, of the definition "Canadian investment fund" in subsection 2400(1) in respect of the insurer as at the end of the year and the amount so described as at the end of its preceding taxation year

(b) the total of the amount described in clause (a)(ii)(A) or clause (b)(ii)(A), as the case may be, of the definition "Canadian investment fund" in subsection 2400(1) in respect of the insurer as at the end of the year and the amount so described as at the end of its preceding taxation year.

Definitions [Reg. 2404]: "amount", "borrowed money", "business" — ITA 248(1); "Canada" — ITA 255, Interpretation Act 35(1); "insurer", "prescribed", "property" — ITA 248(1); "segregated fund" — ITA 138.1(1), Reg. 2400(1), 2405(1); "taxation year" — ITA 249.

2405. Policy loans — Notwithstanding any other provision in this Part, a designated insurance property or an investment property of an insurer does not include a policy loan payable to the insurer.

Definitions [Reg. 2405]: "designated insurance property" — ITA 138(12), 248(1); "insurer" — ITA 248(1); "investment property" — Reg. 2400(1), 2405(3), 2406; "policy loan" — ITA 138(12), Reg. 2405(1).

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), s. 4, will amend s. 2404 to read as above, repeal s. 2405 (but see proposed Reg. 2400) and amend and renumber s. 2406 as s. 2405, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Existing section 2404 provides that where an amount is determined in foreign currency, the amount must be converted to Canadian currency on the date on which is amount is determined. This rule is considered unnecessary because under the Income Tax Act amounts in foreign currency must (in the absence of any specific rule to the contrary) be converted into Canadian currency.

Amended section 2404, which is unrelated to existing section 2404, sets out the amount of interest which an insurer is permitted to deduct under amended subparagraph 138(5)(b)(iv) of the Act. Subsection 138(5) of the Act prohibits resident multinational life insurers and non-resident insurers from deducting any interest expense in computing their income from carrying on a Canadian insurance business except in limited circumstances. Interest deductibility is currently permitted under subparagraph 138(5)(b)(i) where the interest is payable on borrowed money used to acquire designated insurance property and under subparagraph 138(5)(b)(ii) on amounts payable for designated insurance property. New subparagraph 138(5)(b)(iv) allows insurers to deduct interest not in excess of a prescribed amount: amended section 2404 sets out that amount.

More specifically, the prescribed amount is equal to the amount of interest which would otherwise be deductible (but for the restrictions in subsection 138(5) of the Act) by the insurer under paragraph 20(1)(c) or 20(1)(d) of the Act multiplied by the ratio A/B where

A is the amount of the insurer's balance sheet liabilities, in respect of its Canadian insurance business, which do not relate to insurance policies, a segregated fund or a debt incurred to acquire a property (the amount being referred to in these notes as its a "general liabilities"), less

- the value for the year of the insurer's non-investment property that is factually used in carrying on an insurance business in Canada,
- where the insurer is a Canadian resident, the amount deductible from its general liabilities in computing its Canadian investment fund on account of its financial institution allowance, and

• the insurer's year-end balance sheet deferred tax debit balance in respect of an insurance business carried on in Canada; and

In general terms, amended section 2404 is intended to determine the amount of an insurer's interest expense which is attributable to its general borrowing and other non-specific liabilities to the extent that the borrowing or liability is used in carrying on a Canadian insurance business and is not held in respect of a segregated fund. As noted above, the only interest expense which can be included in the amount prescribed by regulation 2404 is interest which meets the criteria for deductibility under paragraph 20(1)(c) or (d) of the Act.

Amended section 2405 (which is, essentially, existing section 2406) provides that a policy loan payable to an insurer cannot be investment property or "property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of" (as defined in subsection 138(12) of the Act) carrying on an insurance business. As a consequence of the repeal of the definition of "property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of", the reference to that definition is replaced with a reference to the new definition "designated insurance property".

2407. 1977 excess policy dividend deduction — For the purposes of paragraph 138(3.1)(b) of the Act, a life insurer's 1977 excess policy dividend is hereby prescribed to be the amount that is the lesser of

(a) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the amount determined under clause 138(3)(a)(iii)(A) of the Act for the insurer's 1977 taxation year (determined without reference to paragraph 138(3.1)(b) of the Act),

exceeds

(ii) the amount determined under clause 138(3)(a)(iii)(B) of the Act for the insurer's 1977 taxation year; and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the insurer's maximum tax actuarial reserve for its participating life insurance policies in Canada for its 1977 taxation year,

exceeds the aggregate of

(ii) the amount that would have been the insurer's maximum tax actuarial reserve for its participating life insurance policies in Canada for its 1977 taxation year if that reserve had been determined on the basis of the rules applicable to its 1978 taxation year,

(iii) the aggregate of all amounts payable to the insurer in respect of policy loans outstanding at the end of its 1977 taxation year in respect of participating life insurance policies in Canada, and

(iv) the amount, if any, by which

(A) the insurer's maximum tax actuarial reserve for its participating life insurance policies in Canada for its 1968 taxation year,

exceeds the aggregate of

(B) the amount that would have been the insurer's maximum tax actuarial reserve for its participating life insurance policies in Canada for its 1968 taxation year if that reserve had been determined on the basis of the rules applicable to its 1978 taxation year, and

(C) the aggregate of all amounts payable to the insurer in respect of policy loans outstanding at the end of its 1968 taxation year in respect of participating life insurance policies in Canada.

2410. Prescribed amount — (1) The amount prescribed for the purposes of subsection 138(4.4) of the Act shall be computed for a taxation year as the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the specified percentage for the year of the amount determined, in respect of a property for a period in the year referred to in that subsection by the formula

where

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2410(1)

2410. Prescribed amount — For the purpose of subsection 138(4.4) of the Act, the amount prescribed in respect of a property for a period in a taxation year is the amount determined by the formula

$$[(A \times B) \times C/365] - D$$

where

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 5(1), will amend the portion of subsec. 2410(1) before the description of A to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Section 2410 sets out the rules for determining the prescribed amount for the purposes of subsection 138(4.4) of the Act. Subsection 138(4.4) of the Act applies where a life insurer owns vacant real property or real property under development and the property is designated by the insurer as property used or held by it in the year in the course of carrying on an insurance business in Canada or is factually used or held in such a business.

Subsection 138(4.4) has been amended by replacing the reference to property "used by it in the year, or held by it in the year in the course of" with a reference to the new definition "designated insurance property", and to clarify that an amount is prescribed in respect of each property which is subject to the rule. The amount prescribed for this purpose continues to be determined under amended section 2410.

Existing subsection 2410(1) provides that the prescribed amount is the specified percentage (as set out in subsection 2410(2)) of the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the average annual interest rate (as set out in Regulation 4301) for the period while the property was vacant or undeveloped

B is the average cost or capital cost of the property (net of the average amount of debt on the property)

C is the insurer's Canadian reserve liabilities less policy loans and premiums receivable

D is either:

(i) the value of the insurer's investment property less the insurer's indebtedness where the life insurer is resident in Canada but does not carry any insurance business outside Canada, or

(ii) the insurer's Canadian investment fund where the life insurer carries on an insurance business outside Canada

E is the number of days in the period

F is the insurer's net income earned on the property

Consistent with the amendments to subsection 138(4.4) of the Act, subsection 2410(1) is amended so that a prescribed amount is determined in respect of each property which is subject to subsection 138(4.4). Subsection 2410(1) is also simplified by deleting the portion of the formula which prorates the imputed interest. Accordingly, the formula is simplified to

where

A is existing A

B is existing B

C (which is existing E) is the number of days in the relevant period, and

D (which is existing F) is the net income actually earned on the property in the period

A is the average annual rate of interest determined by reference to rates of interest prescribed in section 4301 for the months or portion thereof in the period;

B is the amount, if any, by which, the average cost or average capital cost, as the case may be, of the property for the period exceeds the average amount of debt relating to the acquisition of the property outstanding during the period that bears a fair market interest rate and, for this purpose,

(a) the average cost or average capital cost, as the case may be, of a property is the total of

(i) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, if any, immediately before the beginning of the period in respect of the property, and

(ii) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the proportion of any expenditure incurred on any day in the period in respect of the cost or capital cost, as the case may be, of the property that

(A) the number of days from that day to the end of the period

is of

(B) the number of days in the period, and

(b) the average amount of debt relating to the acquisition of a property is the amount, if any, by which the total of

(i) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an indebtedness relating to the acquisition that was outstanding at the beginning of the period, and

(ii) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the proportion of an indebtedness relating to the acquisition that was incurred on any day in the period that

(A) the number of days from that day to the end of the period

is of

(B) the number of days in the period,

exceeds

(iii) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the proportion of an amount that was paid in respect of any indebtedness referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii) on any day in the period (other than a payment of interest in respect thereof) that

(A) the number of days from that day to the end of the period

is of

(B) the number of days in the period;

C is the amount, if any, by which the Canadian reserve liabilities of the life insurer at the end of a taxation year that includes the period exceed the aggregate of the policy loans and the outstanding premiums under insurance policies in Canada of the insurer at the end of the year, as determined for the purposes of the relevant authority;

D is

(a) where the insurer is a life insurer that does not carry on an insurance business outside Canada, the amount, if any, by which

(i) the valuation of all property that is owned by the insurer at the end of the taxation year that includes the period and that is

(A) an investment property,

(B) money, or

(C) a balance (other than a property included under (A) or (B)) standing to the insurer's credit as or on account of amounts deposited with a corporation authorized to accept deposits or to carry on the business of offering to the public its services as a trustee,

exceeds the total of

(ii) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount outstanding at the end of the year in respect of a debt (other than a debt referred to in paragraph (h) of the definition "valuation" in subsection 2405(3) or an amount referred to in subparagraph (iii)) owing by the insurer in respect of money borrowed by the insurer (other than money used by the insurer for the purpose of earning income from a source that is not an insurance business), and

(iii) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the amount of a cheque outstanding at the end of the year drawn on an account of the insurer maintained with a corporation authorized to accept deposits or to carry on the business of offering to the public its services as a trustee, or

(b) where the insurer is a life insurer not referred to in paragraph (a), the amount of the insurer's Canadian investment fund as at the end of the taxation year that includes the period;

E is the aggregate of the number of days in the period; and

F is the amount, if any, of the income of the person or partnership that owned the property in the period that was derived from the property for the taxation year that includes the period.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2410(1)C–F

C is the number of days in the period; and

D is the income derived from the property in the period by the person or partnership that owned the property.

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 5(2), will amend the descriptions of C and D and repeal the descriptions of E and F, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: See under Reg. 2410(1).

(2) The specified percentage for a taxation year in respect of an amount determined in respect of property under subsection (1) for a taxation year is the aggregate of

(a) that proportion of 20 per cent that the number of days in the taxation year that are after 1987 and before 1989 is of the number of days in the taxation year;

(b) that proportion of 40 per cent that the number of days in the taxation year that are after 1988 and before 1990 is of the number of days in the taxation year;

(c) that proportion of 60 per cent that the number of days in the taxation year that are after 1989 and before 1991 is of the number of days in the taxation year;

(d) that proportion of 80 per cent that the number of days in the taxation year that are after 1990 and before 1992 is of the number of days in the taxation year; and

(e) that proportion of 100 per cent that the number of days in the taxation year that are after 1991 is of the number of days in the taxation year.

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 2410(2)

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 5(3), will repeal subsec. 2410(2), applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2410(2) was intended to phase-in the effect of subsection 138(4.4) of the Act and subsection 2410(1) when they were introduced in 1987. Subsection 2410(2) provides that an amount determined under subsection 2410(1) is included only on the basis of 20%, 40%, 60%, 80% and 100% of the amount for the 1988, 1989, 1990, 1991 and 1992 years. Subsection 2410(2) is now redundant and is being repealed. The repeal of subsection 2410(2) means that subsection 2410(1) becomes simply section 2410.

2411. (1) Subject to subsection (2), the amount prescribed in respect of an insurer for a taxation year for the purposes of paragraph 138(9)(b) of the Act shall be the amount determined by the formula

$$A - (B + C)$$

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2411(1)

$$A - (B + B.1 + C)$$

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 4(1), will amend the formula in subsec. 2411(1) to read as above, applicable to 1995 et seq.

Technical Notes: See under Reg. 2411(1)B.1 below.

where

A is the positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subsection (3);

B is the positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subsection (4) in respect of investment property designated by the insurer for the year pursuant to subsection 2400(1) as investment property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on an insurance business in Canada; and

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2411(1)B

B is the positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subsection (4) in respect of the insurer's investment property that is designated insurance property for the year;

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 6(1), will amend the description of B in subsec. 2411(1) to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Section 2411 sets out the rules for determining the prescribed amount which is required to be included in an insurer's income under paragraph 138(9)(b) of the Act.

Paragraph 138(9)(a) of the Act requires multinational life insurers and non-resident insurers to include in computing income for a year from a Canadian insurance business the gross investment revenue that is derived from property which is considered, under a set of prescribed rules, to be used in that insurance business. Paragraph 138(9)(b) requires such insurers to also include in their income from carrying on an insurance business in Canada the amount prescribed in section 2411 of the Regulations.

Section 2411 is intended to restrict the ability of a multinational insurer to reduce its taxable income by having only the revenue from its low-yielding assets included in computing its Canadian income. Under Part XXIV of the Regulations, an insurer is required to choose (a process referred to as the designation of property), from among all of its investment assets, those assets which can be considered to be used in carrying on the Canadian portion of its insurance businesses. The value of its assets which must be designated in respect of a taxation year cannot be less than its Canadian investment fund for the year (for further details see the commentary on amended subsection 2401, above). Absent paragraph 138(9)(b) of the Act and section 2411, an insurer could fill its Canadian investment fund with its lowest-yielding assets thereby failing to provide a reasonable representation of its income from its Canadian insurance operations.

Subsection 2411(1) prescribes the amount for the purposes of paragraph 138(9)(b). The amount is the difference between the insurer's average net investment revenue for the year (as determined under subsection 2411(3)) and the insurer's net investment revenue earned on its designated property (as determined under subsection 2411(4)). The amount may be reduced if the insurer has a carryover amount from its cumulative excess account. The cumulative excess account is made up of amounts in the seven preceding taxation years where the insurer's actual revenue in a preceding taxation year exceeded the minimum revenue, as determined under section 2411, for that preceding year.

Proposed Addition — Reg. 2411(1)B.1 [temporary]

B.1 is the positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subsection (4.1) in respect of property disposed of by the insurer that was, in the taxation year of disposition, investment property designated by the insurer under subsection 2400(1) as property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on an insurance business in Canada;

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 4(2), will add the description of B.1 to subsec. 2411(1), applicable to 1995 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 138(9) of the Act requires a resident multinational life insurer or a non-resident insurer to include the following amounts in income:

(i) its gross investment revenue from property designated as property used or held by it in carrying on its insurance businesses in Canada; and

(ii) any additional amount that is prescribed.

Section 2411 prescribes an amount for this purpose that ensures that the insurer's net investment revenue from its designated property is not less than the net investment revenue that would be determined if the average rate of return on its designated assets of each class were equal to the average rate of return on all its investment property of that class. This prevents an insurer from understating its Canadian business income by designating assets with lower investment returns.

Subsection 2411(1) prescribes the additional amount, if any, that an insurer is required by paragraph 138(9)(b) of the Act to include in computing its income for a taxation year. This amount is equal to the difference between the insurer's minimum amount of net investment revenue for the year determined under subsection 2411(3) and the insurer's actual net investment revenue for the year from its designated property determined under subsection 2411(4). If, in preceding taxation years, the insurer's actual revenue has exceeded the required minimum, the insurer may have a carryforward amount that can be used to reduce the prescribed amount.

Subsection 2411(1) is amended as a consequence of the introduction of rules in subsection 142.4(4) of the Act that apply to the disposition of certain specified debt obligations (as defined in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act). The amendment includes in the determination of the insurer's actual net investment revenue for a particular taxation year the amount determined under new subsection 2411(4.1) in respect of specified debt obligations disposed of by the insurer at any time that were designated as property of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada. The amount determined under subsection 2411(4.1) for a taxation year is equal to the net amount required by subsection 142.4(4) of the Act to be included in respect of the obligations in computing the income of the insurer for the year (or the net amount that is deductible in respect of the obligations, expressed as a negative amount).

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2411(1)B.1

B.1 is the positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subsection (4.1) in respect of property disposed of by the insurer in a taxation year for which it was designated insurance property of the insurer; and

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 6(2), will amend the description of B.1 in subsec. 2411(1) to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: See under 2411(1)B.

C is the amount claimed by the insurer for the year in respect of any balance of its cumulative excess account at the end of the year.

(2) Where an amount computed under subsection (1) in respect of an insurer is a negative amount, that amount shall be deemed to be nil.

(3) The positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined under this subsection in respect of an insurer for a taxation year shall be the amount determined by the formula

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2411(3) [temporary]

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 4(3), will amend the first formula in subsec. 2411(3) to read as above, applicable to 1995 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2411(3) provides for the computation of the minimum amount of net investment revenue that must be reported by an insurer for a taxation year. This revenue is calculated by determining average yield rates for either two or three classes of assets, and applying each rate to the amount of assets of the class that have been designated for the year as property of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada. The amounts that are taken into account in determining average yield rates are specified by subsection 2411(4), and include gains and losses from the disposition of property. In the case of property that has not been designated as property of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada, the amounts are determined as if the property had been so designated.

Subsection 2411(3) is amended as a consequence of the introduction of rules in subsection 142.4(4) of the Act that apply to the disposition of certain specified debt obligations. The amendment includes, in determining the average yield rate for a class of assets, the amount determined under new subsection 2411(4.1) in respect of those assets. The amount determined under subsection 2411(4.1) for a taxation year is equal to the net amount required by subsection 142.4(4) of the Act to be included in respect of the assets in computing the income of the insurer for the year (or the net amount that is deductible in respect of the assets, expressed as a negative amount).

or, where the value for the year of foreign investment property designated by the insurer for the year pursuant to subsection 2400(1) as investment property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on an insurance business in Canada is not greater than 5 per cent of the amount of the Canadian investment fund for the year of the insurer and the insurer so elects, the amount determined by the formula

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 4(4), will amend the second formula in subsec. 2411(3) to read as above, applicable to 1995 et seq.

Technical Notes: See under Reg. 2411(3) above.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2411(3)

(3) The positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined under this subsection in respect of an insurer for a taxation year shall be the amount determined by the formula

or, where the value for the year of the insurer's foreign investment property that is designated insurance property for the year is not greater than 5 per cent of the amount of the insurer's mean Canadian investment fund for the year and the insurer so elects in its return of income under Part I for the year, the amount determined by the formula

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 6(3), will amend the portion of subsec. 2411(3) before the description of A to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2411(3) sets out the computation of the minimum amount of net investment revenue that must be reported by an insurer for a taxation year. In general terms, the minimum net investment revenue is determined by multiplying the net investment revenue earned on the insurer's designated property by the ratio that the insurer's net investment revenue on all its investment property is to the value for the year of all its investment property. That ratio represents the average yield on the insurer's investment property. Multiplying the ratio by the value of the designated insurance property produces the average yield which should be earned on the insurer's investment property. The actual computation in subsection 2411(3) measures the average yield for assets in each of the following groups of property:

- Canadian equity property,
- other Canadian investment property, and
- foreign investment property.

A is the positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined in respect of the insurer for the year under subsection (4) in respect of Canadian investment property (other than Canadian equity property) owned by the insurer at any time in the year;

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsecs. 4(7) to (13), will amend the opening words of the descriptions of A and B in subsec. 2411(4), will amend paras. (d) and (i) of the description of A and (b) of the description of B, will add paras. (c.1) to the description of A and (a.1) to the description of B, and will repeal paras. (b) of the description of A and (c) of the description of B; the opening words of the descriptions of A and B applicable to taxation years that end after June 1, 1995, paras. (b) and (i) of the description of A and para. (c) of the description of B applicable to taxation years that begin after February 22, 1994, paras. (d) and (c.1) to the description of A and paras. (a.1) and (b) to the description of B, applicable to dispositions of property that occur after February 22, 1994.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2411(4) provides that an insurer's net investment revenue from property of a particular class is determined by the formula "A - B", where A is the total of the gross investment revenue from the property, gains from the disposition of the property and other income inclusions in respect of the property, and B is losses from the property and other deductions in respect of the property. The amounts included in A and B in respect of property that has not been designated as property of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada are determined as if the property had been so designated. Several changes are made to the determination of amounts A and B.

The descriptions of both A and B are amended to clarify that, in determining the amounts to be taken into account in respect of property that has not been designated, the property is to be treated as if it had been designated for each year from the time it was acquired.

The other changes to A are as follows:

- Paragraph (b) is repealed. This paragraph includes in A the amounts included in the insurer's income under paragraphs 138(4)(b) and (c) of the Act (profit on disposition of a Canada security, and amortization of discount on such a security). This amendment is consequential on the repeal of paragraphs 138(4)(b) and (c).
- New paragraph (c.1) includes in A the amounts that are included in the insurer's income by subsection 142.4(5) of the Act. That subsection includes in income the gain from the disposition of specified debt obligations after February 22, 1994 where the gain is not required to be amortized.
- Paragraph (d), which includes certain non-capital gains in A, is amended to replace the exclusion for gains from Canada securities by an exclusion for gains from specified debt obligations. Those gains are dealt with, in some cases, by new paragraph (c.1) and in other cases by new subsection 2411(4.1).
- Paragraph (i), which includes in A all amounts that are included in the insurer's income in respect of the property, but that are not specifically referred to in the preceding paragraphs, is amended so that it does not apply to amounts that are included in income by subsection 142.4(4) of the Act. New subsection 2411(4.1), in conjunction with amendments to subsections 2411(1) and (3), provides for subsection 142.4(4) amounts to be taken into account.

The changes to B, in addition to the change described [to A] above, are as follows:

- New paragraph (a.1) includes in B the amounts that are deductible under subsection 142.4(5) of the Act in computing the insurer's income. That subsection provides a deduction for the loss from the disposition of specified debt obligations after February 22, 1994 where the loss is not required to be amortized.
- Paragraph (b), which includes certain non-capital losses in B, is amended to replace the exclusion for losses from Canada securities by an exclusion for losses from specified debt obligations. Those losses are dealt with, in some cases, by new paragraph (a.1) and in other cases by new subsection 2411(4.1).
- Paragraph (c) is repealed. This paragraph includes in B the amounts that are deductible under paragraphs 138(3)(b) and (d) of the Act (loss on disposition of a Canada security, and amortization of premium on such a security). This amendment is consequential on the repeal of paragraphs 138(3)(b) and (d).

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2411(4)A

A is the total of the following amounts determined in respect of the property for the year, or that would be determined in respect of the property for the year if the property were designated insurance property of the insurer in respect of an insurance business in Canada for each taxation year in which it was held by the insurer:

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 6(7), will amend the opening words of the description of A in subsec. 2411(4) to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2411(4) sets out the rules for determining an insurer's net investment revenue for the purposes of computing the insurer's minimum net revenue in subsection 2411(1) and (3). Subsection 2411(4.1) serves the same function as subsection 2411(4), but in respect of certain specified debt obligations which are disposed of by an insurer.

Subsections 2411(1), (3), (4) and (4.1) are amended strictly as a consequence of the replacement of the definition "property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of" in subsection 138(12) of the Act with the definition "designated insurance property".

Proposed Addition — Reg. 2411(4.1)

(4.1) The positive or negative amount, as the case may be, determined under this subsection in respect of an insurer for a taxation year in respect of property disposed of by the insurer in the year or a preceding taxation year is the amount determined by the formula

A is the total of the amounts included under paragraphs 142.4(4)(a) and (c) of the Act in the insurer's income for the year in respect of the property, or that would be so included if the property had been insurance property of the insurer in respect of an insurance business in Canada for each taxation year in which it was held by the insurer; and

B is the total of the amounts deductible under paragraphs 142.4(4)(b) and (d) of the Act in respect of the property in computing the insurer's income for the year, or that would be so deductible if the property had been insurance property of the insurer in respect of an insurance business in Canada for each taxation year in which it was held by the insurer.

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 4(14), will add subsec. 2411(4.1), applicable to 1995 et seq.

Technical Notes: New subsection 142.4(4) of the Act contains rules that apply with respect to the disposition of certain specified debt obligations. (The term "specified debt obligation" is defined in subsection 142.2(1) of the Act.) In particular, subsection 142.4(4) provides in general for the amortization of all or part of a gain or loss. New subsection 2411(4.1), in conjunction with amendments to subsections 2411(1) and (3), provides for the subsection 142.4(4) amounts to be taken into account in determining the amount, if any, prescribed by subsection 2411(1). A related amendment to subsection 2411(4) ensures that subsection 142.4(4) amounts are not taken into account twice.

New subsection 2411(4.1) determines an amount with respect to a group of specified debt obligations disposed of by an insurer before the end of a taxation year. (This includes obligations disposed of in preceding taxation years.) The amount for a year (which may be positive or negative) is equal to:

- the total of all amounts included by subsection 142.4(4) in the insurer's income for the year in respect of the obligations (or that would be so included if the property had been property of a Canadian insurance business)

minus

- the total of all amounts deductible under subsection 142.4(4) in respect of the obligations in computing the insurer's income for the year (or that would be so deductible if the property had been property of a Canadian insurance business).

Subsection 2411(4.1) is invoked by subsections 2411(1) and (3). For the purpose of subsection 2411(1), the subsection 2411(4.1) amount is determined in respect of specified debt obligations that were designated as property of an insurance business carried on by the insurer in Canada. Subsection 2411(3) provides for the subsection 2411(4.1) amount to be determined in respect of all specified debt obligations that are Canadian investment property, whether or not they have been designated by the insurer. It also provides for a similar determination in respect of specified debt obligations that are foreign investment property.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2411(4.1)A, B

A is the total of the amounts included under paragraphs 142.4(4)(a) and (c) of the Act in the insurer's income for the year in respect of the property, or that would be so included if the property were designated insurance property of the insurer in respect of an insurance business in Canada for each taxation year in which it was held by the insurer; and

B is the total of the amounts deductible under paragraphs 142.4(4)(b) and (d) of the Act in respect of the property in computing the insurer's income for the year, or that would be so deductible if the property were designated insurance property of the insurer in respect of an insurance business in Canada for each taxation year in which it was held by the insurer.

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 6(8), will amend the descriptions of A and B in subsec. 2411(4.1) to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: See under 2411(4)A.

(5) For the purposes of subsection (4), a property that has not been designated by the insurer for the year pursuant to subsection 2400(1) as investment property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on an insurance business in Canada shall be deemed to be a property used by it in the year in, or held by it in the year in the course of, carrying on that insurance business in respect of which the property has been reported by the insurer in its annual report for the year to the relevant authority or, where the insurer was throughout the year subject to the supervision of the relevant authority but was not required to file an annual report with the relevant authority for the year, that insurance business in respect of which the property would have been reported by the insurer in an annual report for the year if it had been so required by the relevant authority.

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 2411(5)

Application: The June 1, 1995 draft regulations (securities held by financial institutions), subsec. 4(15), will repeal subsec. 2411(5), applicable to taxation years that begin after February 22, 1994.

Technical Notes: Where property has not been designated as property used or held in a Canadian insurance business, subsection 2411(4) applies on the assumption that the property had been so designated. Subsection 2411(5) contains an additional rule for this purpose. It provides that the property is to be considered property of the business in respect of which it is reported in the insurer's annual report. This rule was required because of the special rules for the tax treatment of debt obligations (referred to as Canada securities) that are property of a life insurance business. Subsection 2411(5) is repealed, for taxation years beginning after February 22, 1994, as a consequence of the repeal of the special rules for Canada securities.

(6) For the purposes of subsection (1), the balance of an insurer's cumulative excess account at the end of a taxation year shall be determined as the amount, if any, by which

(a) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is a positive amount, if any, determined in respect of each of such of its seven immediately preceding taxation years that began after June 17, 1987 and ended after 1987 by the formula where A and B are the amounts determined under subsection (1) in respect of the insurer for such immediately preceding taxation year,

exceeds

(b) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is an amount claimed by the insurer under subsection (1) in respect of its cumulative excess account for a preceding taxation year that can be attributed to a positive amount determined under paragraph (a) for that year and, for the purpose of this paragraph, a positive amount determined in respect of a taxation year shall be deemed to have been claimed before a positive amount determined in respect of any subsequent taxation year.

(7) For the purposes of subsection (3),

(a) where the aggregate value for the year of property designated by the insurer for the year pursuant to paragraphs 2400(1)(a) to (d) exceeds the minimum value for the year of property required to be designated by the insurer for the year pursuant to those paragraphs, the aggregate value for the year of the property determined for the year under each of C, F and J of the formula set out in subsection (3) shall not exceed that minimum value for the year of such property that is required to be designated by the insurer for the year pursuant to paragraphs 2400(1)(a) to (d); and

(b) for the purposes of paragraph (a), the value for the year of property required to be designated by the insurer for the year under F in the formula set out in subsection (3) shall be deemed to be the value for the year of such property designated by the insurer for the year.

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 2411(7)

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), subsec. 6(9), will repeal subsec. 2411(7), applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2411(7) provides that subsection 2411(3) applies only to the extent that investment property must be designated by an insurer in accordance with the rules in paragraphs 2400(1)(a) to (d). Those paragraphs permitted an insurer to designate investment property with a total value in excess of that required to be designated for the year. The amended designation rules (for further details see the commentary on amended section 2401, above) do not allow such excess designations and, therefore, subsection 2411(7) is to be repealed.

(8) For the purposes of this section, "foreign investment property" of an insurer means investment property of the insurer (unless the insurer is a non-resident insurer and it is established by the insurer that the investment property is not effectively connected with its Canadian insurance businesses) that is not Canadian investment property of the insurer.

Application: The September 19, 1997 draft regulations (insurance companies), s. 7, will amend s. 2412 to read as above, applicable to 1997 et seq.

Technical Notes: The cash flow adjustment (the "CFA") is designed to take account of the actual receipts and payments of an insurer throughout a taxation year in order to achieve a more accurate determination of the year-end Canadian investment fund (CIF) when the insurer's business does not grow or shrink uniformly during the year. This adjustment is necessary because the CIF for the year is simply the mean of the insurer's opening and closing CIFs for the year, but the value attributed to the property that is designated to fill this mean CIF is based on the number days in the year that the property was owned. Without the CFA, investment income earned on an investment property will be understated when the property is acquired in the first half of the year and overstated where the property is acquired in the second half of the year.

Example

Assume the following:

- opening CIF $100
- closing CIF $200

- mean CIF for the year 1/2($100 + $200) = $150
- The increase in the CIF over the year corresponded to the receipt of premium revenue, an increase in the insurer's reserve liabilities in respect of the premium, and acquisition of an investment property, with a carrying value equal to $100, at the very beginning of the year.

For designation purposes, the value for the year of the property is $100. Because the increase in the mean CIF for the year is only $50, however, only 1/2 of the value of the investment property need be designated to fill the increase in the mean CIF. Accordingly, only the investment revenue generated from $50 worth of the investment property will be included in the insurer's income.

In these circumstances the cash flow adjustment is designed to increase the insurer's CIF for the year by $50 to reflect the acquisition of the investment property at the beginning of the year.

The existing CFA increases or decreases the mean CIF based on the insurer's quarterly cash flows of the following items:

- premiums or consideration in respect of insurance contracts or annuities
- amounts in respect of interest on policy loans or repayments in respect of policy loans
- amounts in respect of reinsurance
- amounts in respect of claims, benefits, and refunds of premiums.

Because the cash flow is only measured quarterly, amounts in respect of contracts (such as cash annuities) which are outstanding for less than 90 days may not be included in the CFA (subject to the application of the anti-avoidance rule in section 245 of the Act, where the timing of the obligations is deliberately manipulated to over-weight redemptions prior to the end of a quarter) although the insurer could have earned investment income for 89 days on the amount received on the contract.

To address the above problems, a new daily CFA will apply a daily-weighting to amounts received or paid by an insurer in the following transactions:

- certain large life insurance, reinsurance and annuity contracts;
- an insurer's borrowing and debt instrument financing; and
- an insurer's equity financing.

The existing quarterly CFA will continue to apply except in respect of amounts which are included in the daily CFA.

(2) The documents referred to in subsection (1) shall be filed

(ii) of the spouse is that proportion of the accumulating income of the trust for the year that the fair market value of the property contributed by the spouse is of the aggregate of the fair market value of the property contributed by the individual and the fair market value of the property contributed by his spouse (such fair market values being determined in respect of each contribution at the time of the making of that contribution), and

(iii) of any other beneficiary who is a preferred beneficiary under the trust is nil;

PART XXIX — SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AND EXPERIMENTAL DEVELOPMENT

History: The heading to Part XXIX amended by P.C. 1986-2770, para. 3(a), December 11, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1986, applicable to expenditures made in taxation years ending after May 23, 1985.

Part XXIX was consolidated by the Consolidated Regulations of Canada, chapter 945, proclaimed in force August 15, 1979, by P.C. 1979-1934, July 19, 1979, Canada Gazette, Part II, August 8, 1979.

Proposed Repeal — Reg. 2900(1)

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, subsec. 1(1), will repeal subsec. 2900(1), applicable to work performed after February 27, 1995 except that, for the purposes of paras. 149(1)(j) and (8)(b) of the Act, the repeal does not apply to work performed pursuant to an agreement in writing made by the taxpayer before February 28, 1995. (See now ITA 248(1)"scientific research and experimental development".)

Technical Notes: Subsection 2900(1) of the Income Tax Regulations defines "scientific research and experimental development" ("SR&ED").

This definition is repealed, consequential on the introduction of the definition "scientific research and experimental development" in subsection 248(1) of the Act. The introduction of this definition in the Act will give it application to the Regulations as well, thus making the definition in subsection 2900(1) of the Regulations unnecessary.

Related Provisions: ITA 37(13) — Linked work under non-arm's length contract deemed to be SR&ED.

History: Subsec. 2900(1) amended by P.C. 1995-16, subsec. 1(1), January 11, 1995, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 25, 1995, applicable to taxation years ending after December 2, 1992.

That portion of s. 2900 preceding para. (a) amended and s. 2900 renumbered as subsec. 2900(1), by P.C. 1986-2770, para. 3(a), December 11, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1986, applicable to expenditures made in taxation years ending after May 23, 1985.

All that portion of s. 2900 preceding para. (a) substituted by P.C. 1978-2917, s. 1, September 27, 1978, Canada Gazette, Part II, October 11, 1978, effective for the period commencing with a taxation year ending after 1977.

Interpretation Bulletins: See at end of Reg. 2900.

Information Circulars: See at end of Reg. 2900.

Application Policies: SR&ED 95-01R: Linked activities — Reg. 2900(1)(d); SR&ED 95-02: Science eligibility guidelines for the oil and gas and mining industries; SR&ED 96-02: Tests and studies required to meet requirements in regulated industries; SR&ED 96-07: Prototypes, custom products, commercial assets, pilot plants and experimental production; SR&ED 96-08: Eligibility of the preparation of new drug submissions; SR&ED 96-09: Eligibility of clinical trials to meet regulatory requirements.

(2) For the purposes of clause 37(8)(a)(i)(B) and subclause 37(8)(a)(ii)(A)(II) of the Act, the following expenditures are directly attributable to the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development:

(a) the cost of materials consumed in such prosecution;

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2900(2)(a)

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, subsec. 1(2), will amend para. 2900(2)(a) to read as above, applicable to costs incurred after February 23, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 2900(2) of the Regulations provides a description of expenditures that are considered directly attributable to the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development. These expenditures are eligible for deduction under section 37 of the Act and may earn investment tax credits under section 127 of the Act.

Paragraph 2900(2)(a) is amended, pursuant to the announcement in the 1998 Budget, to add to the list of such expenditures the cost of materials transformed in the prosecution of SR&ED.

(b) where an employee directly undertakes, supervises or supports such prosecution, the portion of the amount incurred for salary or wages of the employee that can reasonably be considered to be in respect of such prosecution; and

(c) other expenditures, or those portions of other expenditures, that are directly related to such prosecution and that would not have been incurred if such prosecution had not occurred.

(3) For the purposes of subclause 37(8)(a)(ii)(A)(II) of the Act, the following expenditures are directly attributable to the provision of premises, facilities or equipment for the prosecution of scientific research and experimental development:

(4) For the purposes of the definition "qualified expenditure" in subsection 127(9) of the Act, the prescribed proxy amount of a taxpayer for a taxation year, in respect of a business, in respect of which the taxpayer elects under clause 37(8)(a)(ii)(B) of the Act is 65% of the total of all amounts each of which is that portion of the amount incurred in the year by the taxpayer in respect of salary or wages of an employee of the taxpayer who is directly engaged in scientific research and experimental development carried on in Canada that can reasonably be considered to relate to the scientific research and experimental development having regard to the time spent by the employee on the scientific research and experimental development.

Proposed Amendment — Revocation of Election

Department of Finance press release, June 30, 1994: Deadline for Revocation of Election

The legislation and draft regulations will allow taxpayers conducting SR&ED in Canada to use a simpler elective method to calculate their SR&ED expenditures and the related investment tax credits. A taxpayer must elect annually to use this simpler method which is available beginning with taxation years ending after December 2, 1992. If a taxpayer wants to revoke such an election made before May 12, 1994, the Minister of National Revenue will allow the revocation provided the taxpayer requests it in writing within 90 days of this release [i.e., by September 28, 1994 — ed.].

Revenue Canada's backgrounder provides examples and explains, in a question and answer format, some of the issues relating to the elective method. It explains how to calculate the prescribed proxy amount and provides information on the new, partial investment tax credit for "shared-use equipment". The backgrounder is based on the SR&ED legislation that became law on May 12, 1994, as well as the draft regulations that were released today.

Related Provisions: Reg. 2900(5)–(7) — Additional rules re prescribed proxy amount.

Subsec. 2900(4) added by P.C. 1986-2770, s. 4, December 11, 1986, Canada Gazette, Part II, December 24, 1986, applicable to expenditures made in taxation years ending after May 23, 1985.

Application Policies: SR&ED 96-06: Directly undertaking, supervising or supporting v. "directly engaged" SR&ED salary and wages.

(5) Subject to subsections (6) to (8), where in subsection (4) the portion of an expenditure is all or substantially all of the expenditure, that portion shall be replaced by the amount of the expenditure.

History: Subsec. 2900(5) added by P.C. 1995-16, subsec. 1(6), January 11, 1995, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 25, 1995, applicable to taxation years ending after December 2, 1992.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 2902(e)

(e) for the purpose of sections 194 and 195 of the Act, an expenditure of a current or capital nature, to the extent that the taxpayer has received or is entitled to receive a reimbursement in respect of the expenditure from

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, s. 2, will amend the opening words of para. 2902(e) to read as above, applicable to amounts that become receivable after December 20, 1991.

Technical Notes: Section 2902 defines a prescribed expenditure for the purposes of subsection 127(9) of the Income Tax Act. Prescribed expenditures are not eligible for investment tax credits.

Paragraph 2902(e) of the Income Tax Regulations is amended consequential on the amendments to the definition "contract payment" in subsection 127(9) of the Act. Those amendments provided that a contract payment included certain payments for scientific research and experimental development that is performed for or on behalf of a person entitled to a deduction in respect of the amount because of subparagraph 37(1)(a)(i) or (i.1) of the Act. Contract payments received reduce the base upon which a taxpayer's ITC in respect of SR&ED is calculated. Those amendments were effective for amounts that became payable after December 20, 1991. In view of the amended definition of "contract payment" applicable to ITCs in respect of SR&ED, the provisions of paragraph 2902(e) became redundant for ITC purposes. However, paragraph 2902(e) of the Regulations is still relevant in respect of claims for refunds of Part VIII Refundable Tax on Corporations in Respect of the Scientific Research and Experimental Development Tax Credit. Regulation 2902(e) is, therefore, amended to apply only for the purposes of the Part VIII Refundable Tax.

(i) a person resident in Canada, other than

(B) an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province,

(C) a corporation, commission or association that is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province or by an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada or a province, or

(D) a municipality in Canada or a municipal or public body performing a function of government in Canada, or

(ii) a person not resident in Canada to the extent that the said reimbursement is deductible by the person in computing his taxable income earned in Canada for any taxation year.

Secretary of State Jim Peterson today announced that he intends to recommend amendments to Part XXXII of the Income Tax Regulations.

Part XXXII of the Income Tax Regulations prescribes various stock exchanges for the purposes of a number of provisions in the Income Tax Act. In particular, shares listed on a prescribed stock exchange automatically constitute eligible investments for registered retirement savings plans (RRSPs), registered retirement income funds (RRIFs) and deferred profit savings plans (DPSPs), are qualified securities for rules pertaining to securities lending arrangements and are excluded from the application of withholding requirements under section 116 of the Act. The Secretary of State indicated that the following stock exchanges would be added to those already prescribed in Part XXXII:

- in Denmark, the Copenhagen Stock Exchange;
- in Finland, the Helsinki Stock Exchange;
- in South Africa, the Johannesburg Stock Exchange;
- in Norway, the Oslo Stock Exchange;
- in Sweden, the Stockholm Stock Exchange;
- in Israel, the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange; and
- in Austria, the Vienna Stock Exchange.

For most purposes, the prescriptions will apply after today's date. For purposes of the withholding requirements imposed under section 116 of the Act, however, the prescriptions will apply to share sales after April 1998 that were exempt from tax payable under the Act because a tax treaty applied. This retroactive relief, which will apply unless the vendor of the shares elects otherwise, recognizes that in such cases, the section 116 obligation serves an administrative function only.

Proposed Amendment — Foreign Stock Exchange Index Units

Department of Finance news release, December 18, 1998: Qualified RRSP Investments and IRAs

Finance Minister Paul Martin today announced that he will propose changes to the Income Tax Act and the Income Tax Regulations to address two issues that have been recently raised with the Department of Finance, in the context of retirement savings decisions currently being made by individuals.

The first issue relates to foreign stock exchange index units. The Minister announced that he would propose changes to the Income Tax Regulations to ensure that these units are qualified investments for trusts governed by registered retirement savings plans, registered retirement income funds and deferred profit sharing plans. Qualifying units will include Standard & Poor 500 Depositary Receipts (SPDRs), units valued on the basis of the Dow Jones Industrial Average (known as DIAMONDs) and units for a particular country (known as WEBs) valued on the basis of the Morgan Stanley Capital Investment Index.

It is understood that industry practice for a number of years has been to treat these units as qualified investments. The proposed amendments would accommodate industry practice and recognize that index units can be part of a balanced portfolio of retirement assets for many individuals.

It is proposed that these amendments to the Regulations would apply to property acquired after 1993. This ensures that the regulatory framework conforms to the long-standing industry practice.

[For the second measure, dealing with Roth IRAs, see Proposed Amendment under ITA 248(1)"foreign retirement arrangement" — ed.]

(a) an employer by whom payments are made in trust to a trustee under a deferred profit sharing plan or a revoked plan for the benefit of beneficiaries under the plan, or

(b) a corporation with whom that employer does not deal at arm's length

(3) For the purpose of paragraph (i) of the definition "qualified investment" in section 204 of the Act, a contract with a licensed annuities provider for an annuity payable to an employee who is a beneficiary under a deferred profit sharing plan beginning not later than the end of the year in which the employee attains 69 years of age, the guaranteed term of which, if any, does not exceed 15 years, is prescribed as a qualified investment for a trust governed by such a plan or revoked plan.

History: Subsec. 4900(3) amended by P.C. 1998-2256, s. 1, December 16, 1998, Canada Gazette, Part II, January 6, 1999, applicable to annuity contracts acquired after 1996, except that

(a) the amendment does not apply to a contract where the annuitant attained 70 years of age before 1997; and

(b) in applying the subsec. to a contract where the annuitant attained 69 years of age in 1996, the reference to "69 years of age" shall be read as a reference to "70 years of age".

(4) For the purposes of subparagraphs 146(1)(g)(iv) [146(1)"qualified investment"(d)] and 146.3(1)(d)(iii) [146.3(1)"qualified investment"(c)] of the Act, a mortgage secured by real property situated in Canada, or an interest therein, is a qualified investment for a registered retirement savings plan or a registered retirement income fund unless the mortgagor is the annuitant under the plan or fund, as the case may be, or is a person with whom the annuitant does not deal at arm's length.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 4900(4)

(4) For the purposes of paragraph (d) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146(1) of the Act, paragraph (e) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146.1(1) of the Act and paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146.3(1) of the Act, a mortgage secured by real property situated in Canada, or an interest therein, is a qualified investment for a registered retirement savings plan, a registered education savings plan and a registered retirement income fund unless the mortgagor is a person who is an annuitant, a beneficiary or a subscriber under the plan or fund or any other person who does not deal at arm's length with that person.

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, subsec. 2(7), will amend subsec. 4900(4) to read as above, applicable to property acquired after October 27, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 4900(4) of the Regulations allows a mortgage secured by real property situated in Canada, or an interest therein, to be a qualified investment for RRSPs and RRIFs, if the mortgagor deals at arm's length with the RRSP or RRIF annuitant.

Subsection 4900(4) is amended so that such a mortgage is also a qualified investment for an RESP, provided the mortgagor deals at arm's length with each person who is a subscriber or beneficiary under the RESP.

(5) For the purposes of subparagraph 146.2(1)(g)(iv) of the Act, a contract between a trust governed by a registered home ownership savings plan and a person licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada an annuities business is a qualified investment for that trust if the trust is entitled to receive from the person, on demand, an amount in settlement of the contract that is not less than the amount by which the aggregate of

(a) all the amounts paid as consideration by the trust under the contract, and

exceeds

(c) such amount as may be specified in the contract.

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 4900(5)

(5) For the purposes of paragraph (e) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146.1(1) of the Act, a property is a qualified investment for a trust governed by a registered education savings plan at any time if at that time the property is an interest in a trust or a share of the capital stock of a corporation that was a registered investment for a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan during the calendar year in which the time occurs or the preceding year.

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, subsec. 2(8), will amend subsec. 4900(5) to read as above, applicable to property acquired after October 27, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 4900(5) of the Regulations prescribes certain annuity contracts to be qualified investments for registered home ownership savings plans (RHOSPs). Since the provisions relating to RHOSPs were repealed, effective after 1985, existing subsection 4900(5) is obsolete. It is being replaced by a provision relating to RESPs.

Amended subsection 4900(5) prescribes, as a qualified investment for an RESP, an interest in a trust or a share of a corporation that was a registered investment (as defined in subsection 204.4(1) of the Act) for an RRSP during the calendar year or the immediately preceding year.

(6) For the purposes of subparagraphs 146(1)(g)(iv) [146(1)"qualified investment"(d)] and 146.3(1)(d)(iii) [146.3(1)"qualified investment"(c)] of the Act, except as provided in subsections (8) and (9), a property is a qualified investment for a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan or a registered retirement income fund at any time if at that time the property is

(a) a share of the capital stock of an eligible corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 5100(1)), unless the annuitant under the plan or fund is a designated shareholder of the corporation;

Proposed Amendment — Reg. 4900(6)

(6) For the purposes of paragraph (d) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146(1) of the Act, paragraph (e) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146.1(1) of the Act and paragraph (c) of the definition "qualified investment" in subsection 146.3(1) of the Act, except as provided in subsections (8) and (9), a property is a qualified investment for a trust governed by a registered retirement savings plan, a registered education savings plan and a registered retirement income fund at any time if at that time the property is

(a) a share of the capital stock of an eligible corporation (within the meaning assigned by subsection 5100(1)), unless a person who is an annuitant, a beneficiary or a subscriber under the plan or fund is a designated shareholder of the corporation;

Application: The October 27, 1998 draft regulations, subsec. 2(9), will amend the portion of subsec. 4900(6) before para. (b) to read as above, applicable to property acquired after October 27, 1998.

Technical Notes: Subsection 4900(6) of the Regulations prescribes the following types of property to be qualified investments for RRSPs and RRIFs:

- a share in the capital stock of an "eligible corporation", provided the annuitant under the RRSP or RRIF is not a "designated shareholder" of the corporation;
- an interest of a limited partner in an small business investment limited partnership; and
- an interest in an small business investment trust

The expressions "designated shareholder", "eligible corporation", "small business investment limited partnership" and "small business investment trust" are defined in subsections 4901(2), 5100(1), 5102(1) and 5103(1) of the Regulations, respectively.

Subsection 4900(6) is amended so that the types of investments described therein also qualify for an RESP. In the case of a share of an eligible corporation, each person who is a subscriber or beneficiary under the RESP must not be a "designated shareholder" of the corporation.

Subsection 4900(6) is subject to the rules in subsections 4900(8) and (9). These rules provide that an investment that would otherwise qualify under subsection 4900(6) will not be a qualified investment in certain circumstances. Proposed Addition — Foreign Property Exclusions

Department of Finance news release, January 28, 1999: Modifications to Foreign Property Classification Proposed

Finance Minister Paul Martin today proposed two modifications to the rules governing the classification of property as foreign property for the purposes of the 20-per-cent foreign property limit.

Except as specifically exempted by regulation, interests in partnerships and trusts are treated as foreign property for the purposes of the 20-per-cent foreign property limit. The modifications proposed today are aimed at improving the structure of the exempting regulation.

The first proposal is to exclude interests in specified international finance trusts from treatment as foreign property. To qualify as a specified international finance trust, the trust's assets must consist substantially of investments such as debt issued to the Export Development Corporation (EDC) and multilateral development institutions. This proposal is intended to encourage Canadian exports, particularly those financed through debt issued to the EDC and to multilateral development institutions in connection with international projects. This proposal is further to the announcement in the 1997 federal budget that the government was examining ways for retail and institutional investors to participate in export financing, and responds to a private sector initiative to establish such a trust.

The second proposal is to exclude units in designated Canadian-based limited partnerships from treatment as foreign property. This is intended to remove an existing impediment faced by Canadian-based limited partnerships in raising capital to finance their business operations.

Details on these proposals are contained in the attached annex.

Annex: Details on Proposed Modifications on Foreign Property

1. Specified International Finance Trusts

A specified international finance trust will be defined as a trust resident in Canada, all or substantially all of the cost of whose assets is attributable to any combination of:

- debt issued to and acquired from the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, International Finance Corporation, Inter-American Development Bank, Asian Development Bank, Caribbean Development Bank, European Bank for Reconstruction and Development or African Development Bank;
- debt issued to and acquired from the Export Development Corporation; and
- shares and debt that are not "foreign property" of the trust.

It is proposed that, after 1998, interests in such trusts will not be treated as foreign property.

2. Designated Limited Partnerships

A partnership will be a designated limited partnership where:

- units of the partnership were listed before 1999 on a Canadian stock exchange;
- there is only one class of units issued by the partnership;
- the principal activity of the partnership is the production and/or sale in Canada of goods, and/or the provision in Canada of services, the revenue from which is regulated by federal or provincial authority;
- at least 80 per cent of the full-time employees employed in respect of the partnership are employed in Canada; and
- the cost amount to the partnership of all assets of the partnership used in its activities in Canada is not less than 80 per cent of the cost amount of all assets of the partnership.

For the purposes of the above criteria, there would be a look-through rule in connection with investments held by the partnership in another partnership — that is, activities, costs and employees of the other partnership would be attributed to the investor partnership in proportion to the investor partnership's share of the income of the other partnership.

It is proposed that, after 1997, units in designated limited partnerships not be treated as foreign property.
